John D. and the Vine. Four-Billion Power. Two Ate Seven or Eight. R. H. Grant Observes.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., contributing $500,000 (five hundred thousand) to the International Fund for Rebuilding and Endowing the Shakespeare Memorial Theater, says the gift is a "recognition of the debt which Great Britain and the United States owes to Shakespeare."

Rockefeller millions are working usefully all over the world, pushing American trade, fighting disease, building hospitals and colleges, repairing, protecting irreplaceable, works of art.

A GERMAN poet describes a vine on the hillside, in winter, cold, dry and leafless, while wine from its grapes made hearts cheerful far away.

In his old age, Mr. Rockefeller, through his only son, does more good than ten million vines, making his money useful all over the world. And, fortunately, he is no dry, leafless vine on a hillside, but full of life, playing golf and enjoying it in spite of his 88 years.

NICHOLAS M. SCHENCK, succeeding Marcus Loew as head of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, believer in advertising, has a new idea. His powerful magic lantern, with four thousand million candle power back of it, scatters advertisements of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Capital Theater all over the Broadway landscape. Mr. Schenck uses the Paramount Theater, belonging to his friendly rivals, Famous Players, as a screen on which to throw, in letters 150 feet high the advice, "go to the Capital Theater for the best in moving pictures."

' What Zukor and Lasky of "Famous" will invent to offset this will be something more original than an injunction.

IT is suggested that the four-billion candlelight lantern may be raised to forty billions and the sky used as a screen. From that, heaven protect us. The heavens should continue to "declare the glory of God," not the glory of soap, breakfast food or even moving pictures. Mr. Schenck, who realizes that, says: "No; not on the sky, everywhere else."

A FISHING boat had drifted four thousand miles when it was picked up off our northwest coast. White bones on the deck showed the part that cannibalism had played in the tragedy of the sea.

Two that died, last of all, were intact. The others, seven or eight, had been eaten to prolong the lives of the two. No man can say what he would do under certain circumstances, unless he has been tested under those circumstances.

R. H. GRANT, super-sales manager of General Motors, back from a circuit of the country's large cities, reports "exceptionally good conditions in the Southeast and Southwest on account of cotton, excellent in the Northwest on account of wheat, and improving in the Middle West as a result of a bigger corn crop than was expected."

MR. GRANT'S impressions are reliable, based on the ability of the people to buy automobiles. His agents' reports, read on his return to Detroit, confirm his views. Mr. Grant found that they had sold in October 112,064 Chevrolet cars, against 50,747 Chevrolets in October, 1926. There seems to be prosperity throughout the country.

MR. EDISON says European nations "will war on us sooner or later." Perhaps they WON'T. By fighting us they might save ten thousand millions they owe us. But to cross the ocean and conquer even one narrow strip of this country would cost more than the ten billions they might save. And they can save that sum more economically by not paying us.

Europe, however, might cost this country many billions by one single air raid, if the United States should remain unprotected in the air.

JAPANESE unable to read or write are allowed to vote for the first time. The illiterate, more than others, need the vote. If their government makes them happy, they vote FOR it. If it makes them unhappy, they vote AGAINST it. That's the essence of voting. Therefore it was wise to let women vote. They won't accept excuses, or torchlight parades, in place of results.

Wilkinsburg Housewife Is Happy Now

The other day Mrs. M—— N——, — Trenton Ave., heard the voice of a Sun-Tele ad-taker over the telephone saying, "I am sure the Sun-Tele can help you in securing a desirable tenant for your furnished rooms." Mrs. N—— thanked the ad-taker for calling, but said, "she advertised elsewhere with no results and would not try again." Sun-Tele ad-takers are never happier than when assisting some one to rent something and finally persuaded Mrs. N—— to try the Sun-Tele and now she's thankful she did. She has learned the value of Sun-Tele rental ads. A tenant came from the first insertion.

BARE OIL JURY SLEUTHING

DETECTIVE SHADOW SHOWN

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A maze of documents illustrating the methods used and results obtained by the 16 picked William J. Burns detectives who "shadowed" 11 of the 12 jurors in the Teapot Dome trial is in the possession of government agents and assistant district attorneys who raided the detectives' lair in the Wardman Park Hotel here last Monday afternoon.

It was from this raid that the United States attorneys obtained material to present to the grand jury which is now sifting evidence in the alleged jury tampering case.

A sample of the correspondence and documents follows. It is a letter dated October 17 from C. G. Ruddy, manager of the Washington office of the Burns agency, to W. Sherman Burns, secretary-treasurer of the organization, in New York:

"Dear Mr. Burns:

"Please find enclosed time and expense for the four men who discontinued. I think it is self-explanatory.

"The reason that these men returned was because the client decided that only certain members need watching from now on.

"At the present time there are six working, including myself. Brief reports have to be typewritten and submitted to client daily, also someone has to be in the hotel all the time in case of emergency calls. Assistant Manager G. H. Robbins is doing the detail work under client's O. K.

"It's been a tough time up to now, mainly due to the fact that all interested parties are under an abnormal mental strain, and I have had quite a job trying to get them to keep their feet on the ground; however, up to now I have succeeded in doing so.

"Will keep you advised from time

24th Notch In Gang Guns

The open season for gang murders claimed another life early today and the toll of killings, laid to bootleg, white slave and Black Hand feuds, in Allegheny county since January 1, was raised to 24, including 20 men and four women.

Luigi Serra, 33, single, an Italian, of 527 Lenora street, East Liberty, proprietor of a pet shop at 6549 Frankstown avenue, was the victim. The shotgun charge, fired at him from a slowly-moving automobile, tore through the coat sleeve of Rozzia Arcadio, 41, of 627 Lenora street, before striking Serra, but Arcadio was uninjured. Serra's body was identified at the morgue by his friend, Raffaele Greco, of 6312 Joseph street.

The killing occurred in Joseph street, near Lenora street. According to Arcadio, the automobile containing the assassins came down Whittier street and turned into Lenora street and was almost abreast of him and Serra when the shots poured out from its rear seat.

Arcadio was walking next the curb and the charge passed behind him, but ripped through his sleeve. Serra was struck in the right side and head and collapsed on the spot.

Before Arcadio realized what had happened the murder car had disappeared in the darkness. Harry Stevenson, a Negro, of 25 Joseph street, who witnessed the shooting, described the auto as a small and badly battered touring car.

The victim was rushed to the Pittsburgh Hospital but a physician declared he had died before he reached there.

"LIES," SAYS BIOGRAPHER OF WILSON "SCANDAL"

Woodrow Wilson's friendship with Mrs. Mary Allen Peck (Mrs. Hulbert) is described by Ray Standard Baker in "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" which is running serially in the Sun-Telegraph. The articles are copyrighted by Doubleday Page & Co.

In an article appearing in the series, Mr. Baker says:

"He (Wilson) renewed his acquaintance with Mrs. Mary Allen Peck (Mrs. Hulbert), whom he met the year before. Her home in the islands (Bermuda) was a gathering place for witty and interesting people. To Mrs. Wilson he wrote on January 26, 1908:

"'Mark Twain . . . arrived on the boat this morning, and Mrs. Peck at once took possession of him. They are old friends. Indeed, she seems to know everybody worth knowing. She has been coming down here a great many winters, and everybody turns up here sooner or later, it would seem.'

A few days later he wrote to his wife:

"'Mark Twain has been down here between boats and I have seen a good deal of him. He seems to like being with me. Yesterday Mrs. Peck gave him a lunch at her house and gathered a most interesting little group of Garrison peo-

BANK HEAD GRILLED ON CHARGE

The name of John A. Bell, once powerful Carnegie banker, now broken in health and a county prisoner, came back to public notice today when Controller C. C. McGovern, conducting his audit of county business, asked James C. Chaplin, president of Colonial Trust Company, why $1,235,000 of public money had been deposited to "keep Bell from insolvency."

Chaplin, protesting that he had appeared to testify as a member of the Taxpayers' Committee of Allegheny County, which in newspaper advertisements is disputing McGovern's charges against the county commissioners, objected strenuously to the question and refused to answer directly.

BANKER OBJECTS

"The money," McGovern continued, "was used as a convenience—public money placed there so that the bank might have its money immediately." It was deposited, McGovern said, on August 16, 1922.

"I don't think that was a proper question to ask me," Chaplin said. "Dragging in an institution on something which happened in 1922

UNDER GUARD; SLAYS

While his guard, a prohibition officer, sat in the next room, Sam Zolkowski, liquor case witness, fatally slashed his wife's throat and then fought off interference long enough to cut his own this morning in their home, 912 Penn street, Sharpsburg. Mrs. Zolkowski lived only a few minutes; her husband is reported dying at St. Francis Hospital.

Paul Stone, the prohibition officer, was in the kitchen of the two-room Zolkowski apartment when Mrs. Zolkowski was slashed. He rushed to the street and summoned help.

Special Patrolman Joseph Habermann answered and he was struck over the head with a chair by Zolkowski when he sought to prevent the latter from slashing himself.

According to Stone the murder and suicide attempt occurred a short time after the man and his wife had met in the prohibition office.

Zolkowski had been brought back from New Bloomfield, Perry county, as a witness in the cases of Charles Friedman and 15 others, now on trial in Federal Court on liquor law violation charges.

He had failed to answer a subpena and Mrs. Zolkowski had revealed that he was in jail in New Bloomfield for stealing a train ride. Authorities there released him and he was returned to Pittsburgh early this morning.

His wife met him and both were taken to Sharpsburg to permit Zolkowski to change his clothes and shave.

KISSES CHILDREN

Upon returning to his home Zolkowski kissed each of his four children: Katherine, 13; Bobby, 5; Felicia, 3, and Felix, 1. While Mrs. Zolkowski prepared a lunch for the men, Zolkowski sent Katherine to the home of a neighbor to borrow a razor.

The girl returned with the razor and gave it to her father, who was preparing to shave in the front room of their second floor home. Stone, in

COOKING IMPORTANT AS CAREER

"Every housekeeper in Pittsburgh has a professional career if she would only recognize it as such," declared Mrs. George O. Thurn, in discussing her plans for next week's cooking school which is to be held at Memorial Hall, Bigelow boulevard and Fifth avenue, under the auspices of The Sun-Telegraph. "I have met and talked with thousands of housekeepers in various parts of the United States and they nearly all express envy in some degree of the woman in business. They want to be 'professional women.'

"Homemaking has been well established as a profession. In New York and other large cities there are organizations which send out paid, professionally trained housekeepers, maids, cooks and managers to work as homemakers. They earn salaries in the houses of women who are devoting their lives to a business or an artistic career. The home workers are not servants. They are women who like housework and who have specialized in certain branches of it and who earn their living by doing such work. They are professional homemakers. Not every woman can like housework, but if she has a home, if her husband and children look to her to keep them well fed and happy, she owes it to herself and her

CHECK MOVEMENTS OF FALL, SINCLAIR IN GOVERNMENT JURY FIX PROB

QUESTION 'CONTACT' MAN

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The government's determination to go to the bottom of the circumstances leading up to the mistrial of the Fall-Sinclair case was further evidenced today when Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw subpenaed hotel records of all the telephone calls made by Fall and Sinclair and their attorneys.

These calls, it was said, are expected to throw some additional light on the activities of the 16 Burns detectives who shadowed the jurors night and day. Burkinshaw has sworn to his belief that the detectives were employed by Harry F. Sinclair, the millionaire defendant.

ATTORNEY SUMMONED

Mark B. Thompson, attorney for former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, appeared this morning before the federal grand jury, which is probing the government charges of jury tampering. Thompson was called to tell the jury what took place in a telephone conversation which had been traced between him and Dan Jackson, assistant attorney general.

The Fall lawyer and Jackson are known to be life-long friends, but there was nothing to show that the conversation had anything to do with the jury tampering charges.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Burkinshaw is going to attempt to force A. Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Company, and alleged "contact man" between the Burns detectives and Sinclair, to testify. Day previously has refused on the ground he might incriminate himself.

Burkinshaw planned to again bring Day before the jury this afternoon and subject him to a prepared list of questions. Failing to answer, he will be haled before Supreme Court Justice Wendell Stafford and further questioned, leaving to the judge the decision as to whether or not he actually would incriminate himself, and whether he should be compelled to testify or judged in contempt.

EXAMINE JURORS

After an all-morning conference with the 10 men and two women who had sat in the conspiracy trial, Burkinshaw excused them until tomorrow morning. He explained that he wishes first to lay the ground for certain questions he will propound to them. After the conference, and until they were excused, the 11 unstained remained in the district attorney's office while E. J. Kidwell, the "yes and no man," sat in the outer corridor.

Kidwell's father was questioned by Burkinshaw also, but was not presented to the grand jury.

Charles G. Ruddy, boss of the Burns crew of operatives, was called to the grand jury room for questioning after the Fall-Sinclair jury was excused for the day.

After his appearance before the grand jury, Ruddy went outside and posed for the photographers. He refused, however, to let the boys snap three of his operatives.

"Now play fair with me," he said over his shoulder as he walked away.

The three unphotographed detectives remained behind. Ruddy walked a short distance, stopped, looked around and shouted back:

"Keep your mouths shut now."

"I'm not doing any talking to any one," snapped back one of them. "If you don't do any more talking than I am, you'll be all right."

a back room, was writing a report of his trip, and sent Mrs. Zolkowski into the front room for ink.

Stone said when Mrs. Zolkowski went into the room her husband slashed at her with the razor, the blade opening the flesh under her chin. She fled and screamed for Stone, but Zolkowski leaped on her back and with a sweep of the razor nearly severed the woman's head. Four frightened children were splashed with their mother's blood.

Stone said Zolkowski then made a futile lunge at him, and Stone having no weapon except a black jack, fled down the steps. He summoned Haberman, who was directing traffic nearby. Haberman ran into the house and overpowered Zolkowski.

No loud talking preceded the slashing. It is said that Zolkowski may have become enraged because his wife revealed his whereabouts to prohibition agents. Stone said he believed the tragedy resulted from Mrs. Zolkowski's refusal to accompany her husband to court.

ple to meet him. He was in great form and delighted everybody.'

"Later the friendship with Mrs. Peck deepened. There were visits between the two families and a lively correspondence of the sort which always delighted Wilson. Often the letters, like those of many others of Wilson's friends, were read aloud in the family circle at Princeton, together with his own replies. One of them with copies of Wilson's responses remained among the President's papers at his death.

"In later years this friendship was made the target of scandalous innuendo—the last resource of unscrupulous politics and one of the most difficult attacks for the public man to combat. Whisperings, rumors, gossip—nowhere anything to get hold of, nowhere any reputable person to challenge. Many public men have suffered from such campaigns of slander. Theodore Roosevelt met the absurd charge that he was a drunkard by suing for libel an inconsequential newspaper which had been bold. That stopped it.

JUST WHISPERING GOSSIP

"But in Wilson's case the charges never at any time reached the surface. No effort or expense were spared by Wilson's enemies, especially in 1916, to get at anything they dared publish, knowing that such charges, if substantiated, would ruin him. It is significant that nothing ever was published. Yet the wildest lies were spread about and, unfortunately, widely believed.

"Human beings seem far more willing to accept the vilest scandals about a public man without a shred of real evidence than to admit the noblest public service. A good many people read the letters to Mrs. Hulbert. They are just such letters as he was writing to other warm friends, both men and women—his views of public affairs and public men, discussion of books and the like.

"The friendship with Mrs. Hulbert continued for years. She experienced great sorrow and trouble, and Wilson made many efforts in the later years to assist her and her family. The very fact that scandalous stories were told only hardened him in his loyalty to his friend."

K-27 REPORTS

Another typical example was the report of "New York Investigator K-27," who had been ordered to watch Miss Bernice K. Heaton, telephone operator instructress, one of the two women members of the jury. His report was as follows:

"Wednesday, October 19, 1927.

"New York Investigator K-27.

"Continuing on the above operation, I received instructions to place under surveillance Juror No. 8, Bernice K. Heaton, of 1228 I street, N. W.

"I proceeded to subject's home, acquainted myself with neighborhood. I then went to court house, picked up subject, who left with Juror No. 7.

"Description of subject: 'Age 30, 5 feet 4 inches, 125 pounds, slender, blonde hair, does not appear to be bobbed, light complexion; dress, tan hat, tan coat, collar in front trimmed with deerskin fur, light colored stockings and tan shoes.

"Subject and Juror No. 7: Boarded trolley at Fifth and D streets. Subject alighted at I and Fourteenth streets, N. W., entered Frazee Potomac Laundry, 827 Thirteenth street, N. W. Walked to 1228 I street, entering at 3:30 p. m.

"This is a large apartment house and can be entered through three stores, fronting on Thirteenth street, Numbers 823, 825, 827. Subject had no male escort en route from courthouse.

"At 7:50 p. m. subject came out, accompanied by a woman, whose age is 22 years, 5 feet 6 inches, slender built, 125 pounds, wearing gray hat, and entered Red Top cab 317. There being no other cab in sight I was unable to follow and phoned Manager C. G. R.

"I remained in vicinity of subject's house until 10 p. m., up to which time subject did not return. Discontinued at 10:45 p. m."

SHADOW JUROR KERN

The story of what operator "New York No. 502" did after being ordered to examine into the finances of Juror John P. Kern, particularly to discover if there was a mortgage on the "subject's" house and who held the mortgage, is told in another report placed before the grand jury as follows:

"Friday, Oct. 28.

"John P. Kern, subject.

"Upon instructions received from Manager C. G. R., I investigated the ownership of No. 1315 North Carolina avenue.

"I went to the district building and first learned that these premises were owned by John P. and Hazel B. Kern.

"I was then directed to the recorder of deeds building on Fifth street between D and C.

"At this building I made a check of the records and went as far back as January 1, 1926, but could find no mortgage having been recorded during that time. I could find no record of existing mortgages on the property at this time.

"Some idea as to when Kern bought this house would be necessary before being able to learn the mortgage on same and its amount.

"No release or satisfaction has been recorded on this property since July 1, 1927.

"I will attempt to learn the amount of the mortgage and the holder."

Operative "New York No. 502" also was instructed to investigate "Juror No. 5's brother." The juror in question was Edward Kidwell, Jr., named in the affidavits as having talked too loud and too long. He was before the grand jury yesterday. The report is as follows:

"Washington, Monday, Oct. 24.

"Acting under instructions from Manager C. G. R., I proceeded to make an investigation of Juror No. 5's brother.

"I learned from inquiries his name is Edward Kidwell and that he keeps a barber shop at the Myrtle Hotel.

"I went to the Myrtle Hotel and found it commonly known as the Myrtle House. It is located quite a distance from the city at Congress Heights.

"It is a one-man barber shop which is opened in the morning by a general porter, who awaits owner's arrival. Only on a Saturday or a holiday does he have any other barbers help him.

"Among the rubbish thrown out of the shop were quite a number of racing sheets.

"Returned to hotel, reporting verbally to client."

Neil Burkinshaw, the young Assistant District Attorney, who developed the amazing evidence of jury tampering, said today that Barber Kidwell was in fact the juror's father and not brother, as stated by the operative.

A host of similar reports were gathered by the government during the raid.

HILL CREEK RESERVE OPENED TO HUNTERS

Today's Killing, 24th, Laid to Gangs Here

The twenty-fourth victim of gang warfare in Allegheny county since January 1 was shot down in Lenora street early today. In this toll of murder, without precedent in Pittsburgh's history, 20 men and four women have been killed. Police ascribe it as a "bootleg and white slave war."

Following is the list of those killed:

January 1—FELIX FAZIO, found dead near Rodgers Sand Company, Squaw Run, O'Hara township.

January 22—Unknown man found dead near Frankstown road, Penn township.

February 10—JOHN ROMANO, killed in gun fight with Antonio Romano, who died February 14 from wounds received in fight.

February 11—GUISEPPE MAGNIFERO, shot to death at Market and Adams streets.

February 13—MARIE ANGELO, stabbed to death by A. L. Chenoweth in her home, 37 Fleming avenue, Stowe township.

February 24—ANTONIO RUGGIERO, killed in store at 7403 Verona road, Penn township, by wife.

March 8 — ANTONIO RUSSO, shot to death on Paulson avenue, near Shetland avenue.

April 5 — ANTONIO SPAGNOLETTI, died from wounds inflicted April 3 at 1018 Poplar way.

April 12—ERSULA DE LUCCA GOMMELLO, shot to death in her home, Manown, Forward township.

April 13—CARMEN ALFARNO, shot to death at Benwood and Harlan streets.

April 17—ANGELO DIANO, MARIE DIANO AND CARMELLO SCHEFFANO, killed in gun battle at 910 McLaughlin avenue, West Carnegie.

May 17—VITO CASIGLIA, shot to death in front of 1400 Irwin avenue.

May 19—LUIGI LAMENDOLA, shot to death in doorway of 27 Chatham street.

July 3—PARFIRO CARBANTEZ, stabbed to death in home, 446 Cherry way, Homestead.

July 5 — ANDREW DAVIDDAVICCO, found dead at Hurrel alley and Market street, McKeesport.

August 29 — JAMES LA ROSA, 1338 Fifth avenue.

September 30 — JOSEPH TALAMO, proprietor of the "Red Spot" cabaret, 805 Wylie avenue. He was spirited away from his home and his body, riddled with bullets, was found on a lonely road near Canonsburg.

October 11—FRANK FRISAURA, of 712, White street, McKeesport, shot down near the door of his home.

October 15—NATALE BONIA, of 241 Thirty-eighth street, found dying on the sidewalk of a street in Sharpsburg, where he had been shot by a man who took him there in an automobile.

October 30—JOSEPH RUSSO, of 92 Elm street, whose body, bearing several bullet wounds, was found in an alleged speakeasy in Congress street.

November 3—LEWIS SEERY, of 627 Lenora street, shot in the street near his home by gangsters in a slowly-moving automobile.

holding, and declared they would not be released for publication.

Superintendent Walsh declared yesterday that parts of the affidavit made by Miss Parnot, former secretary to King, are "unprintable" and are being withheld and that other affidavits involving King and other League officials and members are in his possession.

"Enlightening on the action of certain members of the League," was Superintendent Walsh's description of the other affidavits.

"Unprintable," was his comment on the part of the Parnot affidavit, which he says has not been published. He denied that he had authorized the release of what was declared the affidavit's full text, and said the rest would be held until "the proper time."

He also intimated he "would talk in court," as Citizens' League officials stated they would do in preference to indulging in a battle of affidavits, statements and denunciations.

league team, other than the Cardinals. He will return from Elk county tomorrow or Saturday.

BOB TOO GOOD A CATCHER

Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, said today that O'Farrell "may not manage the club next season."

Breadon claims responsibilities of managing the club spoiled a good catcher. O'Farrell is one of the best receivers in baseball.

"Measured by results," declared Breadon, "you must consider O'Farrell a successful manager. He led the club through all its troubles and won more games than the team of 1926. But spoiling a great catcher is an expensive way of having a leader. It is easy to get a manager; there are plenty of them."

BANK HEAD GRILLED

would have a tendency to hurt the institution. I am here as a witness in connection with the Taxpayers' Committee of Allegheny County, and if you want to question me as a banker, you can subpena me as a banker and I will bring in the records of the bank in regard to the question you have just asked," Chaplin said.

"Very well, I will do that," the Controller said.

HUMPHREY QUIZZED

Chaplin was followed on the stand by A. L. Humphrey, president of Westinghouse Airbrake Company; J. K. F. Weaver, official of the Tarentum Savings and Trust Company, and Joseph Stadtfeld, president of the Allegheny County Bar Association—all members, except Stadtfeld, who resigned, of the committee which McGovern subpenaed.

They testified, as did Chaplin, that they had not collected the facts which were being published as an answer to McGovern's charges of loose government against the Commissioners, but that investigators had gathered the information.

Humphrey, quizzed at length, testified that he had relied on information furnished by three members of a sub-committee, two of whom were a Mr. Negley and J. H. Federman. When the Controller asked Humphrey if he knew that Federman, a contractor, had executed $200,000 of county business in two years, the Westinghouse official answered that he was satisfied that Federman was an honorable man.

Humphrey and Weaver testified they had not attended any committee meetings and Weaver admitted that he had never seen the advertising copy of the reports from which they were drawn. He had expected to, however, Weaver said.

Stadtfeld, who resigned from the committee when a newspaper report identified him as president of the Bar Association, testified that he was familiar with the committee's investigation only through having read the advertisements. He had never received any information from the subcommittee, Stadtfeld said.

Attorney Henry O. Evans, secretary of the committee, and McGovern were involved in two heated arguments during the hearing. The Controller refused Evans' request that the committee members be allowed to congregate in the hearing room while their colleagues were testifying, and as the hearing was opened, Evans was stopped while reciting a statement which challenged McGovern to submit to an examination of his own charges, and charged the Controller with using the audit as a political football.

Those ordered to appear today were: A. L. Humphrey, former president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, president of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company; E. R. Crawford, McKeesport Tin Plate Company; James C. Chaplin, Colonial Trust Company; A. C. Lehman, Blaw-Knox Company; J. H. Hershberger, T. P. Hershberger Sons; John M. Philips, Philips Mine and Supply Company; J. K. F. Weaver, Tarentum Savings and Trust Company; J. Dawson Callery, Diamond National Bank; Mrs. Edith Oliver Rea, Henry W. Oliver estate; Leo P. Green, secretary, Building Trades Council; Charles J. Lawrence, secretary, Plumbers' Local Union; John L. Deaghan, international deputy, Bricklayers' Union; P. J. McGrath, secretary, Street Railway Men's Union; Charles L. Miller, secretary, Stationary Engineers' Union, and Henry O. Evans, attorney, secretary of the committee.

The involving of members of the committee in the probe, according to the Controller, followed an alleged statement by a member of the committee, since denied by Evans, that the information they are using in the advertisements was secured by paying a county employe.

MARTINS FERRY SLAYER GOES TO PRISON FRIDAY

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 3.—George Thomas, of Martins Ferry, will be taken to the state penitentiary Friday to begin serving a life sentence for the murder of his nephew, Peter Gallaher, in Martins Ferry last May. Thomas pleaded guilty. After killing Gallaher, Thomas turned the gun on his own wife and daughter, wounding them.

2 BEAUTIES MISSING HERE

A beauty contest, with its promises of fame, fortune and a career, today was blamed by police for the disappearance of two Beltzhoover girls who tried a few months ago to be Miss Pittsburgh—and failed despite their youthful charms.

Annacietta Augustin, 17, of 912 Climax street, and Julia Seiler, 19, of 2505 Gable street, were intimate friends, although when scores of beauties were lined up at the Willows pool in Oakmont last August for the prized title they were friendly enemies, each hopeful that she would be crowned most beautiful.

Thursday night Anna, the comely brunet, had Julia as her guest. They awoke Friday morning and left the Augustin home—for, Mrs. Augustin thought, work.

They haven't returned.

SCHOOL OFFERS CAREER

family to do her job with professional interest.

Mrs. Thurn knows the problems of keeping a house running smoothly, preparing the meals, keeping the rooms clean and the family contented. She has had years of housekeeping experience as well as training in the scientific side of housekeeping. Her lectures will be given every day of the school, beginning next Tuesday at 2 o'clock and continuing through Thursday, and will incorporate not only the scientific theories and practical advice learned from her years of housekeeping, but a great many new ideas on kitchen equipment and modern cookery. New tools and new thoughts help bring interest to housework, Mrs. Thurn believes, and by studying new homemaking principles women show the same interest in their jobs that business women show when they attend conventions, conferences and the business club luncheons. There are excellent books on cookery and housekeeping, books which every woman should have in her kitchen library. Such publications are not only helpful in daily tasks but they have helped to raise the job of housework to the status of a profession, is the opinion expressed by this famous culinary expert.

She pointed out further that there is not only novelty and delight in having new appliances but the best of the modern kitchen equipment is actually labor-saving and designed to save kitchen time, spare the muscles, and in general lighten the housekeepers' task. "The woman who considers her housekeeping as a profession is on the lookout for labor-saving methods as well as the new labor-saving tools and utensils and her time spent in such consideration is saved many times in her simplified tasks."

Both labor-saving utensils and devices as well as new methods of cookery will be featured at the cooking school next week. The kitchen installed in Memorial Hall will contain a new electrical refrigerator, a new model of range, and all kinds of small devices which save time and work in preparing meals. New dishes will be tried out and given to each lecture. Mrs. Thurn will also distribute printed copies of the recipes and will discuss some phase of homemaking and some branch of cookery.

Every woman in the Pittsburgh district is invited to be present and to come with a notebook and pencil to jot down cookery hints or to make a note of a question which may come up during the lecture. Questions are invited and the housekeeper audience is asked to feel that the school is a headquarters for homemaking information where they may come for help and advice.

Women's clubs, the schools and a number of social and lodge organizations are actively interested in the four days' program, and from the enthusiasm already shown, Memorial Hall promises to be packed to the doors at every lecture.

MAY FORECLOSE ON GIFT HOME OF EVELYN

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 2—(AP.)—Appointment of a guardian for Russell W. Thaw, 19-year-old son of Evelyn Nesbit, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, is sought by the holder of a $6,000 mortgage on a house the youth's mother bought some time ago in trust for him.

A deputy sheriff today notified Russell that application for the appointment of a guardian for him ad litem would be made to the chancellor at Trenton by John B. Slack, attorney for the Ventnor Building and Loan Association, acting for William A. Bloom, who seeks to foreclose the mortgage.

Papers in the guardianship move, a necessary legal step in the case, were served on the boy in his home in Tudor Terrace, near Northfield. This is the home which it is said Thaw purchased for his former wife some time ago.

Swirling Snow Gives City Taste of Winter

Huge, sloshy snowflakes swirled in the faces of early travelers in the city and suburbs this morning, succeeding the torrential rain that started falling late yesterday and continued without abatement throughout the night.

The "beautiful" did not lay long in the streets, but suburban sections were covered with a white mantle. Tops of automobiles entering the city from outlying points still bore evidence of the congealed moisture. The local weather bureau announced at 10 o'clock that the snowfall was about over and that fair weather would prevail tomorrow.

Snow had been reported in nearby sections several weeks ago, but today's heavy flurry was the first that urban dwellers have seen in the downtown section of the city. A near-record for continued mild weather was established throughout the past two months, and the first two days of November showed a decided excess in temperature.

Thousands of hunters who are beating the open spaces of Western Pennsylvania for small game since the season opened Tuesday, welcomed yesterday's rain as an aid to running down their quarry, and were jubilant at the appearance of snow, which puts pep into the nimrod game by stimulating the movement of rabbits and drives birds to cover where they are more easily "stood" by trained dogs.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 2—(AP.)—The first snow of the season fell here today while apple and pear trees were in bloom for the second time this year and violets were flowering. The snow lasted 15 minutes.

Raps Correspondence Schools as "Quacks"

Correspondence courses were termed "quack schooling" by John D. Beatty, secretary of the bureau of recommendations of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, during an address at the opening session of the fourteenth annual meeting of the American Association of Urban Universities this morning at Carnegie Institute.

Mr. Beatty said employers should protect employes from squandering their money on quack education. He pointed out that, in spite of the increased enrollment of evening classes in all colleges, certain correspondence schools have four times the number of students as there are in all resident colleges, universities and professional schools combined.

WOMAN BURNS TO DEATH AS LAMP FIRES CLOTHING

INDIANA, Pa., Nov. 2.—Mrs. Lucy Holby, 67, of Strongstown, was fatally burned when she attempted to light a kerosene lamp while she was ill in bed. The bedclothing and mattress caught fire and the woman was burned about the entire body. Members of her family, attracted by her screams, went to her aid and extinguished the flames. She died a few hours later.

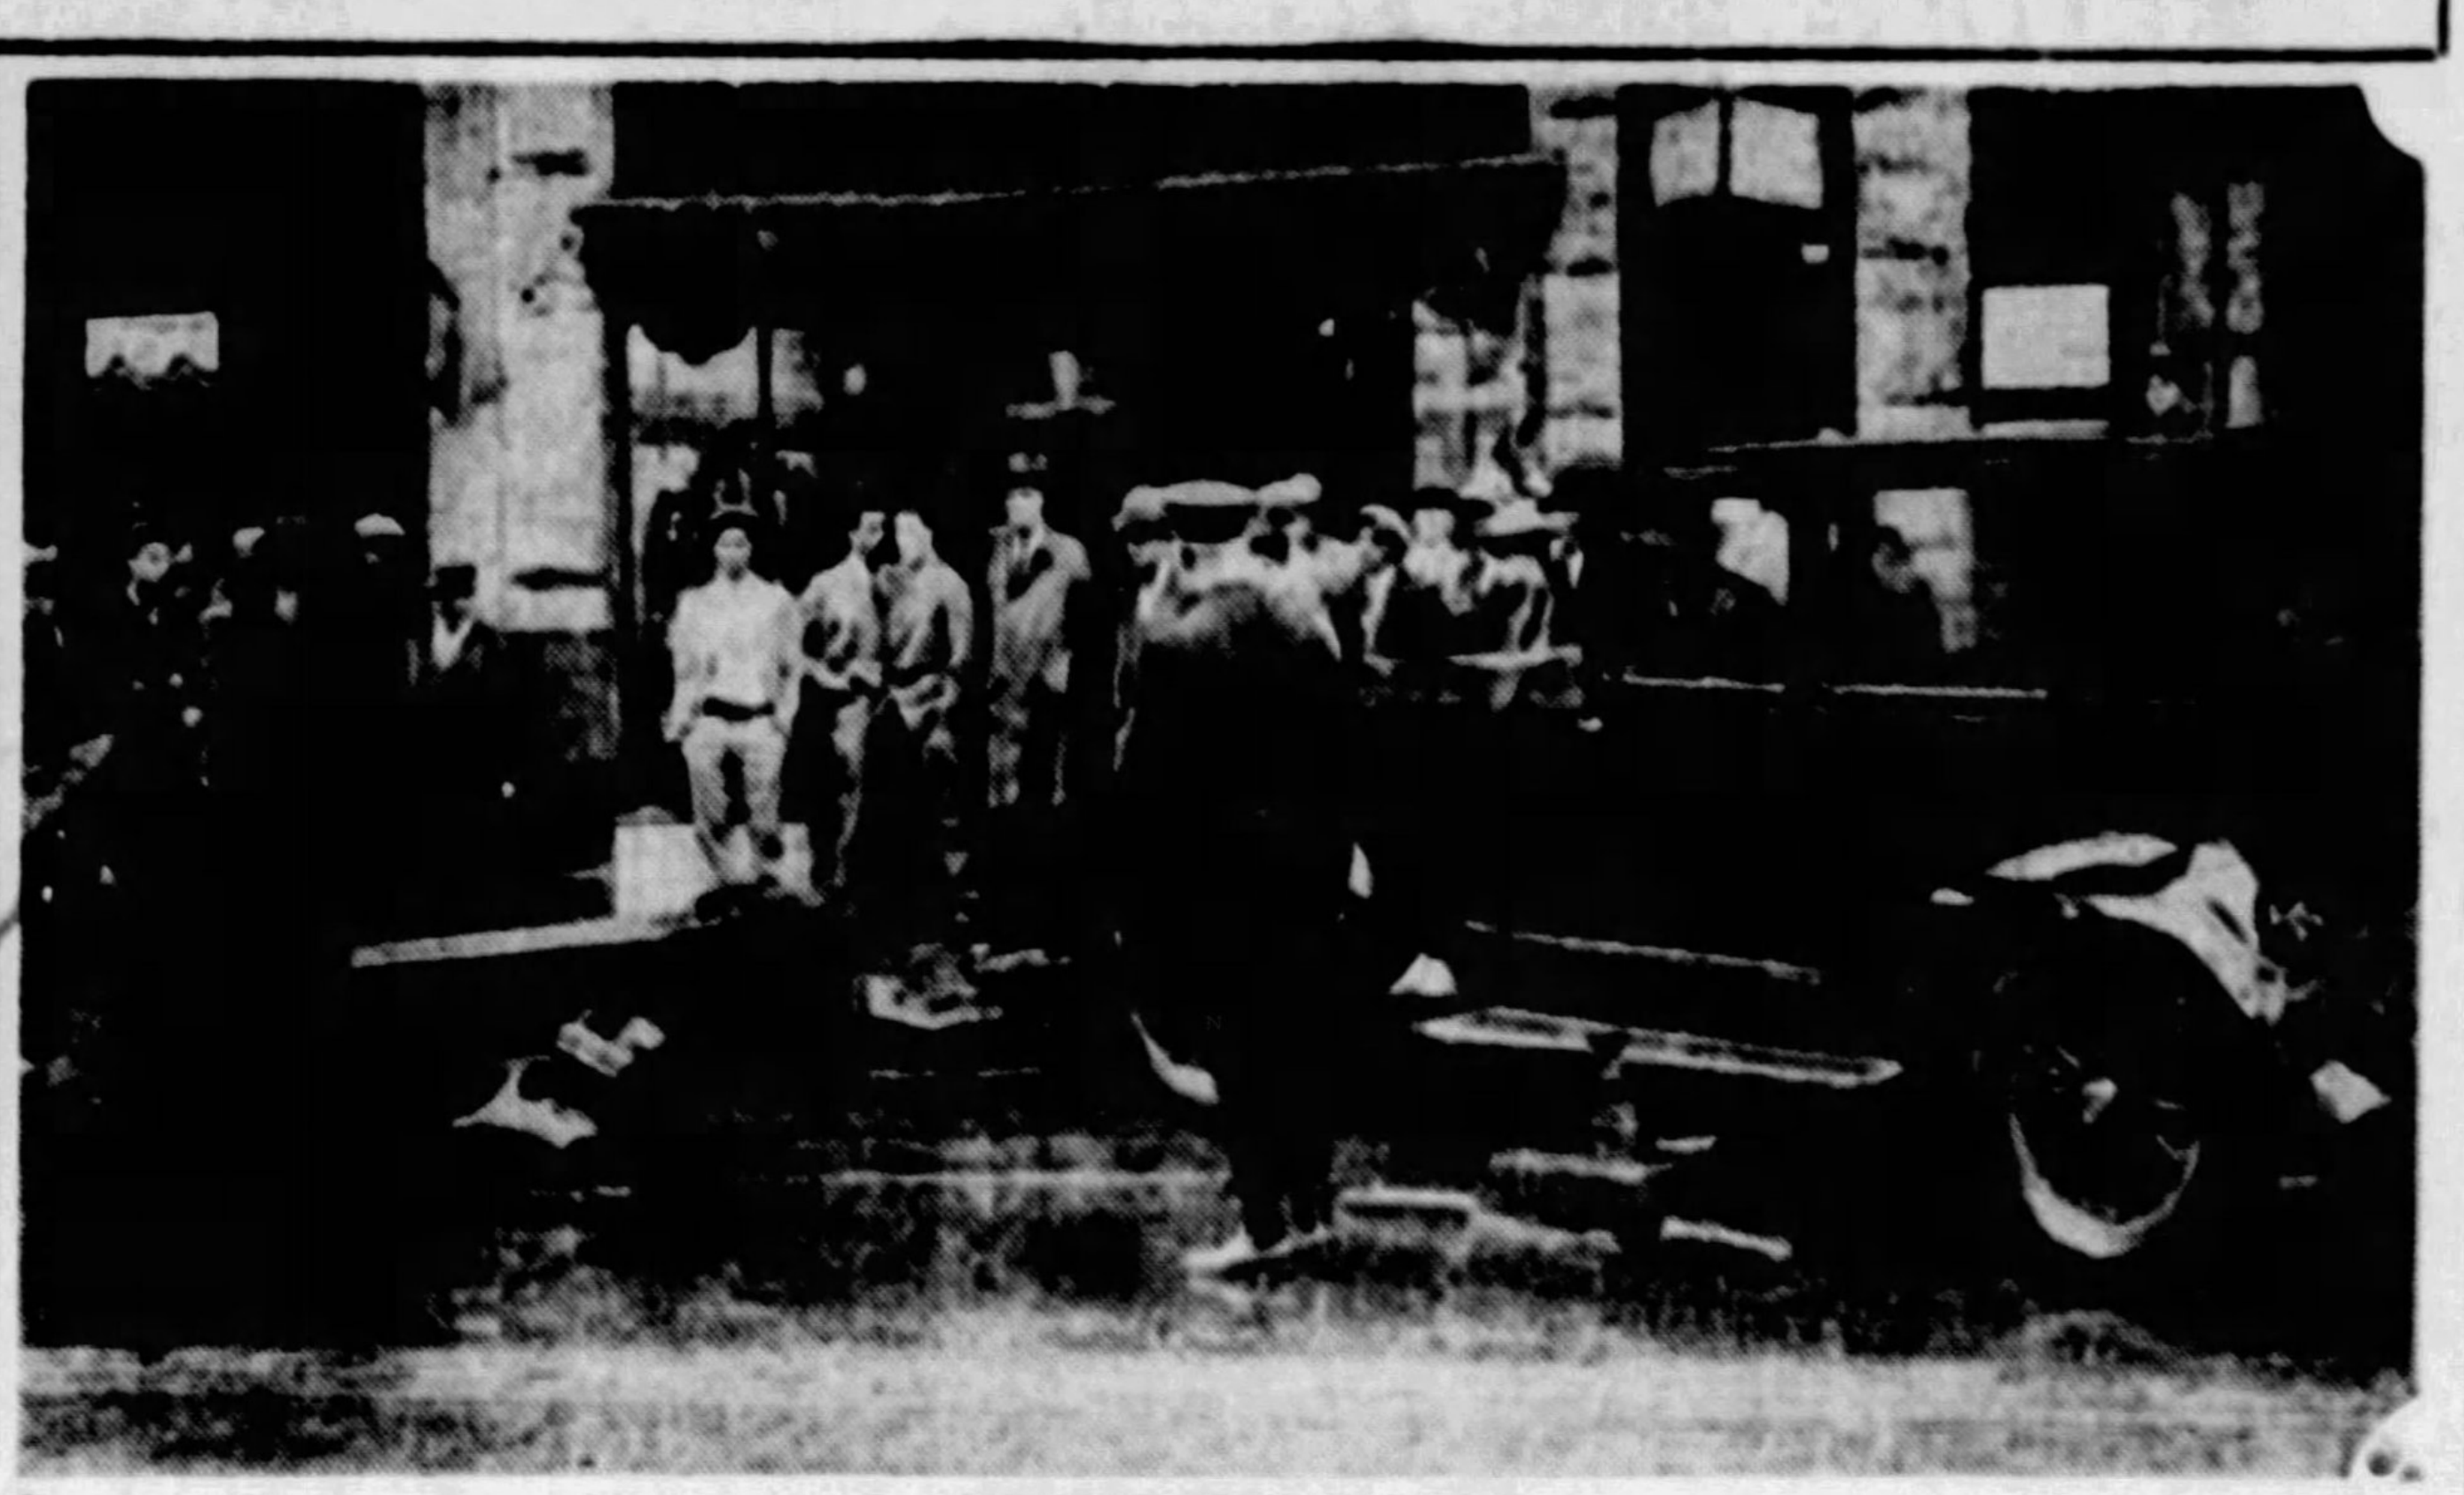
TRAFFIC CRASH :: WREAKS HAVOC :: IN EAST END

RAMMED BY STREET CAR

As Harry Schwartz, Jackson street, drove away from the curb in Frankstown avenue to visit his wife, ill in a hospital, a street car struck his machine from behind. His car struck another machine and came to a stop, as shown above, with driver seriously injured and the machine badly damaged.



TRAIN OF DAMAGE

The auto of W. D. Shank, 316 Castle Shannon Road, Mt. Lebanon, above, struck by Schwartz' machine, crashed into a jeweler's advertising clock on a pole, and sent it tumbling into the display window of a shoe store. The Shank machine was heavily damaged. Passengers in the street car were shaken up but none was injured.

SEASON'S FIRST SNOW :: LAYS WHITE MANTLE :: ON RESIDENCE DISTRICTS

HILLTOP IN ERMINE GARB

Pittsburgh had a taste of "squaw winter" today. With the fall of temperature the rain which had been falling steadily since yesterday turned this morning into slushy snow, the first of the season. The Allegheny Observatory is here shown in its white covering.

SHRUBBERY IS BEAUTIFIED

The residential districts were soon cloaked in a beautiful mantle, which draped the trees and bushes charmingly. Homes in Perrysville avenue are shown in the picture.

"SQUAW WINTER" ON NORTH SIDE

In the closely built-up sections the snow melted almost as soon as it fell. But in the outlying sections it tarried, to the delight of the rabbit hunters. It was two inches deep in Washington county. This scene is the Serpentine drive in Riverview Park.

NOT STARTING MARRIAGE FAD, VAN LOON SAYS

Neither Has Time For Usual Married Life

Hendrik Willem Van Loon, writer and historian, reveals further details of his remarkable marriage arrangement with Miss Frances Goodrich, the actress, in a special article for this newspaper today.

He tells how and why they are living in separate establishments, just as they did before their marriage a month ago.

By HENDRIK WILLEM VAN LOON.

(Copyright, 1927, by Universal Service and the New York American)

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—As I have been a newspaperman myself and know exactly how hateful it is to have to ask a man with whom you smoke cigarets and swap friendly stories the sort of questions which city editors have sent you out to ask, I will answer them and save you the trouble of asking them.

Financial arrangements?

There are not any. Miss Goodrich goes on making her own living and I try to make mine. I usually pay for cab fare, but occasionally I have borrowed a dollar when I only had a $10 bill and the taxi man or the conductor had no change.

We have never discussed any financial settlement but Miss Goodrich knows that I have fairly heavy obligations, and has refused to take anything from me.

In due time we may change that, as we have no fixed program for the rest of our lives. But for the moment, the ideal of complete and absolute independence is strictly adhered to.

NO SET MEETINGS

The question of hours and meals and meetings?

No fixed dates of any sort. Miss Goodrich, when she is acting, does not get home until late and as I have the unfortunate habit of starting work at seven in the morning we very frequently do not see each other until after dinner. If we are both free for dinner we usually eat together.

If we happen to be in the same part of the town we lunch together. As neither of us breakfasts, there is no difficulty about breakfast.

Why this question should worry people I do not know, but it seems to worry them greatly. But as most people with most of their friends live on this basis, they ought to know that the Bell Telephone Company has settled most of our problems about "when do we eat?"

The future?

Don't know a damn thing about it. I have made plans all my life and not a single one of those plans ever materialized according to schedule. Wherefore I make no further plans and await patiently what the day will bring.

The question that has been asked whether one esteems one's books and drawing tables more than what is commonly called "the home."

Of course not, and why ask fool questions? It only means that we have two homes instead of one and less necessity to find amusement outside of the house than most other people, who have contemplated their own familiar walls for so long that they say, "let us go out somewhere and do something," and go.

The question whether all this has been settled and agreed upon by official document?

NOTHING AGREED UPON

Why must people always insist upon "organizing" situations which are perfectly natural and ordinary. Nothing has been agreed upon. There is no fixed program. We may change our mode of living from day to day. It just happens that at the present moment and with our present financial possibilities and impossibilities the present arrangement suits us best.

We are not advocating that other people follow this example. But in most marriages there is no problem of two professional people trying to make a success of marriage in our highly complicated modern society.

Do you expect your own mode of living ever to be the general mode of living of married couples?

Of course not. This is an exceptional case. In most homes the man works and the woman tends to the household. In this instance both people work and hire others to tend to their household duties for them. They find that it is more economical to arrange things that way. For most other people it would be less economical.

Besides, most wives, if they did not have their household chores, would be bored and would find time heavy upon their hands. A professional woman does not find time heavy upon her hands and only wishes she had more of it.

I know that we lose certain things, but, on the other hand, we gain certain other advantages, which mean more to us than the things we lose. And, finally, these are matters which every person has to settle for himself or herself. I want to repeat once more that this is not the beginning of a new movement or a new idea of marriage. It is merely the best sort of makeshift of which we could think for the moment.

JOBS DIFFERENT

Will you go on working?

Of course.

We are both of us interested in our wholly different jobs. My job is to write or try to write the sort of books that will set children and grown-ups thinking. If anybody interfered with that job I would speedily come to hate him, her or it.

I have four books to write before the end of 1929. That means terrifically hard work. The moment a man sells a few books the delighted world acclaims another millionaire. Those who know anything at all about the writing game know that there are no fortunes to be made from writing, especially not from the sort of books, which, like my own, are almost always highly controversial.

It may be foolish to attach so much importance to one's own work. But if one did not feel that way what would be the use of working 11 hours a day at an ungrateful task, anyway?

DORAN TO DRY UP NATION WITH PADLOCKS

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Night clubs and cafes all over the country will be dried up, even if the padlock route has to be followed, declared Dr. James M. Doran, national prohibition director while here yesterday.

The Supreme Court ruling against hip liquor, obtained by Chicago prohibition agents, will be invoked in the campaign.

The validity of the "observation route," Dr. Doran said, gives the dry forces a deadly weapon with which to fight the battle for prohibition enforcement.

"The Supreme Court ruling will govern the policies of the Federal Prohibition Department henceforth," he said. "It means that places where flagrant violations are found will be padlocked."

Declining to comment on the dry enforcement campaign against the country clubs, he said that the power of authorities to stop drinking in private clubs has not yet been determined by the courts. The hotels, however, he believes, will extend their co-operation in the general mopping up.

Dr. Doran while here addressed the convention of the National Beauty and Barber Supply Dealers' Association and thanked the members for their co-operation in preventing misuse of alcohol supplies for manufacturing purposes.

AIDA
San Carlo Opera Co.
Pitt Theater

At the Pitt Theater last night we found the best house of the week. The San Carlo Opera Company was singing Verdi's Aida and the gallery was calling loudly for more of everything.

Year after year I listen to Aida. My greatest wonder is how Carlo Peroni gets such glorious results from so comparatively few orchestral players. There are, to be sure, moments in the Nile scene and in the burial scene, when greater refinements are very desirable in the woodwinds, but throughout the latter part of these performances, there are echoes of the grand musical proportions of the triumphal entry.

In no opera company do we find more sincere choral singing and acting. The principals last night were quite new to Pittsburgh. Louise Taylor's Aida and Fernando Bertini's Radames both suffer from the same faults; their lower voices were no support for their big high tones. Therefore the Nile scene suffered the loss of its entrancing pianissimo effects. Coe Glade was a very acceptable Amneris, her voice lacking the offensive guttural tones favored by too many contraltos. She was more mezzo-soprano. Edward Albano gave us a good Amonasro, but the San Carlo Company is always fortunate with baritones. Cervi sang the King, Curci the messenger, and Bernice Schalker the unseen priestess.

Tonight's opera will be Faust with Myrna Sharlow as Marguerite.

School Boxing Ring Tames Naughty

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—The novel plan of curing unruly students by taking them to the school basement and making them don the boxing-gloves, came to light today with the questioning in court of Principal Rainey, of a Brooklyn school. Rainey declared he had operated his school boxing ring for 20 years and had achieved excellent results both in the character and physical upbuilding of quarrelsome students. The principal said that he, himself, usually acted as timekeeper, while the belligerents had their fill of fighting.

ELECTRIC RADIO

Socket-Operated—No Batteries

$175.00 Complete

The newest-type Electric Set . . . in a beautiful cabinet . . . at just about the price of the old-type eliminator-operated models. Horne's—leader in Electric Radio, with the largest line in Pittsburgh—presents this remarkable value.

The Steinite—a 6-tube, two-dial model—uses regular Radiotron or Cunningham tubes—with a power pack to rectify the house current. No batteries . . . no eliminators . . . simply put the plug in the electric light. This set has been made for two years, and is thoroughly tested.

A rich-looking cabinet . . . walnut-veneered . . . with lovely burled panels in front. The dull-bronze escutcheons and illuminated dials add to the appearance. The enclosed Utah de-luxe speaker gives an excellent tone.

The price includes installation in your home, erection of aerial and service for one year.

Recent Books

"Now We Are Six"—by A. A. Milne. "We began it when we were very young . . . and now we are six" . . . and Christopher Robin does more delightful doings and thinks more delightful thinkings than ever in this new book—if that's possible. Mr. Shepard is still making the drawings, of course. $2.00.

"Bismarck"—by Emil Ludwig. More than a biography and more than a history, in that it causes both the man and the events to come alive in a remarkable way. An easy, conversational style makes fascinating the tale unfolded. $5.00.

The Chic of Woolens, in Tailor-Type

To know how altogether smart the new lightweight woolens can be, is to see the Tailor-Type dresses for the street, for club wear, for the country, for business. Made of wool georgette, in solid colors, stripes and tiny checks—tweeds that are so light in weight that only their knotty weave says they are really tweeds—wool jersey, decorated with motifs of yarn embroidery—friska with its colorings subtly veiled with snowfall fleckings.

The styles include tunics of below-the-knee or seven-eighths length, two-piece jacket or blouse styles, and one-piece coat effects.

Prices, $25.00 to $55.00.

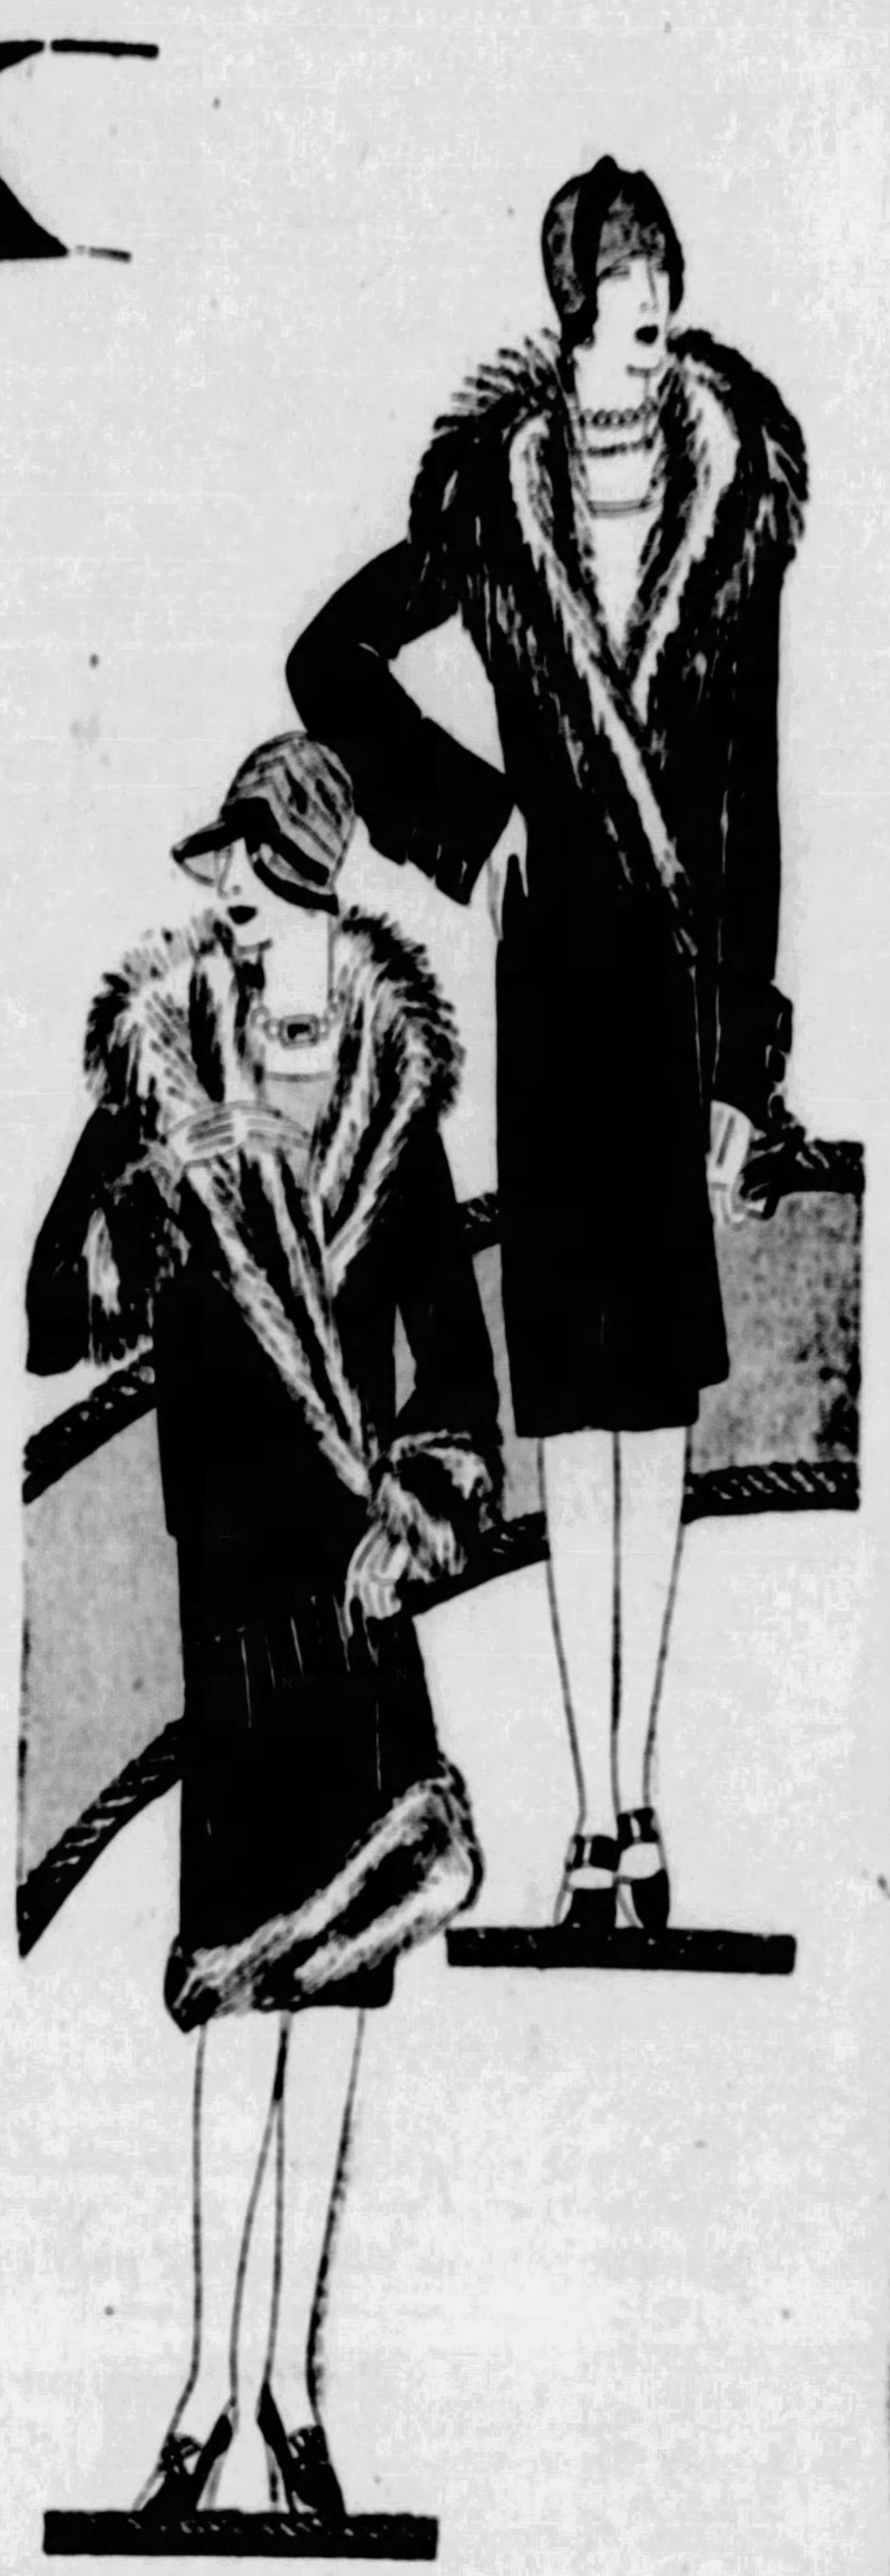
BLACK



"At Least One Black Coat in Every Wardrobe—"And When There Is But One Coat, Let It Be Black"

THE ABOVE voices the advantages of the black coat, which is the coat that Paris approves, the rich coat, the coat that practically every woman can wear with becomingness and some with a grand gesture, the coat that one can wear two seasons without its becoming tiresome or conspicuous.

There is great diversity of models for both women and misses at the following three moderate prices; and also coats for large and small women are included at the latter two prices named:

$59.50 $79.50 $125.00

Black Coats with Black Fur
Black Coats with Brown Fur
Black Coats with Shaded Furs
Black Coats with Gray Fur

Because of our belief in the effectiveness and the practicability of the black coat, we have made unusual preparations, this season, to present it in both our Women's and our Misses' Coat Sections.

RUTH PILOTS PLANE OVER PARIS

ENJOYS BEING BACK IN AIR ONCE MORE

By International News Service.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Realizing a growing desire to get at the controls of a plane before she left Paris, Ruth Elder took off secretly from Le Bourget Field this morning for a flight around the city.

With her was George Haldeman, and the plane they took up was the same Potez machine in which they flew here from Bayonne.

Fulfillment of Miss Elder's ambition to pilot a plane before she left for America was made possible by the International News Service, which arranged the flight.

After an hour and five minutes of flying over Paris, Ruth and Haldeman landed at Le Bourget. They took off at 9:45 a. m. and returned at 10:50.

As their plane neared the field, two military planes which escorted Ruth's flight, looped the loop about the American's plane in an aerial acrobatic salute.

Upon landing Haldeman jumped from the plane first and immediately 200 officers and men of the field battalion gave evidence of the world-famous gallantry of Frenchmen. The whole 200 surrounded the Potez plane, all of them offering to assist Ruth to the ground.

The two-score or more officers and men nearest the plane finally were successful in assisting her down. Dressed in a brand new leather flying combination loaned to her by Commandant Weiss, Ruth stood still for a moment while the admiring soldiery cheered.

Miss Elder hurried from the flying field to her hotel, where she removed her flying clothes, including the now famous plus fours she wore on her overseas flight. Then she quickly dressed in one of her new Paris frocks for luncheon at the American Club.

Both Miss Elder and Haldeman were received by the Senate Aviation Committee at the Luxembourg Palace and were heartily congratulated.

They plan to sail for America Saturday.

ARMSTRONG ILL, SON TAKES STUMP

A new factor entered the political campaign last night when Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., took the stump for his father, who is ill. The younger "Joe"—not the youngest, because there is a Joseph G. Armstrong III—made his first political speech at a First Ward Republican meeting, where he received an ovation.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, a close personal friend of Commissioners Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, will come to his home city tomorrow night to speak for the Republican candidates. He will appear at a mass meeting in Turner Hall, South Thirteenth street. Councilman Daniel Winters will preside. Joe, Jr., is scheduled to speak at the same gathering.

Two sections that delivered heavy majorities against organization candidates at the primary were invaded by the Republican campaigners last night—Wilkinsburg and McKeesport. The speakers included John M. Lindsay, president of Wilkinsburg Council; Burgess C. F. Langley and Dr. W. J. McGregor. Roy Bostwick presided. The McKeesport rally was featured by the appearance of Senator W. D. Mansfield and former Congressman W. H. Coleman, political enemies, as speakers for the Republican ticket.

20-YEAR TERM GIVEN PITTSBURGH BANDIT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—A sentence of not less than 20 years nor more than 40 in the Eastern Penitentiary was imposed by Judge Lewis in Quarter Sessions Court today on Charles Scott, Negro, of Pittsburgh, who pleaded guilty to shooting Samuel Baker, a merchant of this city. Scott entered Baker's store two weeks ago, leveled a pistol at the proprietor and demanded the money in the cash register. Baker sprung at the intruder and the Negro fled, firing three shots as he ran from the store.

U. S. '26 INCOME 90 BILLION

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The American people had an income of nearly $90,000,000,000 last year, an increase of nearly $27,000,000,000, or 43 per cent, since 1921, according to figures made public by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

"This income indicates the highest standard of living for the population as a whole ever attained in this or any other country," said the bureau.

"This great increase in income is not the result of an increase in price level, for the average price of direct or consumption goods was actually slightly less in 1926 than in 1921," the bureau said.

"Average income per person gainfully employed" was shown to be $2,010, against $1,537 in 1921.

FACTS
Taxpayers of Allegheny County
McGOVERN SAYS:
"After the bore of the (Armstrong) tunnel approached to within 100 feet of Forbes Street, it was again discovered that to continue in the direction laid out by the Department of Public Works, the County would have to acquire title to the 60 feet adjoining the 61 feet 1½ inches, on the west, but shame of their accomplishment led the Board of Public Works to alter the line of the tunnel so as to make a curve to the right to bring the portals on the 101 feet 1½ inches, purchased for that purpose."
News Article in Pittsburgh Gazette Times, March 23, 1927.
The Facts Are
The line of the tunnel as it now stands is exactly that filed with the Grand Jury four and one-half months before actual construction was begun.
The curve in the tunnel saved Allegheny County $320,000 estimated by the Engineers, in property damages upon Hermes Dairy Warehouse.
It prevented a sharp intersection with Forbes Street and met the approval of the Committee on City Plan.
It tends to check racing by reckless automobile drivers. A squad of motor-cycle police is required in the Liberty Tunnels.

Goitre Came Back
After Operation, T. R. Watson Tells How He was then Relieved by Colorless Liniment.
T. R. Watson Forty Fort, Pa., says in his own home paper, the Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader: "Three years ago I was operated on for three goitres. One year ago, my neck began bothering me again. Became worse until I could not work. Bothered by choking, heart fluttering, eyes bulging, coughing, headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness. After using Sorbol Quadruple one week I had great relief. Now you can hardly notice anything wrong with my neck. Will tell or write my experience."

DRUG EDUCATION CONFERENCE OPEN TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—A nation-wide campaign of education to combat the use of habit-forming drugs will be started by the first conference of committees of the world conference on narcotic education and the International Narcotic Education Association, which begins a three days' session today at the Hotel Roosevelt.

Special services will be held in churches of all denominations here next Sunday, where invitation has been accepted to participate in the conference educational program.

The principal business before the conference is the adoption of a draft of a proposed uniform state narcotic defense law. The draft has been prepared and will be submitted to the gathering by Capt. Richmond P. Hobson of Los Angeles, president of the International Narcotic Education Association. Members of the two organizations from all parts of the United States will attend the gathering.

In calling the conference, Capt. Hobson pointed out that in the preparation of the draft for a uniform anti-narcotic law it should be remembered that such laws should be correlated with uniform city ordinances controlling the prescribing, dispensing and distributing of habit-forming drugs. The conference also has in view the enactment in the future of uniform national and imperial narcotic defense laws, as well as international treaties and conventions with Canada and other foreign countries.

The conference will continue this evening with a mass meeting at which Capt. Hobson will preside and submit his report. This will be followed by addresses by physicians and other experts on narcotics.

Tomorrow there will be a morning and afternoon session, at which the proposed model law will be presented and discussed by Capt. Hobson, Judge Frederick H. Allen and Dr. John M. O'Connor. Tomorrow's sessions will be followed in the evening by a banquet at the Hotel Roosevelt. Discussions will be continued at two sessions on Saturday.

BETHEL MINER DIES BETWEEN COAL CARS

Grady Hyatt, 34, was killed instantly yesterday when crushed between two coal cars at Mine No. 3, Bethel Township, a property of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation.

Romance ends when FAT begins

IMAGINE Mary Pickford fat and forty. Picture lovely Norma Talmadge clumsy and gross.

You can't. It would be unthinkable. Also it would be inexcusable—for in this day of science fat is as needless as it is ruinous.

Thousands know about Rite-Wate. Friends have taken these pure vegetable tablets with astonishing results. Youthful health returns. Fat simply disappears. And all this without weakening diet or exercise. Rite-Wate aids nature. It works in a normal way. Druggists recommend it. Users prefer it to all other correctives.

RITE WATE
PURE VEGETABLE TABLETS

Important: Rite-Wate contains no thyroid or dangerous drug. Sold in $1 and $5 sizes at all May Drug Co. Stores.

FINE FOR CHILDREN!

Give them a good start in life, with happy smiles and healthy little bodies. Children need a mild corrective occasionally to regulate stomach and bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a safe vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. They tone up and regulate the eliminative tract. Not a nasty cathartic or a habit-forming medicine, but a safe, pleasant remedy for constipation, sour stomach, torpid liver, bad breath, and similar disorders. Dr. Edwards, a widely known family physician of Ohio, prescribed these tablets for many years in his own practice. Children from six years up are greatly helped by them and like to take them. Recognized by their olive color. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets overcome these irritable spells that many children are subject to, keep their bodies in active healthy condition, skin clear and eyes bright with the light of perfect health. 15c, 30c and 60c sizes.

A Double treatment for Headache

Rub forehead and temples with Vicks; also melt in a cup of hot water and inhale its healing vapors. This clears the head and usually brings quick relief.

If headaches are continuous a physician or good oculist should be consulted.

PULLED AROUND BY HAIR, WIFE TESTIFIES

Dragged by the hair across the floor a few weeks after her baby was born and otherwise abused by her husband, Gilbert Payne, was the story of Ruth B. Payne in her divorce proceedings against him, heard in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Payne, who lives in Bellevue, was married in 1922. She said her husband choked her and otherwise abused her. She was to have gone to the hospital for an examination six weeks after the baby came, but said she was ashamed to go because of marks on her. There were no corroborating witnesses, Mrs. Payne testifying that their quarrels occurred only when they were alone. The divorce action is not contested.

James A. Wilson of Sandy Creek accuses his wife, Florence Wilson, of cruel and barbarous treatment. He claimed she struck him on the head with a flagpole, kicked him out of bed, insisted on his getting the meals and hurled a pot of soup at him.

Libels in divorce were filed as follows: Lewis A. Bedell against Dora K. Bedell; William Johnson against Bertha Johnson; Edna M. Lightner against John L. Lightner; Edward M. Cupples against Hazel A. Cupples; John J. Ewing against Frances Ewing; Gertrude Colbert against Ray Colbert; Helen Klein against Louis Klein; Bertha E. Kuise against Harry C. Kuise.

KLINE TO WELCOME VISITING CLAN OFFICERS

Mayor Charles H. Kline will welcome the visiting officers of the Royal Clan, of the Order of Scottish Clans, who will attend a Western Pennsylvania clan rally Saturday evening in the Moose Temple, Penn avenue. The rally will be preceded by a parade led by the Bag Pipe Band. Andrew Carstairs of Clan MacPherson and John Watson of Clan Scott are chairmen of the committee in charge of the rally.

Start the Day Right

Don't be envious of the glorious health of Grandpa.

You can get that "Kruschen" feeling of cheerfulness, of freedom from fatigue, of enduring energy and vitality.

In spirit and ambition the old boy is just as young as he ever was. His health is as robust, his enjoyment of life as keen, in spite of his 60 years. Old age he knows not.

Follow his example and more and more as the days pass by you'll appreciate the great blessing that the joy of living brings.

Drop two tablets of Kruschen Salts in your coffee or tea every morning—you can't taste it but the effects are almost magical.

If you are a hot water drinker, you can more than double its health value by the addition of two tablets.

It's the little daily dose that does it. 60 Tablets 60 cents—at McCulloch Drug Co. stores and druggists everywhere.

Piles Disappear Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in hundreds of cases with a marvelous record of success, such a wonderful record that HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from May Drug Co. today. It has given quick and lasting relief to thousands and must do the same for you or money back.

Things to Know Before Baby Comes

During expectancy and at childbirth many muscles, tissues and nerves undergo great strain and tension. Much of this suffering may be avoided by simple means. The method is not a new thing. It has been successful for over three generations. Tonight! apply Mother's Friend to the abdomen, back and hips. It relieves tension and soothes the nerves. Do this each night and you will be amazed how effectively Mother's Friend aids the muscles and tissues to expand more easily during expectancy.

"Everyone was surprised how well I got along," writes Mrs. Alfred E. Ammon, Mur[illegible], Ind. "My pains disappeared after using Mother's Friend and I was sick only an hour and a half at baby's birth."

Start using Mother's Friend tonight and write for free booklet on "Things to Know Before Baby Comes" (sent in plain envelope). Mother's Friend is sold by all druggists—everywhere.

WIFE DIES BY TAKING POISON

MEXICAN RAILROADS TO BE REORGANIZED

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 3—A complete reorganization of the Mexican National Railways is expected to result from the visit of Sir Henry Thornton, head of the Canadian National Railways. After Sir Henry has inspected the systems and made his report, it is believed the President will have definite plans to announce,

Note Tells Mate She Is "Not Worth Tears"

After writing a pathetic farewell message to her husband, Mrs. Katherine Rodgers, 31, of 1200 California avenue, swallowed poison which caused her death early this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital.

"Don't grieve for me! I am not worth it," was the substance of her message in the form of a letter to the husband, Charles Rodgers, a bridge builder, now employed at Perth Amboy, N. J.

Mrs. Rodgers swallowed the poison in the bathroom at the home of Ray Tadder, at 62 South Sixteenth street.

The letter follows:

"Am writing this to bid you goodby. Don't grieve for me. I am not worth it. Believe me—I am not worth it.

"My one great failing is loving you too much, or is it myself. Selfishness has been my downfall. I am so sorry. More sorry than I can say for everything.

"Your Loving Wife,
"K."

DEATH ROLL

Artificial Teeth now easy to clean

The sticky slime on plates and bridges is hard to remove. Food sticks in it and ferments. It is unsanitary, unclean. A liquid which dissolves this slime has been discovered at the Mellon Institute, University of Pittsburgh. It is called Mu-Sol-Dent. Nothing equals it. One bottle will convince you. THE NEW NOTE IN MUSIC

A New Instrument . . . at a new low price!

The AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE! Two instruments in one: an exquisite Baby Grand piano, plus the superb Ampico reproducing action—and both for the price of a fine baby grand alone! In all musical history never such an opportunity!

AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE

For your own playing or for your children's lessons, the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE provides a Baby Grand of great distinction. Rich and mellow in tone, it is beautifully fashioned of satin-brown mahogany, inlaid with delicately contrasting woods. As a baby grand alone it offers unusual value. Yet, to its fortunate owner, the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE brings enjoyment far beyond that of a regular baby grand, for concealed in its depths is the marvelous Ampico action. The world's great music played by the master-pianists. Every tone, every shading, every subtle touch of genius is re-created for the delight of your guests. For your children it is a veritable school of music. And at your dances—irresistible melodies.

All in all, the Ampico belongs in your home—and the new AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE can place it there. It costs nearly $500 less than any Ampico Grand ever offered before. And the price includes a monthly recording service . . . Our monthly budget plan makes its purchase easy. Stop in and examine this remarkable new instrument today!

OUR PAYMENT PLAN
You may have the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE delivered for a sum so moderate that it can easily be met out of current funds. The terms are convenient—two whole years to pay, if you wish. Your present piano accepted in exchange.

"MERCY MURDER" WAVE STIRS ENGLAND

Nurse, Poisoner, Held As Mother Dies

TONBRIDGE, England, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Felicia Waite died here today of arsenic administered, police said, by her daughter, Mrs. Margaret B. Delvigne, 34, in England's second "right-to-kill" case within a fortnight.

Mrs. Delvigne was arraigned Tuesday on the charge that she had given the poison to relieve her mother of terrible suffering from malignant cancer of the liver.

Mrs. Delvigne was a war-time nurse. Her mother was the wife of S. M. Waite, one of the leading hops grower in Kent county, famed for the hops that makes most of England's beer.

Police announced at Mrs. Delvigne's arraignment for administration of poison to her mother that she had made a confession in which she said:

"I gave my mother arsenic to save her from weeks or months of agony she would otherwise have suffered before she died of malignant cancer.

"I am sure I have done the right thing."

Mrs. Delvigne was committed to jail.

ANOTHER CASE

Recently a jury acquitted a laborer who in the last "mercy murder" had drowned his 4-year-old daughter to end her suffering from consumption complicated by pneumonia.

Widespread advocacy of painless death for persons suffering from incurable ailments has followed recent "mercy murders."

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, a physician and scientist, besides a world-famous novelist, is a leader.

"Legal authority should be furnished," he said in discussing one case, "for the painless removal of any person whom three independent physicians had certificated as suffering hopelessly.

"But this should be done only at the request of the sufferer, when capable of making such a request, and should be checked not only by three medical certificates, but possibly by a justice of the peace as well.

"When I was in medical practice I remember a case that impressed me deeply—where a monster had been reared by quite a poor family. It was a creature hardly human, a torment to itself and a horror to everyone around.

"Oh, if God would only take it!" cried the mother.

"It was 17 years of age.

"A terribly deformed child always, in my opinion, should be removed."

Do this for me—

take S. S. S. before each meal regularly—and you will soon have your appetite back.

So much depends on your appetite—your strength and vitality — your position ... our happiness.

Remember, how it used to be when you could hardly wait for mealtime? And then, sit down and eat several helpings of everything—enjoy every morsel and get up from the table feeling satisfied with the World, happy with everybody and ready for anything.

But what a difference in living when even the sight and smell of food sickens you! Never hungry—no matter how tempting the food is—nothing tasting right. And then, after nibbling at a few bites, feeling worse than ever.

Oh, life is hardly worth living this way. And yet, all in the World the matter with you is that you are starving for rich, red blood. It is acknowledged everywhere that S.S.S. helps Nature build these healthy red-blood cells by the millions!

All you need to do to get back that wonderful appetite is to build rich, red-blood cells with S.S.S. It's simple. Just try it, like thousands are doing every day. See for yourself what S.S.S. will do.

S.S.S. means blood with a punch—brimful of new life and energy. Get your S.S.S. at any good druggist. The larger size is more economical.

PROSECUTION DELAYS SUNDAY SYMPHONY CASE

Trial Must Start Nov. 9 Judge Warns "Blues"

Failure of the prosecuting Sabbath Association of the Pittsburgh Area to have its case ready for presentation today in County Court brought another of the many postponements of the blue law battle about Sunday symphony concerts.

WEDNESDAY FINAL DATE

After more than an hour of star chamber argument of counsel, Judge Richard A. Kennedy, to whom the case had been assigned, set Wednesday as the trial date with a warning that the court would brook no further delay. The case is an appeal of nine members of the society from conviction before a justice of the peace.

Inability to obtain their witnesses was given by Attorney William H. Pratt and John Robert Jones, of Philadelphia, counsel for the Sabbath Association, as the reason necessary for delay. They then proposed counsel agree on a statement of facts, argue contested points before a judge, and then go into court December 1 to argue the accepted statement on the technical points of law involved.

WITNESSES MUST APPEAR

This was partly agreed to by Attorney John M. Freeman, counsel for the defendant members of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society. Final agreement was to accept Wednesday as the trial date, to agree on certain accepted statements of fact, but to present testimony from witnesses to support the cases.

The defendants are George E. Benson, treasurer of the society; Richard S. Rauh, secretary; Elias Breeskin, associate conductor; Edward Specht, manager; Bert Floersheim and Wilmer M. Jacoby, members of the executive board, and Max R. Seifert, Israel Weinstein and Homer Ochsenhirt, members of the orchestra committee.

HEATS GASOLINE ON STOVE; HOUSE BURNS

MARLINTON, W. Va., Nov. 3.—Pouring gasoline, instead of water, into a pan on the kitchen cook stove, resulted in the destruction of the home of N. D. Carter, at Slatyfork. Mrs. Carter told one of her sons to fill a pan of water on the stove and the boy used gasoline. The fluid ignited and the house was destroyed.

WEST MIDDLESEX BOY KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

DOLORES DEL RIO

Edwin Carewe, film director, asked Vera Lewis, playing a character role, to slap Dolores Del Rio, star of the picture. Miss Lewis slapped—and Production has been halted until Miss Del Rio is able to return to work in Hollywood. She has a loosened back tooth and a swollen cheek. A bracelet worn by Miss Lewis is blamed.

THIEVES ESCAPE AFTER 4 HILL ROBBERIES

Four buildings were entered by burglars in the Hill district and adjacent neighborhoods early today, and the thieves were attempting to force their way into another house when surprised by police, whom they eluded after a chase.

Miller's jewelry store, 1719 Fifth avenue, was entered by forcing open the rear door, and $12 and four watches, valued at $5 each, were taken.

In the case of the three other places known to have been entered, the robbers jimmied the front door. The extent of their pillage has not been ascertained. The houses in question are those of Fred Leopold, 409 Center avenue; J. B. Cullen, 469 Center avenue, and J. Lipis, 611 Forbes street.

A patrolman observed two men tampering with the front door of the Martin pharmacy, 3614 Fifth avenue. As he approached, they fled. The policeman pursued, but they escaped.

An investigation disclosed that the doors of the other places named had been forced open.

No Excuse to Stay Thin Now!

Gain Flesh

Real, "Stay-There"—"Pep" Flesh, This Easy Way!

Legions Are Doing It, Why Not You?

Don't stay thin any longer! Don't have people saying behind your back, "poor skinny." Because you can now gain flesh and weight this new and pleasant way—positively!

No more need you stuff yourself by overeating. No more need you take disagreeable, stomach-upsetting oils and exhausting exercises. Because science now knows why you are too thin, and how to help nature build sturdy flesh, easily and quickly. And your health improves with it!

The reason most people are thin or underweight is, their blood doesn't collect enough fat and tissue-building material from the food they eat. The more they eat, the thinner and more weak and delicate-looking they seem to become. But just let them begin taking two CODLIFE tablets after each meal, then watch the fat develop—the good, sturdy flesh that fills out hollow cheeks and eyes, scrawny neck and skinny arms and legs! The highly concentrated fattening substance in CODLIFE tablets mixes with the food you have eaten, makes inactive digestive organs come to life and work. Then the flesh and tissue-building material in CODLIFE and the food you have swallowed is absorbed by the blood and distributed throughout your system and body, instead of constantly passing through and out of your intestines without doing any good.

Therefore, if you are thin or underweight, frail, weak or lacking in strength and power of endurance, get some CODLIFE tablets and take them as directed, without delay. Sold by all good druggists throughout Pennsylvania. May's, in this city, can supply you.

Why be Fat?

When so many people, all about you, know an easy, pleasant way to reduce.

In every circle you enter now, slenderness prevails. Excess fat is the exception. New health and vitality has come with this reduction. Ask anybody who has found the way, and he or she will urge you to adopt it.

This change has not been brought about by abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. Research men discovered, some two decades ago, a cause of excess fat. It lies in a fault in nutrition which calls for an extra supply of some factors.

The help they suggested was embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. Now people have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. And everyone knows people who can tell them what this method does.

At one time people feared Marmola—the results were so amazing. Now every box contains the formula, also all scientific reasons for the good results. And fear has been abolished.

Users of Marmola take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. They gain at the same time new vitality and health. And they know exactly why.

Go try Marmola. Do not suffer any longer the blights of over-weight. And do not think that reduction means starvation. Try what people have for 20 years been using with such results. You owe that to all who love you.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Why McGovern and Shields Should Be Elected County Commissioners

For the first time in years the people of Allegheny County have an opportunity on November 8th, next, to regain control of their County Government WITHOUT CHANGING THEIR PARTY AFFILIATIONS. The political machines are without defense to the desperate situation in which they now find themselves as a result of BALLOT BOX STUFFING, ELECTION FRAUDS, WASTE, AND INEFFICIENCY.

These questions cannot be waived aside or downed by the present County Commissioners remaining silent:

1. WHY have the present County Commissioners refused a County audit by Certified Public Accountants?

2. WHY did the present County Commissioners increase their Department of Public Works payroll from $1,483,127.46 in 1923 to $2,670,203.06 in 1926? An increase of 80%.

3. WHY have the present County Commissioners allowed public improvements to cost the people more than 30% above contract prices?

4. WHY have County taxes increased 60% in the last four years?

5. WHY did the present County Commissioners allow their clerks to have hundreds of thousands of dollars of the County's money in unbonded private checking accounts until stopped by Controller McGovern?

6. WHY did the present County Commissioners permit their clerks to sign payrolls for other county employes amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, until stopped by Controller McGovern?

7. WHY did the present County Commissioners permit the use of County trucks, material and labor in private enterprises?

8. WHY have the present County Commissioners used thousands of dollars of the people's bond money for purposes other than those voted by the people?

9. WHY did the present Board of County Commissioners allow the Board of Tax Revision to cost the County $479,089.87 in 1926?

10. WHY have the present County Commissioners permitted the Pennsylvania Underwriters' Association to write 43% of all contract bonds and 42% of the County's insurance during 1926—as against a field of twenty-nine competitors?

11. WHY do not the present County Commissioners, who so widely advertise themselves as builders, explain to the people why they built up the annual pay roll in their own office from $62,997.70 in 1923, to $132,120.51 in 1926?

12. WHY has the County's business not been audited in eighteen years?

These are some of the many questions in the minds of the people and which the COUNTY COMMISSIONERS HAVE NOT ANSWERED.

The issue of this Campaign is whether there shall be honesty, efficiency and a square deal for the people in the County Commissioners' Office.

Party regularity, party harmony, National and State issues are not involved in this election. It's the people's fight, and McGOVERN and SHIELDS are asking to be elected County Commissioners by ballot as shown below.

LINER SINKS BOAT WITH 150

16 Killed as Ferry Is Crushed in Sydney

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The peaceful decks of a plodding ferryboat were thrown into an uproar of horror and death today when the boat, carrying 150 persons, many of them school children, was crushed beneath the bow of the steamship Tahiti, outward bound for San Francisco.

There was a terrific explosion and timber was hurled in every direction, while the ferryboat settled rapidly and sank within three minutes.

Ten bodies had been recovered this afternoon. Fifty persons were treated for injuries, while the number of those rescued could not be definitely determined since scores of small boats sped to the scene and picked up survivors, carrying them to scattered points along the harbor.

Belief that some passengers had been trapped in the cabins led to the fear that at least 16 lives were lost in the tragedy.

When the Tahiti struck the ferryboat there was a grinding crash and most of the boat's passengers were thrown into the water, struggling and crying for help. The Tahiti put out small boats to pick up the survivors, as did other boats in the vicinity and the work of rescue went on rapidly.

The Tahiti, after picking up all those it could find in the waters, continued on her voyage to San Francisco.

Your Smile and Your Teeth

Simple New Dental Method Restores Cloudy Teeth to Gleaming Whiteness

THANKS to modern dental science, it's been found that teeth seldom are naturally off color. Most often they are simply coated with a dingy film which ordinary dentifrices do not successfully clear off. That's why brushing has failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel that film now—a slippery sort of coating. It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites germ growth, tooth decay and gum troubles. For health's sake and for beauty, you must remove it.

Today, in place of using an old-type dentifrice, get the film-removing paste called Pepsodent which dental authorities now so widely urge. You'll find, to your own surprise, that your teeth gleam like jewels, that your gums take on a healthy, coral tint—your smile gleaming and wonderfully attractive.

Obtain Pepsodent at your druggist. Costs only a few cents. Or send coupon for 10-day tube free to try. Do this for your own sake.

THREAT WRITER SENT TO JAIL

Pleading guilty to sending defamatory letters to President Coolidge, members of the Supreme Court and Congressmen during the Sacco Vanzetti agitation, Edward J. Kutchera, 25, of Mount Troy road, was sentenced to two months in jail by Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson today.

FRANCIES TURNS OVER $31,000 TO SUCCESSOR

Former Clerk of Courts John Francies today turned over to his successor, Samuel J. Topley, about $31,000 of cash bonds filed in the office. The transaction was completed in Quarter Sessions Court before Judge James R. Macfarlane, with Arthur G. Drumm, auditor, representing the County Controller.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES OUTCASTS, SAYS M'ARDLE

Both Independent party candidates for county commissioners sought other offices at the primary and were repudiated by the Republican voters, Councilman P. J. McArdle said at the noon meeting of the Regular Republican organization today in the Hotel Henry. "Reduced to its lowest terms," he said, "this opposition comes from those who did not survive the primaries." C. B. Connelly presided.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Debs Hold Sway as Miss Anne Virginia Pugh, Week's Fourth "Presentee" Makes Bow at Tea

ANNE VIRGINIA PUGH, daughter of the Claude Freeman Pughs of Thornburg, will be the week's fourth "presentee," socially speaking, making her bow at a tea to be given Saturday in the Twentieth Century Club by her mother and her aunt Mrs. Woodward Scott Shaw. Anne will arrive from Wellesley College, where she is a senior, tomorrow. Mrs. Pugh has asked her mother, Mrs. William Hart Latshaw of Atlantic City and Pittsburgh to receive with her, and she has asked Mrs. William J. Holland and Mrs. George E. Shaw to pour. Close friends of the debutante and hostesses who will serve as aides will include Mrs. Henry Hart Latshaw, Mrs. George Lawrence, Miss Emma Zug, Mrs. Howard Shaw, Mrs. Paul B. Straub, Mrs. Robert Clinton, Mrs. Albert M. Harper, Mrs. Lee Holmes Marshall, Miss Alice Marsh, Mrs. William McKinney, Mrs. Herbert Burchinal and Mrs. Benjamin Dangerfield, Jr.

Grandmothers have become what might almost be termed a "fad," meaning of course, no disrespect to the estimable ladies, who have always existed, but suffered temporary eclipse during the term of popularity of their daughters and granddaughters—especially during the debut winter of the latter. Last year several women "brought out" their granddaughters nominally, with the mother the invisible power manipulating events.

This year four very well-known women will be concerned in no small measure with the social season through debutante granddaughters. Two of the four have two granddaughters "coming out." Mrs. Harvey Childs, Jr., of Kipling road, will have as her guest during most of the winter her daughter's daughter, Miss Jane C. Foster, child of the Charles Addison Fosters of San Mateo, California. The debutante's mother was Miss Gertrude Childs, who spent her own childhood and girlhood here. Sharing the attention of the Childs' family circle—a very wide one—as well as their group of friends, with Miss Foster, will be her cousin, Miss Mary Childs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Childs of Albermarle street. Both should be much feted if the experience of Miss Childs' sister, Miss Alice Walton Childs who was one of the popular debutantes and cotillion leaders of the 1924-25 season, is repeated.

Mrs. George Vardy Marshall of the Hotel Kenmawr is another grandmother with a double duty to perform during the coming season when a duet of her descendants will make their first appearance—technically speaking—in the grown-up world. Mrs. Marshall will give the "coming out" tea herself for the girls—Anne Louise Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Holmes Marshall of Dunmoyle street and Nancy Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hamilton of Beaver street, Sewickley, in the Twentieth Century Club, the afternoon of November 12. Anne Louise was graduated last June from the Misses Masters' School at Dobbs Ferry, New York. Hr cousin, a college girl, is a student at Smith, who will come home the day before the tea, and leave again the Sunday night following it. Their families plan other affairs, and in a crowded calendar, are trying to adjust them to accommodate the college girl's Christmas vacation.

The third grandmother who plans to present her son's child, is Mrs. Herbert DuPuy of Morewood avenue, who has selected December 29 for a tea dance to present Eunice, daughter of the late Col. Charles Meredith DuPuy, and of Mrs. William Avery Atkins of Indianapolis.

Mrs. William Scott, in presenting her granddaughter, Anne King Scott, daughter of the J. King Scotts of Devon road, January 2, makes her second appearance in the role of "presentor" of a debutante. Last year she introduced another daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Elizabeth Lupton Scott.

Mrs. Elmer B. Thomas is general chairman of the annual ball and bridge party which the members of the Pittsburgh Chapter of National Park Seminary will give Thursday evening, November 17, in the Schenley Hotel. The proceeds of the affair will be used for the Children's Home Society at Edgewood, which is sponsored by the alumnae, of which Mrs. John G. Klingensmith is president. The committee includes Mrs. Henry Holmes, Mrs. John Conwell, Mrs. Charles W. Ward, Mrs. Ernest R. Braun, Mrs. Geter C. Shidle, Mrs. Robert Alderdice, Miss Harriet Hespenheide, Mrs. Lysle Linderman, Mrs. Calvin V. Sailor, Mrs. William Laird, Mrs. Bradley Gibson, Mrs. John Provost, Miss Elizabeth Farquhar, Miss Esther Anawalt, Miss Anne Sussman, Mrs. J. The marriage of Miss Jessie Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Moore of Brentwood, and Dr. Edmond P. Heath of Fredericktown was solemnized Saturday morning by the Rev. W. L. C. Samson. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marie Moore as maid of honor and by Miss Elizabeth Heath as junior bridesmaid. Arthur Davis was his uncle's best man. Mrs. Paul Long played the wedding march. After a motor trip in the East Dr. and Mrs. Heath will be at home in Fredericktown.

A rummage sale will be held by Liberty Chapter No. 118, Order of the Eastern Star, Friday, November 11, in the old roller skating rink, Broad street and Larimer avenue. Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson and Mrs. Ada Duff are in charge of sales. The transportation is being cared for by Mrs. Mollie Owens and Miss Sara Anthony. The cashiers are Miss Jane Rodemoyer, Miss Evelyn Hilliard, Miss Nora Galer, Miss Margery Galer and Miss Ada M. Davies. Miss Inger Whitfield has charge of the publicity and Mrs. Marion W. Young is worthy matron of the chapter.

BEAUTIFIER HELD AS THIEF

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 3—Miss Jean Hoover, 20, of 322 Washington street, New Castle, proprietor of a beauty parlor, is in the Butler county jail, charged with stealing two diamond rings, one valued at $900 and the other at $400, from Mrs. John S. Winner, of Prospect, a small town nine miles from Butler.

According to the state police, who arrested Miss Hoover, she was visiting Herbert Winner, nephew of Mrs. Winner, at the latter's home on October 2. After her departure the loss of the rings was observed and the police notified. Their investigation led to the apprehension of Miss Hoover, who, they say, admitted the theft. She pawned one of the rings for $250, it is alleged.

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED WHEN CLOTHES IGNITE

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 3.—Miss Letty Ullom, 22, a member of the editorial staff of the Wheeling Telegraph, died yesterday from burns suffered Sunday when her clothing was ignited from a gas stove in her home here.

RINEHART GETS SLAYER FREE

HARRISBURG, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The plea of Dr. S. H. Rinehart, Washington, formerly of Allegheny county, before the State Board of Pardons last week for the release of Angelo Jackson, Negro, former gardener for Dr. Rinehart and his wife, Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, was successful, it became known when the board's recommendations were announced.

Jackson has served 20 years for the killing of Gertrude Nichols for which he was convicted of murder in the first degree. He had had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The murder took place near Jackson's home in Allegheny county, after, he claimed, the woman had threatened his life.

THE NEW NOTE
IN MVSIC
THE AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE

Startling Price News!

That new Baby Grand you plan to buy her—will it be the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE? It can be—easily. For the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE, providing glorious recreated music, can be had for the price of a fine Baby Grand alone!

With This Announcement

the AMPICO is brought easily within your reach. For the price (which includes a monthly service of recordings) is NEARLY $500 LESS than any AMPICO Grand ever offered before. We urge you to see and hear this truly amazing instrument.

NEARLY $500 LESS!

THE AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE is really two instruments in one: a mellow-toned Baby Grand for her own playing, plus AMPICO, the world's finest reproducing action . . . Satin-brown mahogany to blend with and to enhance her other furnishings—a superb design that does honor to the craftsmen who labored on it. And a tone deep and clear—to do full justice to the artistry of the master-pianists whose playing both of you will wish to hear. If there are children in your home they need the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE. And, of course, it provides irresistible dance music.

Once she has seen and heard the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE it will be hard to content her with just a fine grand piano. Luckily, the SYMPHONIQUE costs no more than that, and hence is well within reach of even the modest income—through our monthly budget plan. You owe it to yourself, and to her, to hear the AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE.

Recitals

and demonstrations every afternoon. Evening appointments gladly arranged on request.

Call Fairfax 2600.

Our Payment Plan

You may have an AMPICO SYMPHONIQUE delivered for a sum so moderate that it can easily be met out of current funds. The terms are convenient—two whole years to pay, if you wish. Your present piano accepted in exchange.

IT NEVER PAYS

A GRIPPING STORY OF MARGIE—WHO TRIED TO TRICK LOVE

By Gilbert Rogers

Jerry Arrives at Martin's And Margie Hides; Her Ruse Fails to Work

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Margie Marsh comes to New York with a thousand dollars and a wonderful education. She keeps house with four other girls, learns stenography and decides after three years to marry. She fails to find her ideal, and Dan Shevlin, a shrewd man of the world, offers to introduce her into smart society through a Mrs. Brooke, provided Margie will give him some security. This security consists of a note which he dictates and Margie recklessly signs, to the effect that she loves him and will never regret the six months she has spent with him. Through Mrs. Brooke she buys wonderful clothes which Shevlin pays for. Mrs. Brooke opens her cottage in Newport and Margie meets her brother, Mark Trelaw, a cripple. She scores a success with rich Tubby Wells and discovers he is secretly married. This information greatly interests Shevlin. Mrs. Brooke confesses she is in Shevlin's power and Margie begins to feel very uneasy. She has met Jerry Evesham, a poor young man, who greatly attracts her. She goes aboard Tubby Wells' yacht in her bathing suit. He makes violent love to her and she dives off the boat and is rescued by Jerry, who confesses he is mad about her. She realizes she is in love at last. She tries to break with Shevlin, but he persuades her to meet the very rich Adrian Martin. Mark Trelaw warns her against Shevlin. She confesses to Jerry that she is as poor as he. Under unusual circumstances she meets Martin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

NOW it did seem to her she had done a foolish thing, for away from the lights and the crowd and the music, the heavy sardonic man lolling at her side seemed more formidable, less to be believed. But he couldn't hurt her—ridiculous, to be afraid to go to his house, and chat for half an hour! He wouldn't listen to her under any other conditions, and in half an hour she felt she could, by asking ever so cleverly, better Jerry's position 10 times.

The house was English rennaissance. It sprawled long and low with mullioned windows and stained wainscoting, a magnificent house, too big for any bachelor. He guided her into an old room hung with tapestries and armor and big iron lanterns, a room like a king's dungeon, she thought.

Now that they were here, he looked really indifferent, almost as if he wished she hadn't come. To interest Adrian Martin—that was the task Dan Shevlin had set for her! To interest a man who had had everything and wanted nothing, who was so wise about the world that he was not even curious. . . .

However, he drummed up a dry humor for her benefit. "We'd better have champagne—isn't that the thing you expected? Alone, with a notorious man, drinking champagne at the dead of night. Oh my, oh my!" He held up his hands and pretended horror.

A servant appeared. The champagne was poured. He filled the glasses, touched hers. "To my speedy reformation. . . . What the deuce? . . ."

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

"What gentleman?"

"Mr. Evesham. Just arrived from New York."

"Send him in!"

Margie had leapt to her feet, her panic in her eyes. "Oh, let me go—don't let him in here—it will be difficult to explain. He might not understand. You see—"

Adrian Martin looked at her whimsically. Her flying glance lighted upon a screen of Spanish leather in the far corner.

"I—I don't want him to see me here!" she explained. One impulse had led to another. She slipped over to the corner and hid. Then she wished she hadn't. She should have stayed where she was. But there were things you couldn't explain. And this joke would look like grim earnest to any one else. She wished a thousand times over she hadn't done this thing. She was trying hard not to breathe as Jerry came into the room.

CHAPTER XX.

THE leather screen guarded the dark corner where Margie crouched. Why had she hidden, she asked herself fiercely. It was like lying, to Jerry—she'd tell him—tell him some time when he'd understand. Only now she mustn't be discovered—for now it would look like guilt indeed.

What a mess she had made of things. Coming here, like this, with the wild hope of persuading Adrian Martin to do something for Jerry. She could hear their voices, low-pitched, scarcely audible across the distance of the long room.

"South America . . . the mine . . . Gonzales says . . . the man's crazy . . . you'd better see him at once . . ."

Phrases and bits of pharases now and then reached her ears, as Martin raised his voice, or Jerry spoke more clearly.

"Then I'll go down again—right away." It was Jerry's voice. "Only I've got to have a better contract this time."

"Suppose you handle the situation first. We'll talk about contracts afterwards."

A pause. "All right. Six months—I can settle it in six months." Then a long silence, broken only by the sound of footsteps as if someone were walking up and down, thinking. The footsteps came nearer, receded, came nearer again.

Margie held her breath, lowered her head, as Jerry passed in front of the screen, his hands in his pockets, thinking hard. He turned on his heel, stopped, looked . . . There was a horrible second.

Not a word from him, yet the air held his accusation, his stare of bitter astonishment. With a little shiver, Margie rose and walked out.

She met his eyes. "I—I—" she began. But she could not go on, could not face that terrible blazing look. She stood helplessly. Adrian Martin, in a deep wing chair, glanced on with eyes of cynical amusement.

"Tell him," she begged, "please tell him . . ."

But Jerry made one angry movement. "Sorry to have walked in on you at this moment!" he said harshly. "Would'nt have taken up your time. Good night."

She tried to call to him, tried to halt him, but her voice had deserted her. She stood there, sick and despairing, hearing the outer door close on its massive hinges like the knell of her fate.

"Jerry," she was trying to say to him. "Jerry, I only wanted to help you, to do something for you. . . ." But those were unspoken words, and he was not there had she been able to say them. Margie's dismay rose in sudden fury against Adrian Martin, who could sit there and smile, smile with keen relish at her distress.

"Oh I—I loathe you!" she exclaimed. "You don't know what you've done. I—I tell you. . . ."

Hysteria—it trembled to the surface. And a look of intense annoyance crossed Martin's face. He rose slowly. There was a suggestion of power about the way he moved, a look dark and sinister in his eyes, so that the words died in her. A man who was capable of anything—she knew that now. Under his sleepy pretense, there lurked something frightening and ruthless, as Carlotta had hinted.

But his voice was as quiet as ever. "I rather think the place for you is home. You'll find my chauffeur outside."

She caught up her evening cape and sped past him. She was scarcely conscious of stepping into the car, rolling up to Mrs. Brooke's driveway. She only knew that as she lay in bed at last she could not sleep.

Over and over she argued, pleaded, explained to Jerry, lying there, wide-eyed, in the darkness. He had been cruel, unfair not to trust her! And yet he didn't understand. How could she really blame him? To be found hiding, alone at night, in Adrian Martin's house—oh, it wasn't going to be easy to explain the mood in which she had done that! But she would explain, she would convince him. Tomorrow when he called up . . . Because, of course he would call up. She would see him, tell him the truth. If he loved her, he'd believe her. She could tell if he loved her now. But why had it happened anyway?

The next day Mrs. Brooke was chattering away about the dance, discussing her adventures. . . . "Robert Bradon flirted with me . . . old fool . . . can't stand him . . . you did go home early. . . ."

But Marjorie hardly heard. She was listening for something else, for the tinkle of the 'phone, Jerry's voice . . . The 'phone rang again and again . . . bridge dates . . . gossip . . . messages for Carlotta. Not a word from Jerry.

Marjorie grew silent and scared. She felt too miserable to cry. Wouldn't he even try to see her?

Night came. She couldn't stand just doing nothing, nothing. She went for a walk, strolled past Mrs. Farrington's house, with its lights, its look of activity. Then past it again. Perhaps Jerry had 'phoned while she was out. She hurried home again. No, no one had called. "Quite sure?" "Yes, perfectly sure."

She told Carlotta she had a headache, went up and lay down. Did he expect her to call him up? Perhaps she should. Perhaps she should have done that in the first place! But no, she wouldn't call him up. She'd write him a little letter—a formal little letter that would save her pride.

"My dear Jerry . . ." Four, five, six sheets, all different, all scrawled and smudged, all ending in the scrapbasket. He didn't love her, what was the use, he didn't love her! She flung herself down on the bed, sobbing, with hard sobs that hurt and shook her.

She'd forget him. No use making yourself miserable all your life on account of a man who didn't care for you the least bit

Princeton Trustees Vote Down His Plan—He Thinks of Resigning But Reconsiders and Resolves to Fight On

The bulldog tenacity of Wilson the country came to know during his occupancy of the White House was given a severe test in his historical struggle as president of Princeton University, as told yesterday in "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" in the Sun-Telegraph. Against the warnings and advice of friends and in the face of bitter opposition he fought on and won a partial victory.

Wilson Meets Defeat

THE regular fall meeting of the Princeton board of trustees took place October 17, 1907. Every one knew it was to be a momentous occasion, the first opportunity to discuss Wilson's proposals since they had been approved in June. There had been a number of conferences beforehand and a lively private canvass of the situation. A strong feeling existed that the passions engendered were splitting the board, endangering the university.

Many of the trustees were eastern men, residents of the large cities, where they came into contact with the blustering club element of the alumni. Moreover, they were generally alarmed over the financial problems which confronted the university.

Much money was required to support the new preceptorial system; must more for new buildings, and West and Cleveland were demanding, strenuously, the support of their plans for a graduate college. It was also the year of the 1907 panic—almost indeed at the height of it, and some of these men were closely associated with the great financial interests. It was a time of alarm and anxiety—for caution, not expansion.

Great pressure was, therefore, brought upon Wilson, even to the point of veiled threats by certain powerful contributors to the university that if he forced his proposals at that time their financial assistance in necessary university expenditures would cease.

Suggestions were also made that he compromise and build a "sample quadrangle" on the campus to test out his plan—one of the trustees even offered to furish the money for it—but he considered that this course would avail nothing since such a quadrangle would be filled by men not in the clubs at all and the real problem would not be met. He thought such a proposal merely a device for dodging the issue, a method he hated.

Board Against Wilson

When the trustees met, therefore, Wilson anounced that the committee on social co-ordination had no report to make. Pyne promptly offered the following resolutions:

"1. That the action taken by the board in June be reconsidered.

"2. That the board do not now deem it wise to adopt the recommendations made by the committee and that the president be requested to withdraw the plan.

"3. That the committee be discharged."

The vote was immediately taken: with every member voting for it except one—Dr. John DeWitt. In June every member except one had approved the plan!

It was a fearful blow to Wilson—the hardest he had ever had to meet up to that time. It had divided the institution, it had broken friendships. To save Wilson some of his embarrassment, however, and to ease the situation before the public, it was voted, Dodge moving and Pyne seconding, that the following statement be issued:

"The board, having reconsidered its action of last June, has asked the president to withdraw his plan and he has withdrawn it. The board fully recognizes that the president's convictions have not changed, and have no wish to hinder him in any way in his purpose to endeavor to convince the members of the board and Princeton men that this plan is the true solution."

Such a promise to let him talk gave Wilson no comfort. He felt that the action of the trustees amounted to deliberate defense of a way of life in Princeton University which defeated its primary purpose. He never for a moment considered giving up the fight, but he did think of resigning from the university. Wilson's hesitation was indeed only momentary.

His plan of campaign became at once clear. He was always thinking in terms of "responsible leadership," always of an "appeal to the country." It was to be an "appeal to the country"—the constituents, that is, of Princeton. It was the pressure of that constituency that had frightened and routed the trustees. He would go to them, reason with them—convince them. In the mean time he would not carry the fight further in the board or in the faculty—for it would accomplishing nothing whatever. In these quarters there must be a "healing silence"—until he could come back with the alumni behind him.

Many Alumni Behind Him

In the course of the struggle he had begun to receive much encouragement from alumni who knew the situation well. Certain of the rich Eastern groups would oppose him, but the mass, and the Westerners, would support him.

"There is no doubt," wrote David B. Jones, "about where the great mass of our alumni stand on this question, and the obstruction narrows itself down to the club men who so largely contribute toward the support of the university. If Mr. Pyne thinks it best to withdraw his support, I shall be very sorry, but I shall be infinitely more sorry to see the university dominated by the club men of New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh."

Here we see Wilson driven more and more to the democratic issue: being prepared for the greater struggle in American politics into which he was soon precipitated. The schooling he himself was setting—bitterly, drastically—was priceless. It was not only in the clarification of his vision of the real "enemies of American democracy," but in the strategy of the struggle itself. He was learning by experience for the first time how men acted when under political, social or conomic pressure; he saw vividly the problems, mistakes and dangers confronting the leader—lessons that were to prove incalculable in future years.

". . . as compared with the college politician, the real article seems like an amateur," commented Henry B. Needham afterward.

In November Wilson was in Tennessee, later in Maryland and early in December in Indiana, speaking before alumni and educational associations. He was in a hotly rebellious mood:

"You know that with all our teaching we train nobody; you know that with all our instructing we educate nobody."

On January 18 Wilson sailed for Bermuda, hoping to secure a real rest. He was suffering from his old enemy—neuritis. He did not, unfortunately, put aside his work entirely. There were lectures to write! From there he wrote to his wife:

"Bermuda is certainly the best place in the world in which to forget Princeton, at least Princeton as an organization and a problem; it would in any case afford me the most soothing rest; but a bit of work is tonic needed. It keeps the blood moving aggressively. And, inasmuch as my knee keeps me from taking much exercise out of the house, this piece of business inside the house is all the more wholesome and opportune."

His Return to Princeton

Wilson returned to Princeton on February 27, 1908. He was still suffering great discomfort from his neuritis.

But he plunged at once into the quad campaign—complicated now by the growing controversy over the graduate college. In March he made extended trips, speaking at Baltimore and Chicago, and in Wisconsin and Connecticut.

But the struggle from this point onward grew steadily more difficult. The controversy over the graduate college was becoming more intense, tending to occupy Wilson's attention. His health was again precarious, and in June he sailed for Europe.

"I have found the last year so very hard with me," he wrote to Cleveland H. Dodge. "I feel, as you know, blocked in plans upon which I feel the successful administration of the university, both as a teaching body and as a wholesome society, depends, and for which I can find no substitute, and in these circumstances it has been a struggle with me all the year to keep in any sort of spirits. I must try, as you must, to divest my mind of the matter altogether at least for the summer."

Whatever unhappiness Wilson may have felt over the defeat of his quad proposals—and it was bitter indeed—his struggle seemed actually to increase his prestige, and if it made him enemies it also bound his friends, who understood the absolute sincerity of his purpose, more strongly to him than ever before, friends who were later to do yeoman service in his political campaigns. How men love a fighter!

His record at Princeton was also bringing him distinguished honors in the greater world. In January, 1908, he was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters; he had become a member of the board of the Carnegie Foundation; he was more than ever on call for addresses at distinguished gatherings; he was tempted to accept college presidencies elsewhere. He was being more and more considered as a possible political leader. His attitude for a time made him unpopular with influential groups of students, especially those connected with the clubs, and yet they could sing at commencement the faculty song:

"Here's to Wilson, King Divine,
Who rules this place along with Fine;
We hear he's soon to leave this town
To take on Teddy Roosevelt's crown."

The Job to Be Done

He was, moreover, right when he declared passionately to the Chicago alumni in March:

". . . I want you to understand what the penalty of my sitting down is—somebody else has got to do the job; it has got to be a systematic job, and it has got to be thoroughly done."

The evils were there, and must sooner or later be met. Many friends of Princeton clearly recognized this fact.

It is significant that 10 years after Wilson's struggle President Hibben was attacking the flagrant abuses of the club system. Richard Cleveland, a son of Grover Cleveland, then a student at Princeton, denounced the clubs and vowed never to join one of them.

Seventeen years later, soon after the death of Woodrow Wilson, the problem again arose, more bitter than ever. A committee appointed by President Hibben made a long report that might almost have been written by Wilson himself. Said "The Princeton Alumni Weekly" May 21, 1924:

"It was felt by all representative Princeton undergraduates that the system had become intolerable. So strong was this conviction that a petition was signed by the president of the senior class, the managers and captains of all athletic teams, the chairman of "The Princetonian" and the presidents of all the clubs, requesting President Hibben to abolish 'bicker week.'"

The report expresses dissatisfaction with the club system and gropes for a similar remedy.

The little world of Princeton will yet accept her prophet!

But the majority of those in authority at Princeton was too strong for Wilson. In tomorrow's installment it will be seen that he was for a time victorious in his fight for democratization against the exclusive expensive graduate building, but then the tide turned against him.

Jerry Arrives at Martin's And Margie Hides; Her Ruse Fails to Work

. . . Oh, why had she ever been born?

She felt she was someone different in the morning, someone with her face, her voice, her gestures, but feeling oddly different. "I shan't ever love again . . . I never could love again . . . I guess nothing matters."

She felt despondent but she did not struggle any longer. She had fought it all out. She would forget Jerry, she would try to forget him.

Mrs. Brooke had an errand or two in the town. "Let me. I'd like the walk," Margie said.

She started out with no hat on her dark hair, and a pale green sweater around her shoulders. She sauntered into the square, down towards the main street. The station was in view, a little crowd of figures thronged the platform. Then something ran through her like an electric shock. Jerry—it was Jerry standing there! He was leaving! He was going away! She would never see him any more!

But she knew that, she knew that already! Why was she trembling so? Then the whistle of the approaching train sounded, and all at once without thinking, she went flying down the street, careless of what she looked like, running as if her life depended upon it.

He was climbing the steps. She stumbled up after him.

"Jerry! Jerry!"

He turned to look into her white, anguished face.

The train gave a lurch and started on its way with Margie on board.

CHAPTER XXI.

SHE stood there facing him, swaying on the platform, holding on, as if she were hanging on for life itself.

And Jerry's eyes did not leave her face. They were grim, cold, accusing.

The train was gathering speed, rocking on its way. Why had she jumped on, why? With a man who hated her. He must hate her. His eyes said that he despised her.

She fought for self-control, struggled to hide her misery. But his eyes . . . his eyes looking at her like that . . . Desperately, with the hard, hurt sobs of a child that has been punished, she began to cry.

"Don't! For God's sake! Look—there're watching us. Do you want everyone to see?"

Panicky, the way a man would be, because people might see, be[illegible] his precious dignity might [illegible]hted . .

[illegible] can't help it. Oh—I wish [illegible] dead! Everything unfair [illegible] don't even give me—give me [illegible] chance!"

Margie, please! Please stop! Come back into this other car. We can't stand here like this."

She followed him miserably, her eyes downcast, so that people wouldn't notice. But they were looking at her. And he was embarrassed, uncomfortable. She loathed herself for being so weak. She gulped back the last sob, sat next to him in the rear seat of the car, folded her hands, looked straight ahead, not saying anything, not thinking even.

Dignified—you couldn't be dignified, sitting on a train without coat or hat or bag, next to a man who scorned you, and not knowing where you were going.

She felt angry at him, angry because he had made her make a fool of herself. And now there was nothing to do but stay where she was. But he was looking at her. She pretended not to notice.

"Why did you jump on this train?" Men—they asked questions you couldn't answer, questions that had to be ignored, or met with lies.

"I had to go to Fall River. It just happened I—I saw you."

"Oh, then, you didn't jump on because——"

She was dry-eyed now. Her voice was steady, cool." Because why?" she asked.

"Because I was getting on?" he finished bluntly.

She paused, with a little flickering, amused smile. "You really thought that? You really thought I—? Oh!" She laughed.

"What were you crying for, then?" He was scowling. She ached to touch his forehead with her fingers, smooth away that frown, tell him she loved him and no one else and never would love anyone else, tell him that only by making him happy could she make herself happy, too.

"Oh, I don't know. I'm a crybaby. I weep over anything. Why one day I cried five times for five different reasons."

He nodded. He looked a little cruel now. "I can't imagine you crying over anything except a disappointment—in one of your—your love affairs."

The words came out with a snap. She winced, and her hands gripped each other. How could he, how could he say a thing like that? It was brutal. She'd never forget, never. And she'd never forgive him . . .

"Tickets, please, tickets." The conductor came slowly on his way.

Sally felt feverishly . . . her purse. She hadn't brought one.

"I—my money—I forgot my money."

Jerry gave her a swift look. She saw him paying.

"I'll send you the money right away. It's awfully kind of you." She was speaking, but it didn't seem her own voice, not her very own . . . the little cool, formal, meaningless phrases.

He shook them off. "You did get on this train because you saw me! You weren't going to Fall River or anywhere else!"

The tears—they came welling up into her eyes again. She struggled hard. She mustn't make a fool of herself, not a second time. But her little tragic voice faltered and gave her away:

"Jerry, how could you—how could you say that—about—about my having love affairs? When you know—"

"Know? What do I know? I saw you in Adrian Martin's, didn't I? Hiding. Late at night. With Adrian Martin. You didn't go there to discuss Greek poetry, did you?"

"You're horrible—horrible. I—I never could hate anyone the way I hate you now."

To Be Continued.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Katie Recounts a Strange Adventure to Madge

I REALIZED two things as Katie triumphantly announced her discoveries concerning the red-haired and red-bearded man who with an even more disreputable-looking companion had taken the Grimsey shack back of the farm. One was that it was not safe to give my little maid any direction which afforded her any latitude of action—she was altogether too likely to interpret it in the weirdest fashion. The other was that if I listened to her, I virtually should be spying upon Dicky's visit to our mysterious neighbors.

My first instinct was to stop her revelations at once and send her back to her room. But the remembrance of Dicky's laughter-filled eyes when he came back from the shack, and his air of enjoying a joke which he did not mean to share, bolstered my argument to myself that after all his visit had been no affair of his own, but one which concerned me as well. He had gone simply to find out for himself and me what danger, if any, there was for Junior in the proximity of the men to the farm. I could have gone with him had I insisted. Therefore, there was no reason for me not to listen to my little maid's story except the fact that by so doing I should condone her eavesdropping.

But Katie would no more realize that I was condoning it than she could understand that her action was reprehensible. I had told her to find out what she could about the red-bearded man when we had had a visit from that mysterious individual. She had interpreted the mandate literally and had brought me the fruits of her quest as innocently and eagerly as a friendly puppy would deposit a cherished old shoe at the feet of his mistress.

So stifling a few stray qualms which persisted in raising their heads, I smiled at her excitement.

"Tell me about it, Katie," I said encouragingly, "but slowly, so I can understand what this is all about. Where did you see this man?"

"Oop by woods dose side of Meester Grimsey's shack," Katie responded, promptly. "You know vot fine greens grow oop dere, dose curly dock, so in afternoon ven my vork all done und my dinner all feexed ready pop on, I tink me I go oop dere and get mess of greens. I vos in dot nice grass place between bushes und place vere vrod lot begins—you know."

I nodded, heroically repressing a comprehending grin. It was only too transparent—the manner in which Katie had concealed herself in a spot which commanded the path between the farmhouse and the shack, and waited for developments.

"Maybe five, ten meenits, I see dot red-bearded bird coom down path from shack, looking all round everyvere as eef he expected see somebody. Den he seet down on dot beeg stone—you know in meedle of grass mit leetle trees in ring."

I nodded again. Indeed I knew the place very well. A circle of small locust trees enclosed a grassy place in the center of which was a huge boulder. Often I had sat upon it while Junior played in the pretty and sheltered place. And I realized that it was an ideal place for a meeting which was not meant to be observed.

"You see," Katie went on grinning, "I not so far avay und I could see troo bushes, but you bet I keep still as leetle cat vaiting for mouse, und pretty soon I see Meester Graham coom along swinging dot steeck shoost as eef he out for valk. But you know vot I teenk?" She put her eager face close to mine.

"No, Katie, I haven't the slightest idea," I assured her truthfully.

"I teenk Meester Graham expect see dot man und I tink mans expect see Meester Graham."

"What makes you think so?" I asked, realizing that my little maid's sense of the dramatic must be fed by questions.

"Because," she replied, "ven Meester Graham get inside dot ring of trees, dot red-bearded man joomp oop. Den he trow heemself down, knock hees head tree times against ground, und he say, 'Praise Al'—somebody. I couldn't catch last name, 'Praise Al; Al be praised.'"

"At night all cats are gray" is an old proverb, but it is equally true that in the daytime, in Paris, most coats are black. Black cloth coats, trimmed in flat black fur, are extremely smart. Caracul and seal trimming is favored, being used in numerous striking ways, such as deep shoulder capes or rippling front flares.

MAN HIT BY CAB DIES; DRIVER ARRESTED

John Kunkel, 58, of 535 Avery street, died this morning in the Allegheny General Hospital from internal injuries suffered last night when he was struck by a taxicab in East Ohio street. Louis Nevins, 40, of 330 Ella street, driver of the cab, was held for the coroner.

Two girls were injured when an automobile in which they were driving with another girl and three men fell into a hole 10 feet deep in Highland avenue at Kirkwood street early today.

The victims are Grace McDermott, 21, of 7456 Upland street, and Sue Haigh, 18, of 216 Main street. Both were removed to the Pittsburgh Hospital, where it was found Miss McDermott had concussion of the brain and a contusion of the left knee, and Miss Haigh a bruised nose and a cut on the left leg below the knee.

The driver of the car, W. A. McCracken, 21, of 5625 Hays street, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

The hole was dug by workmen of the Duquesne Light Company repairing a gas line. A watchman told police there were four red lanterns around the excavation, but that McCracken paid no heed to them. The left rear wheel went over the edge into the pit, it is said.

Other occupants of the car were Helen Bowes of 1527 Tyndall street, L. G. Baldwin of 813 South Braddock avenue and William Cariston, 2727 Bryn Mawr street.

Max Fox, 45, of 1344 Main street, Sharpsburg, and Theodore Blupowski, 14, of Noble street, Sharpsburg, were taken to St. Margaret's Hospital last night suffering from injuries received when a wagon in which they were riding was struck by a motor truck. Fox is a huckster. The boy was accompanying him. Fox's left leg is crushed. Blupowski's injuries are of minor character.

Three persons were injured this morning when an automobile skidded on a slippery pavement and crashed into a steel column of the Manchester Bridge. The victims are Miss Mary Dittmer, 30, of 321 Kennedy avenue; Miss Ruth Ames, 32, of 315 Kennedy avenue, and George F. Shannon, of 364 Kennedy avenue.

Miss Dittmer suffered a severe laceration of the right thigh and her nose was almost torn from her face. Miss Ames suffered from shock. Both were taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. Shannon went to the Mercy Hospital where it was stated he had suffered only slight injuries.

SKIDDING CRASH

The first snow fall of the season was responsible for an auto accident in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, at 5 o'clock this morning, in which two men were injured. A truck skidded and crashed into a telephone pole.

Clifford Noel, 23, of Euclid avenue, Greensburg, helper on the truck, suffered internal injuries and cuts about the head and body. R. W. Schreck, 26, of Greensburg, owner and driver of truck, was cut on the head and face. Both were taken to McKeesport hospital.

En route to work at 6 o'clock this morning George Frizska, 53, of 461 White street, McKeesport, was struck by a hit-and-run driver and suffered a fractured skull. He is in McKeesport hospital.

FORBES ST. POOLROOM WRECKED BY VANDALS

Joseph H. Kenny, poolroom proprietor of 3814 Forbes street, reported to the police that his place had been entered last night and wrecked. Cues were broken, chairs and tables were smashed, cloth table covers were slit and the floors were hacked. He says the damage exceeds $1,300.

Nerves—Nerves

Mrs. [illegible] Hildebrand, Box 1[illegible], Lafayette, O., writes: "It was a glad day when I sent for the sample of Wheeler's Nerve Vita-Liver. I was so bad and nervous I jerked and shook like a leaf. With the first dose of your medicine, I began to feel like myself, and I sleep so good. All say, 'How much better you look.'"

Send 10c to J. W. Brant Co., Dept. [illegible], Albion, Mich., for a large free trial of this wonderful sleep producer and you can then get the regular size at most any drug store at $1.00 a bottle.

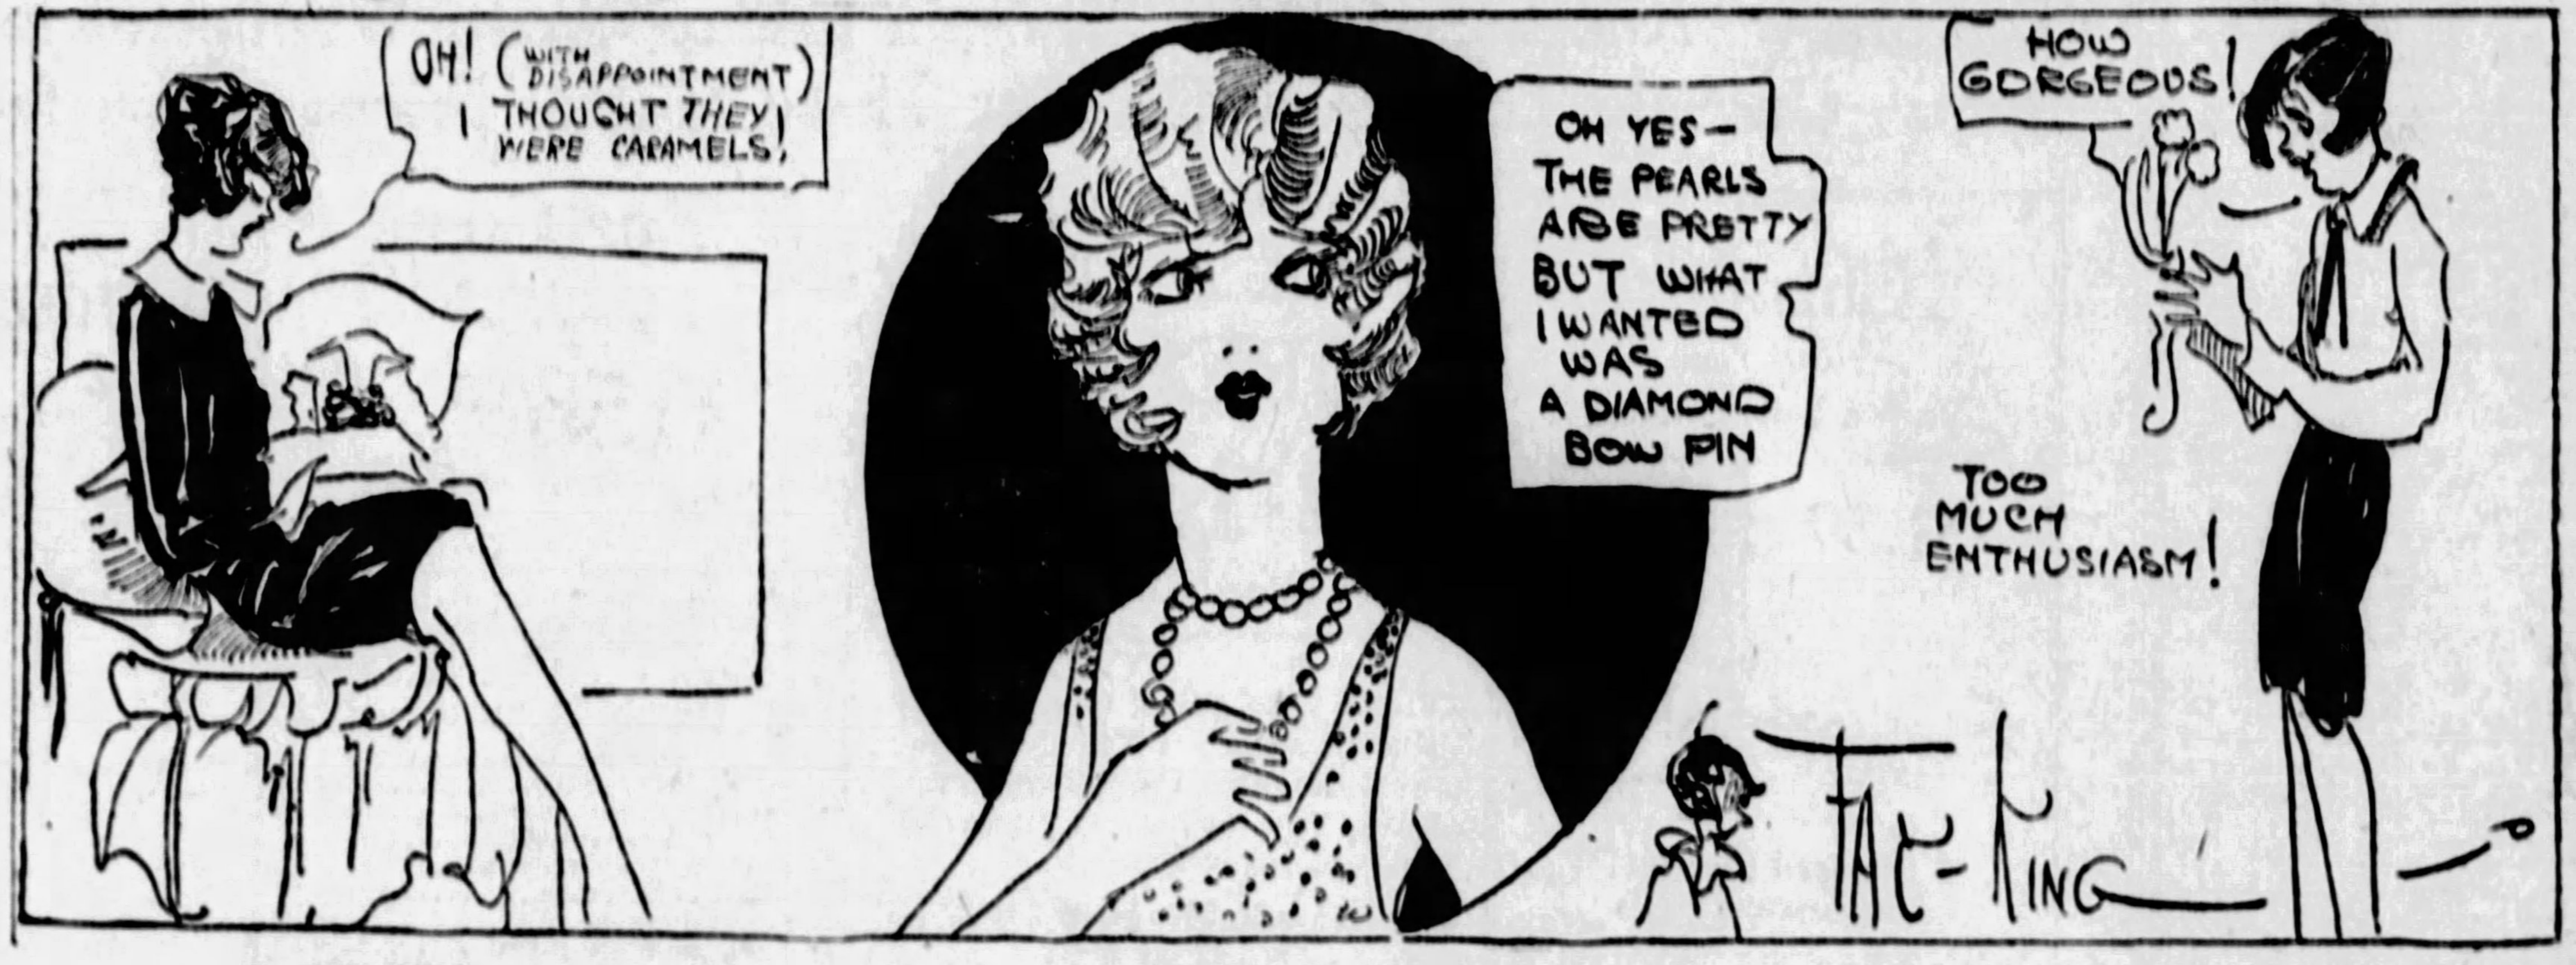
Canned Whale Meat Finds a Market

TINNED whale meat, it is reported, has become an established commodity along the West Coast of Africa, where the entire stock of whale meat caught off British Columbia during last year was sold.

Fay King Reveals Gentle Art of Grafting



OH! (WITH DISAPPOINTMENT) I THOUGHT THEY WERE CARAMELS!
OH YES— THE PEARLS ARE PRETTY BUT WHAT I WANTED WAS A DIAMOND BOW PIN HOW GORGEOUS!
TOO MUCH ENTHUSIASM!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

GRAFTING is one of the gentle arts in which some women excel to a great degree.

One might say of them that the grafter is born, not made.

The gift for grafting often shows itself at an early age. It is distinguished by its suppressed enthusiasm and well-directed disappointment.

For instance, if the girl whose first beau brings her a box of candy, and she receives it with a certain air of expectancy instead of surprise, she shows the first signs of artistic grafting.

If, when she opens the box, and seeing that it contain chocolate creams, she looks a bit disappointed and declares she had hoped it was caramels, she shows marked potentiality in the art.

She would have preferred chocolates had it contained caramels.

And therein lies the secret of her success.

Unlike the since and guileless sister, who feels she should show the greatest enthusiasm over any small kindness, the artful grafter smothers her pleasure and delight under a mantle of disappointment.

In this way she leaves the giver feeling he should immediately give another gift that will please her more!

The art of hinting, receiving and thanking are the rudiments of success in grafting.

To be a successful grafter one must never be enthusiastic or satisfied with any gift, no matter how beautiful or how costly.

But few girls want to be grafters!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator from New York

Plain, Simple Food Averts Indigestion

AN Indiana lady asks for a "write-up" about indigestion, some of its causes and what is meant by "plain, simple food."

DR COPELAND

Foods which are not plain and simple, from my standpoint, are the expensive dishes served in night-clubs and "high-toned" restaurants. Mind you! I have no objection to these meals, provided they are taken when you are honestly hungry and really need heavy food.

If you have a good-sized evening meal, why should you need "lobster Newburg," "Welsh rarebit," "golden buck," "waffles and maple syrup," "club sandwich," or any other heavy and rich mixture? You don't need it any more than a cat needs two tails. It wouldn't be "plain, simple food" anyhow.

I have no objection to any one of these dishes taken in moderation, at the proper time, by a person equipped to digest it. Much depends on the individual.

Not so very long ago I told a high personage that sausage, buck-wheat cakes and maple syrup make a proper mixture for a hard working farm hand, but that it is impossible for a man leading a sedentary life. The man sitting at a desk and doing no manual or strenuous physical labor cannot make proper use of such rich foods. Certainly they are not "plain and simple foods."

Rich gravies, highly seasoned sauces, sweet-breads, fried pork, sauerkraut and fat meats cannot be called plain and simple. They are not good for dyspeptics or those inclined to any form of indigestion.

What do I mean by plain and simple food?

Let us begin with breakfast! Fruit in some form is desirable. The breakfast foods made of whole grain, served with small quantities of sugar and whole milk, rather than cream, are correct. Eggs in some form, preferably coddled, poached or soft boiled, are excellent. Toast and, if there is a longing for something sweet, a little honey, are proper additions.

Thin soup, fruit or vegetable salad, beef steak or roast beef, potatoes, except fried potatoes, another vegetable, and a simple dessert will make a good mid-day dinner or an evening dinner.

The "lunch" or "tea" should be simpler.

The meat can be varied and occasionally fresh fish or poultry, except fried, can be substituted. But I do not approve of giving the dyspeptic two kinds of meat at the one meal.

Over-eating is a common cause for indigestion. Bolting the food, without chewing it and mixing it with the saliva, is the first step in the development of indigestion.

The taking of fat foods, the omission of an abundance of exercise and drinking water, and the failure to respond to the calls of nature, are causes of constipation. Then comes the intestinal fermentation and poisoning of the system, so common in indigestion.

I need not mention abscessed teeth, pussy gums and bad tonsils. These are everywhere recognized as factors in indigestion.

I hope my Indiana friend will feel I have tried to answer her kind letter.

Answers to Health Queries

A. M. F. Q.—What causes my head to ache in back of my neck?

2.—What should a girl weigh who is 17 years old and 5 ft. 6 in. tall?

A.—Very often this is caused by indigestion. Correct your diet. For particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—For her age and height she should weigh about 125 pounds.

H. B. Q.—How can I get rid of pimples and blackheads?

A.—Correct the diet by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Almost always constipation or at least sluggish bowel movements are present. Eat bran muffins and drink plenty of water as aids to relieve congestion. For full details send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

T. J. M. Q.—What will help sore throat and tonsilitis?

A.—Have the tonsils examined first of all; if they are diseased they should be removed.

E. K. Q.—What can be done for ulcers in the mouth and a great deal of gas in the system? I have always suffered with constipation. I am nervous and suffer with my head, also poor circulation.

A.—Your trouble is due to acidity. Watch your diet, avoiding too many sweets, drink plenty of water between meals and keep the intestinal tract clear. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

So much more vigor

—when the system is cleansed of poisons we all have

Do you know that poisons form all the time in your system? They get into the blood stream and so rob you of the vigor, life, youth and energy you should have. Hardly anyone escapes them. Food wastes accumulate and fermentation takes place. As many as 36 of these ever-forming poisons are already known to science.

But nature has provided a natural sort of antidote. In a scientifically pure state this antidote is available to everybody under the trade name of Nujol. Nujol is a unique substance unlike anything else known to man. It cannot be absorbed by the body or any of the organs of the body. At the same time, it has an affinity for body poisons. It takes hold of them, absorbs them, and carries them out of the system safely and harmlessly. It also softens waste matter and brings about normal evacuation of the intestines. Gets rid of poisons, gets rid of food wastes, tends to heal and soothe irritated membranes. Contains no drugs or medicines. Absolutely harmless.

Perfected by the Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It's in a class by itself. You can take it with perfect safety under any conditions. It won't cause gas or griping pains, or affect the stomach or kidneys.

Every corner druggist has Nujol. Make sure you get the genuine. Look for the Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay, get Nujol today.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHY TABASCO SAUCE

NATURE would have to work overtime to make a woman as beautiful as those that the beauty parlors turn out every few minutes.

A man sometimes remembers a woman's first kiss, if he had enough difficulty in getting it; but it is always the woman who remembers the last kiss, whether it was one of regret or one of relief.

The man who never plays fair in the love-game is always cheating three people; the woman he is fooling, the woman he is kissing—and himself.

HELEN ROWLAND

Second marriage may be the triumph of hope over experience; but writing love-letters to a gold-digger appears to be the victory of optimism over senility.

The tired business man's conversation may sometimes rise a few notches above golf, stocks, cocktails and women; but the flight seldom lasts for more than ten minutes; then he grabs a parachute and leaps for the nearest dumbbell.

What a lucky man was King Solomon that there were no party telephones in those days where the other 999 could listen in!

The pen that touches the hearts of men is the pen that is dipped in the blood that flows from the wounds in the heart of the writer. But these days a man guards his heart so well that it seldom gets more than slightly scratched or dented. Hence, many wits—but few poets!

So often what a girl mistook for a man's sixty-horsepower devotion before marriage turns out to be nothing but sixty-mule-power determination after marriage.

Lots of people marry for what they fondly call "romantic love"—and then manage to stick together in spite of it.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Horoscope

Friday, November 4

Heaven is blest with perfect rest, but the blessing of work is toil.—VAN DYKE.

A LIVELY and eventful day is the augury based on the great activity among stellar bodies. Those in employment may push for preferment, recognition and advancement, as generally the energies will be under high stimulus and iniative alert.

There may be a sudden change and also some method of subtle undoing, but steadiness, prudence and patient toil should defeat all intrigue. But deal cautiously with corporations, trusts and secret societies.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively year, with the energies and initiative high pitched and courageous. But, while there may be new opportunities and advancement and honors, prudence and industry may thwart certain pitfalls and secret enmities.

A child born on this day should be lively, enterprising and adventurous, reaching high and responsible place by these qualities to which should be added prudence, industry and wariness.

Notable nativity: James Montgomery, Scottish poet.

Novelty Watches

In the nick of time appear the little locket watches that have a two-fold destiny. Such a watch, when worn upon a thin platinum chain about the neck, resembles a flat pendant, which quickly opens when the time is desired. When not being worn, such a watch can serve as a miniature traveling clock, for it is constructed with an easel-back arrangement.

—The kind you associate with the most expensive ingredients

Every woman knows that a cake made with a spread-for-bread is richer and better than if made with an ordinary shortening. But most housewives think it too extravagant. NOW, however, you can give your cakes a rich, mellow, spread-for-bread flavor simply by using Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine as a shortening. No need to resort to cheap prepared shortenings because the cost of GOOD LUCK is so relatively low that you can afford to use it for cake baking as well as on the table.

Cities Should Own Theaters As They Own and Run Schools, Is the Belief of E. H. Sothern

By GEORGE SEIBEL

HE MIGHT be a clergyman, he might be a professor, he might be a physician or a banker—the distinguished and alert gentleman with the silvering hair. As a matter of fact, he is an actor, and his name is E. H. Sothern. You have seen him in "Hamlet," or in "General John Regan," or in "The Prisoner of Zenda," for in his time he has played many parts.

Yet his appearance does not belie him. He is clergyman, professor, physician and banker—for it is from these viewpoints that he regards the stage.

GEORGE SEIBEL

"The theater," he told me, "will not reach its ideal until we have adopted the municipal theater idea in America. Every little town in Germany and France has its municipal theater. If there is a deficit, the city pays for it. In that theater the best plays are given at popular prices. The actors who appear in these plays get a chance to educate themselves in their art, a chance our actors under the present system do not have. As Eugene O'Neill has put it, 'an actor is created by the parts he is permitted to play.'"

"How many parts have you played in your career?" I asked him.

"About sixty. But Sir Henry Irving had played 600 parts before he came to London. That is no exaggeration—it is in Brereton's book on Irving. Now under our system I have played only one-tenth as many different parts. I have only one-tenth of Irving's opportunities, and so I could have a good excuse if some one tells me I am only one-tenth as good an actor. Seriously speaking, the state or the municipality pays for the upkeep of schools and universities, in many cases for art museums and symphony orchestras—why not for a theater, which also is an educational institution and serves an art?"

"Has it ever been done in this country?" I inquired.

"Individuals have attempted it. Edwin Booth built a fine theater in New York City, and lost a fortune. Public-spirited men built the New Theater, now the Century, and it went on the rocks. The trouble is that the artist is seldom a businessman, and the businessman rarely cares about art. It is the business of the community. In France and Germany the community accepts the obligation. American cities ignore it. A city may spend $55,000 on a reception for the Queen of Rumania or the Crown Prince of Ruritania, who mean nothing to the world. For $50,000 a municipal theater could have been subsidized to present a season of real drama. The French government pays only about $48,000 a year to maintain the Comedie Francaise, which has a free building also; $20,000 for the Odeon Theater, $160,600 for the Paris Opera. The Berlin Royal Theater used to get $50,000 a year, and the Vienna Burg-Theater $132,000. These figures vary from year to year, but they show what those cities are doing. And until we come to the same realization of our duty toward one of our greatest educational and artistic institutions, our theater will not be what it might be, and actors will be merely entertainers and theatrical managers will be merely businessmen."

Then Mr. Sothern fell upon his poached eggs a la Benedictine, which is the favorite midnight repast of the medical fraternity in Ballymoy.

Widowed Actress Faints On Film Set

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—Lina Basquette, who has been regarded as nothing short of a miracle since the death of her husband, Sam Warner, proved yesterday that there is a limit to human endurance. She went to work a week after her husband died and has been living on her nerves principally since that time. Yesterday, in a very emotional scene in "The Noose," she passed completely out of the picture in a faint that was not part of the scene. She was taken home and put to bed and told by her doctor to remain in seclusion for a few days.

A very interesting cabaret is now in process of construction on the Richard Barthelmess set in "The Noose." On the stage it was only possible to show the back room of a night club, but in the movies we have a full-fledged night club with cabaret, dancing, etc.

Sore Throat Spreads

Nothing is more quickly catching than sore throat. In the home, office or shop, one person gets it from another. Tonight—or even now—you may be the next victim.

And sore throat is only a symptom of something worse to happen. It is a red danger flag warning you that the germs of bronchitis, grip, flu, tonsilitis are multiplying in your throat. They irritate and inflame the throat, extending the soreness farther down into your bronchial tubes the longer you let it go.

Don't delay treating a sore throat. Every hour of neglect makes it harder to conquer. Stop it now—with GERM-ORAL. It kills the germs in the throat, stops the spread of the infection and ends the throat soreness—all in 1 to 2 days. Soothing relief comes with the first gargling. It stops the sneezing and coughing and makes breathing easy. Thousands of men and women use GERM-ORAL daily to end sore throat and prevent bronchitis, pneumonia, cold in the head, catarrh and pyorrhea.

Get GERM-ORAL at your druggist today. It is all antiseptic—so highly concentrated that just a few drops in water are sufficient. Only with GERM-ORAL do you get such quick and lasting relief from dreaded sore throat. There is nothing like it. You get absolute satisfaction from one bottle, or money will be refunded. If inconvenient to buy at drug store, send 75 cents to HOLLANDER BROS. DRUG CO., Dept. 54-R, Rankin, Pa.

Joan Dines With Cadets

NO, WE DON'T MEAN Joan of Arc, but Joan Crawford. Miss Crawford's latest picture is "West Point." OPERETTA STAYS THIRD WEEK

"My Maryland," the American operetta which has been smashing records in the Alvin for two weeks, will be held over for one more week to meet the huge demand, according to an announcement made last night by John B. Reynolds, manager of the Alvin. Originally booked for a week's engagement in Pittsburgh, the heavy sale caused it to be held for a second week and the unprecedented demand this week has now brought about another extension. Seats are on sale today for the third week.

Ann Milburn and Irving Fisher will be featured in the new musical comedy, "The Girl From Child's," coming to the Nixon next week. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday. Seats are on sale in the box office today.

From the tawdry finery of Sadie Thompson to the chic and up-to-the-minute smartness of a modern Parisienne is the step which Jeanne Eagles is taking when she comes to the Shubert Pitt next Monday night for one week in "Her Cardboard Lover," a comedy from the French of Jacques Deval. Seats are on sale today.

The Keith-Albee program booked for the Davis next week presents Mitty and Tillio, offering their latest dances. On the screen will be "The Poor Nut," starring Jack Mulhall and Jane Winton.

After this week's "Burlesque a la Carte" in the Gayety, Ed E. Daley's new production, "Bare Facts," will open with a Sunday midnight show. Seymour Brown of "Greenwich Village Follies" is the author of this frolic.

The Waner Boys, stars of Pittsburgh's baseball club, will appear in the Penn next week. The Waner brothers play instruments as well as chatter.

"Loves of Carmen," starring Dolores Del Rio, with Victor McLaglan and Don Alvarado, will be on the screen in the Grand next week. A stage program also has been booked.

Dan Fitch and his 20 minstrels will come to the Harris next week with their minstrel band, complete minstrel first part, street parade and other essentials of a minstrel show. The photoplay feature will be Rex, the king of wild horses, in "No Man's Law."

Mae Murray, whose latest starring vehicle is "Altars of Desire," is coming to the Aldine screen next week, with Conway Tearle in the featured male lead.

George Fares, a comedian, and Buster Sanborn, comedienne, are the principals in "Naughty Nifties," next week's burlesque in the Academy.

Vaudeville and pictures in the Sheridan Square next week will include Mildred Carewe and Her Girls in dances. Rin-Tin-Tin, in "A Dog of the Regiment," will be a photoplay feature.

"One Woman to Another," starring Florence Vidor and Theodor von Eltz, will be shown in the Olympic next week. There also will be a Vitaphone program.

Matinee Idol Has Gone Forever, Lowe Says

The day of the matinee idol type of hero has passed, according to Edmund Lowe, who plays the leading masculine role in the picture "Balaoo."

"Times have changed," Lowe asserted, "and photoplays have changed with the times. The hero has been shorn of holier-than-thou mannerisms. Producers have realized that they must hew closer to life.

"For that matter," he pointed out, "we must always remember that our stage and screen characters have character. These may be good, bad or in between. Few men are wholly good; none altogether bad. If they are human they will be some of each. It is far better for the director to show us a hero who has some weakness. He will then appear realistic. The idealistic hero is always unconvincing."

The cast of "Balaoo" includes, beside Lowe, Leila Hyams, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Norman Trevor, Barry Norton, Maude Turner Gordon and George Kotsonaros.

Only a Heathen Idol--But He Has "It"

"Maori Tiki" is going to work for Clara Bow hereafter. "Maori Tiki" is the god of "It" among New Zealand natives, and he dangles now from a silver cord around the neck of the young Paramount film star.

The little idol is of green stone, carved out laboriously by the natives. It was presented to Miss Bow by a friend who brought it to America. It formerly was worn by a New Zealand savage chief.

If the well known Bow personality seems to flame with more devastating effect in the actress' new picture, "Get Your Man," the heathen idol may be given credit.

Syria Mosque was sold out last night in spite of wretched weather. Marion Talley, who made a sensational debut at the Metropolitan Opera House some two years ago, was the cause of it all. In two years much has happened to Miss Talley. She has toured the country when not on duty in New York City, and gathered in many dollars. Instead of growing as a musician and an artist last night's singing proved that she has taken quite another direction.

Miss Talley must not be misled by the dollars and applause. If she jumped through a hoop at a circus the artistic results would be about on a par with her singing. She would receive as much applause. A year ago last May, Pittsburgh heard this young voice for the first time. Its quality is individual; the middle registers are fully developed and beautifully lyric. In her first concert here we admired that childish simplicity in her folk songs, and a certain appeal that lay in the natural voice. Her show pieces at that time had brilliance, and while none of her music showed the slightest suspicion of a musical nature in the background, we were hopeful. In the meantime something disastrous has happened in her voice production. Miss Talley now sings as if she were using two voices, her high notes lack all freedom, and her breath is seldom sufficient to finish a phrase with ease. Her diction remains lucid, in hymns and simple songs there is Sunday school quality, but I fail to find art. When Marion Talley sings "Estrano" she certainly knows nothing of La Traviata's forebodings of death. When she sings of Mignon, I wonder if she knows that Goethe's heroine is a wanderer in the north and longing for her sunny Italy. The shock of the Brahms' Serenade was quite too much. I had danced the Blue Danube Waltz on the ice in Vienna one Christmas; I couldn't take a chance on another singing exercise from Miss Talley, so I ran away without hearing it, and got into the triumphal procession of Aida with the San Carlo artists.

John Corigliano played some violin numbers while Miss Talley rested. I believe we might recruit these assisting players from our local talent. We have many singers, violinists and pianists who are better by far than last night's fiddler or last week's contralto.

Husband and Wife Get Premiers Same Day

The world premier of Mary Pickford's latest United Artists' picture, "My Best Girl," presentsenting a 5 and 10-cent store romance, will take place in New York Saturday. On the same day the latest picture starring her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, will open, for its first showing, in a Hollywood picture house. The Fairbanks picture is "The Gaucho," and the star has the role of a leader of a band of South American cowboys. The production is scheduled to join Mary's on Broadway November 21.

Norma Talmadge's new screen drama, "The Dove," based on Willard Mack's stage play, will reach New York sometime in January. Miss Talmadge is now preparing to star in "A Woman Disputed," based on the Dennison Clift spoken stage play.

MEXICO CITY-BORDER AIR MAIL PROPOSED

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 2.—Cosme Hinojos, postmaster general of Mexico, announced that air mail and passenger service between Mexico City and the American border will be inaugurated next January.

Barrymore Again Under Noted Director

Lionel Barrymore, the Alfred Davidson of Gloria Swanson's "Sadie Thompson," is now being featured with Mary Philbin and Don Alvarado in D. W. Griffith's new United Artists Picture, "Drums of Love." It was in 1909 that Mr. Barrymore made his screen debut with Mary Pickford in a film entitled "Friends," and under direction of this same David Wark Griffith. On the other hand, Louis Wolheim, who made his stage debut in support of John and Lionel Barrymore in "The Jest," is again supporting John Barrymore—this time in films—in "Tempest," John Barrymore's second United Artists Picture.

THE NEW ERA IN TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION

Across the Atlantic
New York
London

TODAY, you can talk across the Atlantic Ocean from your Bell Telephone in your home or office.

Your voice travels over wires to the coast, and then leaps out over the sea.

The voice from Europe jumps back over the Atlantic and comes to your telephone.

This development is indicative of the tremendous things which have been happening to your telephone service in recent years.

Other things, while not so spectacular, are of perhaps greater benefit to you in your every-day use of the telephone.

You are connected to nearby cities today while you wait on the line—just as on local calls.

Your calls to more distant points are handled with a speed which a few years ago would have been considered visionary

We're living in a new era in telephone communication.

THE Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League was reorganized last night at a meeting held in Kaufmann's, 10 clubs receiving franchises in the circuit. The managers voted to split the season. The 10 clubs admitted to the loop were the J. J. Mieles, last year's champions; Somermans, Siano Club, McKees Rocks Business Men, St. Catherine's Lyceum, Goldensons, B. L. Succops, St. Richard's Club, McKeesport and Irene Kaufmann Settlement House.

THE Mieles, Somermans and Siano Club will operate at Columbus Temple, the McKees Rocks Business Men will play at the Hamilton School, St. Catherine's will play at Beechview auditorium, the Goldensons and Succops will play at the South Side Markethouse, St. Rickards at Holy Trinity and McKeesport at McKeesport Y. M. C. A., according to the schedule of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League.

A SPECIAL meeting of the West-Penn League will be held in Spalding's tonight to determine whether or not the Dee Gordons will hold a franchise. The Gordons were voted in last Tuesday, but some controversy has arisen which may eliminate this club tonight.

Joe Goldman, Chick Davies and Moy Marks will form the advisory board of the Pittsburgh and Ohio Valley League this winter.

The Catholic Lyceum League will be reorganized tomorrow night at a meeting in Kaufmann's.

The Alumni Club, claiming the championship of McKeesport, is back this year with a first-class team and is ready to book games with members of the West Penn, Central and Metropolitan leagues. Write Maurice Berkowitz, 528 Hazel street, McKeesport, or call McKeesport 25162.

R. L. MAGEE, coach of the Bellefonte Academy football team, weighs in with some serious remarks about the officiating in the battle which the Academy eleven lost to the Penn State freshmen last Saturday, 12 to 6. He claims the Bellefonte team was much the superior eleven, and would have won if it had received an even break from the referee. A letter from him, submitted for publication, is withheld to avoid a general and prolonged newspaper controversy on the subject. We do not know the merits of the case, but it is unusual for a coach of a college or prep school team to publicly denounce an official through the press. There may have been extenuating circumstances in this case.

CHICAGO BLACK HAWKS PURCHASE DENNENAY

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Corbett Dennenay, forward on last season's Saskatoon club of the Western Canada Hockey League, has been sold to the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League. He is regarded as a good goal-getter and is fast and tricky. He formerly played with the Toronto St. Patricks.

HUB SCOUT TO SIGN TODAY

By Universal Service

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Jack Slattery, a prominent figure in baseball for the past 20 years, will manage the 1928 Braves. This announcement was made last night by Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the team.

In selecting Slattery as the successor of Dave Bancroft, ousted manager of the team, Judge Fuchs considered more than a dozen candidates for the berth, including Tris Speaker, Wade Killifer and others of equal importance.

Slattery will attach his signature to a contract today at an important conference to be held at Braves Field. The terms of the contract have not been discussed, in fact neither Judge Fuchs nor Slattery tonight could say whether the contract would be for one year or longer.

During his baseball career Slattery has participated in almost every end of the game. He was an outstanding player during his active career on the diamond as well as scout and coach.

Slattery was field assistant to George T. Stallings with the Braves in 1914 and 1915, and during his coaching days at Tufts, Harvard and Boston College, he always has occupied a coaching berth with the Braves.

After graduating from Fordham, Slattery made his baseball bow with the Boston Americans during the reign of Jimmy Collins as manager.

Slattery, always a fierce hitter, led every league in which he ever played and always was considered a brainy shortstop.

Following his career with the Boston club, Slattery later played with Jimmy Callahan's Chicago White Sox, Joe Cantillon's Washington Senators and later played in the Pacific Coast League and American Association.

The Pennsylvania state Athletic Commission has asked The Sun-Telegraph to publish a warning that professional boxers who appear tonight on the card of the United Civic Club, North Side, will be liable for suspension.

SPORT LENS

There is a loosely-formed organization of national pretensions which possibly is awaiting only the entrance of a powerful state like Pennsylvania to join hands with it—to make it a formidable power of great dimensions. If a working agreement with this organization should be formed by Pennsylvania, then the edicts of the New York commission might find strong dissenters in the rival, more far reaching and more powerful group. It might transfer the boxing capital of the world from beyond the domains of the New York commission, for obviously with championship bouts labeled as such only by one state, with other states throwing cold water on such pretensions, the New York promoters are going to find that the prestige of at least some of their bouts will not rate so high.

For example, consider the recent move which saw New York pick up the aged Mike McTigue and for no sound reason nominated him as the light-heavyweight champion to succeed Mr. Delaney. Events have proved that at least two, Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker, were better; there is a suspicion that Tiger Flowers could have beaten Michael, and there is a suspicion that among a few others Jimmy Slattery was a better man.

With the boxing powers in other states aligned solidly against New York when McTigue was crowned the New York promoter would have had on his hands just about calling for the state championship of New York.

OF COURSE, New York, with Rickard, must have a certain bulge on other localities, yet the effect of a concentrated drive to reduce New York's prestige throughout the rest of the country, such concentration led possibly by Pennsylvania, would not be slight. Boxers suspended by New York would miss out only there, whereas boxers suspended by Pennsylvania would, in the event of a great coalition, miss out in nearly every place but New York. New York promoters themselves would be bound to seek the champions nominated by a strong national group, whether the New York commission went along or did not go along.

Of course, some of the boys in

Freddy Iverson, peppery manager of the McKeesport Olympics comes to bat with a hot letter regarding the status of the Olympics in the championship race for the lightweight class teams. The Olympics are undefeated, states Iverson, in this district, and had to leave the tri-state section in order to find real competition, going on to state the Tube City gridders are more than willing to meet any of the aspirants to the district title.

Freddy should not get excited because his team is getting the go by in this so-called championship race. Every season one team is always slipping in the muddle and no one ever finds out why. Last season it was Tiffany Tigers, who knows but what it might be the McKeesport Olympics this season. But before the season ends, public opinion might force the undefeated aspirants to meet the Olympics, then Iverson might have the laugh.

But every week the same cry gets around the district' 'The leaders will get together." Maybe some of the leaders will get together with Iverson and do business, thereby preventing the McKeesporters from getting eliminated. The latter might be unwelcome but it will show the true strength of each club. But as the case now stands—The McKeesport Olympics are throwing a hat into the ring.

New York will celebrate the smashing up of the agreement between New York and Pennsylvania because it was so blighting at times to New York boys who came into the hinterlands for a one night stand to get suspensions which hit them in New York also, and this rejoicing is one of the sorry features of the fact that New York is forcing Pennsylvania to withdraw from the compact.

But the New York commission, which has been conceded national prestige, apparently arrived at the point where only its action was deemed by itself to be wide in scope and that all other efforts by other commissions were mere pretensions. Fortunately, Pennsylvania, a great state, is powerful enough to resent this attitude and is able to show this resentment.

Hudkins, Dundee Ready

By MARK KELLY,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3.—Dick Donald's delayed-in-transit welterweight championship is scheduled to arrive tonight at about 9:15 o'clock at Wrigley Field before 25,000 persons who are expected to contribute $125,000 to see Joe Dundee of Baltimore and Ace Hudkins of somewhere in Nebraska do battle. The weather man has promised to do his very best, the last-minute demand for tickets has keyed Donald up to high expectations and the only unsettled problem is the referee question.

On rather good authority the writer learns that George V. Blake will be the third man. The three commissioners are due to have a session prior to weighing-in time and to officially settle the referee question.

Both fighters must make 147 pounds. Dundee is under that figure by three pounds. Hudkins may find the weight his stumbling block. He has been down to 147 for two weeks and the drying-out process has left him peaked.

From an early top-heavy favorite the Hudkins money is now scarce at even-stephen. Dundee's early appearances here failed to impress the local customers. Since he moved into downtown quarters where the wise railbirds could get a good closeup of his prowess, Dundee has rapidly gained supporters.

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

ANY running attack in football like that of Bill Amos of W. & J.—if an adherent of the Presidents can be found who will admit that there is another like that of Amos—would appear to be at its best on a dry field, and under a handicap on a wet one.

That would seem to go for any running offensive in the gridiron sport, so the relative chances of Amos and Gibby Welch for getting away and tearing off gains with anything in the nature of consistency in Saturday's big game would appear to hinge largely on the sward's being dry enough to provide a firm footing.

Yet, strangely enough, if Amos' possibilities in Saturday's fray were to be measured by his alternating form of the last two seasons he would appear to be a greater threat on a muddy gridiron than on a dry one.

PITTSBURGH gamegoers will recall that in 1925, even though his team was defeated by Pitt in the big annual struggle, 6 to 0, Amos was the hero of the game.

Coach Sutherland of the Panthers "outfoxed" his opponents on the sloppy field that year by utilizing the great punting superiority he possessed to keep in the ball in W. & J. territory, Pitt usually kicking on the first down while the Red and Black warriors battered themselves to pieces to offset Brown's punting.

Amos gained about four-fifths of all the ground gained by his team in that contest, and the Presidents made 11 first downs to Pitt's four, but the Panthers won by blocking no fewer than five kicks, one of which blocks resulted in the day's only touchdown.

CHALKY WILLIAMSON, who was assistant coach at Pitt at that time, said after the game that Amos' playing was the finest he had ever seen on a muddy field.

Bill's brilliancy of that day has never been forgotten by Panther or President followers.

But last year, there was a difference, even though conditions appeared to be vastly more favorable to Amos than those of 1925.

On a perfect field, contrasting singularly with the rain-soaked gridiron of 1925, Amos couldn't get going, and his inability to gain at any time cost his team a victory.

HOWEVER, that doesn't mean that Amos will be less dangerous on a dry field than on a wet one Saturday. Those two years that brought such different results for Bill under opposite conditions were merely a couple of the freakish exceptions that prove the rule of a fast field being necessary for a runner to do his best.

The real reason for his failure to gain in 1926 on a dry field was the marvelous defensive play of Tiny Linn, the best guard who has worn the Blue and Gold since Jack Sack and Red Seidelson held sway.

Linn is now an alumnus, but while he was playing guard last year he stopped Amos, meaning probably that the stopping of the W. & J. star Saturday will depend upon the men who are playing that same position for the Panthers.

As the matter was doped out by the veteran football man quoted here yesterday, the job of stopping Amos is up to the opposing guards the greater part of the time, and the game itself may prove that the veteran in question had the proposition sized up correctly when he predicted that the work of John Roberts and Alec Fox at guard for Pitt might be the deciding factor in Saturday's game.

TOUGH as the annual battle with W. & J. is going to be for Pitt, there are some reports coming out of the West that the charges of Jock Sutherland may find themselves up against an even harder contract when they clash with Nebraska the following Saturday.

Nebraska is noted for big, powerful teams, probably the heaviest in the country each year, and this season's team is said to be no exception.

"If they are anything like the Nebraskans who played Pitt here in 1921, playing against them will be anything but a picnic," said Harry Seidelson, former star guard at Pitt, who was in the Panther line against the Cornhuskers at Forbes Field six years ago. Every time I was hit by the charging Nebraska forwards I felt as if about 10 men had hit me all at once."

THE class of the Morry basketball team, which will drop out as Pittsburgh's representative team the coming season after eight years on the floor here, for the McKeesport team in the County League and also playing one game each week for Beaver, is attested by the continuous flow of offers for the services of the various players.

Recently Pip Koehler of the Morrys signed a contract for a job in the highest of all basketball leagues, the American professional organization, and now another member of the Morry quintet is being sought by that major league.

THE latest to receive an offer is Moon Klinzing. Moon played for the Rosenblooms of Cleveland in the championship playoff with the Celtics at the close of last season, and his work made such an impression that the Cleveland club now wants him to sign for the full coming season.

Klinzing has not yet made up his mind whether or not to accept the proposition. Moon has had a long and brilliant career in the floor game. He was a star at South High when that school was turning out championship teams, later was a luminary at Duquesne University until he was graduated in 1921, and afterward played for the Ormsby team of the South Side and then the champion Morrys.

BOUT FOR DELANEY

OPEN GOLF KING 4 DOWN AT 18TH

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Walter Hagen, defending champion, stroked his way to a four-hole lead over Tommy Armour, open champion of the United States and Canada, in the morning round of their quarter final match in the Professional Golfers' Association tournament here today.

Hagen was the first to lose a hole when he made a bad out from a trap to No. 3, but Armour handed the hole back to his opponent at four where Tommy laid himself an unplayable stymie. Before the Scotchman could steady himself after this mishap, Hagen had taken three more holes and a commanding lead. Tommy braced and took the ninth after Hagen had missed a two footer, and captured the twelfth, but "The Haig" was two up again at the thirteenth and finished strong with a 16-foot putt for a birdie to win the seventeenth and another long one to win the eighteenth with a par three.

Pitt and W.-J. Lines Seem About Equal

By JESS CARVER.

"A CHAIN," someone once cracked, "is no stronger than its weakest link." Giving the saying a gridiron translation, and you have "a football team is no stronger than it's line."

Pitt and W & J., meeting in the Stadium Saturday in a game that may eventually decided the Eastern championship, are almost certain to offer a great battle of lines. Both teams have splendid backfields, but unless the forward walls hold out, the backs, clever as they are, won't get very far.

W. & J. will outweigh Pitt almost to the man. The ends, Herold and Morty Robinson, are both heavier than Guarino or Donchess. Pitt's wingmen, however, have shown to equal advantage with the Red and Black this fall, and Guarino looms as one of the best in the section.

At the tackles, Kern and Wasmuth of Pitt, though lighter, have an edge on Jap Douds and Malcolm of W. & J. in experience and in their play so far this season. Kern is one of the best tackles Pitt has ever boasted, and deserves to take his place with the Thornhills, Chases, Wissingers, Seidels and Hiltys. They are a faster pair than the Presidents, with Kern easily the best of the four.

At the center of the line, W. & J. will have a dangerous weight advantage in Gallagher and Pauly. Pauly is the biggest man in the Tri-State section, though he is not as fast as one might wish and has been outplayed by lighter men. Fox and Roberts of Pitt are light and fast, hard hitters and sterling defensive guards.

Andy Cutler, Pitt's fine center, will find Carl Aschman a worthy opponent. The W. & J. pivot man is a good passer and a clever diagnostician. He has been playing a whale of a defensive game this fall. Cutler's experience will stand him in good stead, however, and is probably deserving of being ranked as the best center in the district.

When you consider the first string lineups, there is little to choose between the two sevens, but when it comes to tossing in reserves, Sutherland will be able to throw a far superior lot of replacements into the game than those at the beck and call of Kerr. In Demoise, Sargent, Salata, Ghetto, Montgomery and Goldberg, Pitt has reserves almost the equals of the starting players.

The all-around class and speed of the Panthers will very likely offset whatever advantage W. & J. may have in weight.

Bucs Not After Cobb

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Ty Cobb will not be asked to join the Pittsburgh club, according to a statement made today by one of the Pirate officials. An outstanding star of baseball for more than 20 years, Cobb yesterday was given notice of his release by Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Although the local office did not elaborate on the statement, it is felt that Manager Donie Bush could not get along well with the temperamental Georgian. Ty and Donie, it is said, could not "hit it well" when they were teammates in Detroit. Cobb, however, has had trouble with many players, and when he rose to a management his methods were of such a nature as to be seriously questioned among baseball men.

The veteran had a good year on the offensive in his only season with the Athletics.

TY LEAVES FOR HOME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—Ty Cobb, still undecided as to his baseball plans for the future, prepared today to leave for his Augusta, Ga., home.

"My release should be along in about 10 days," Cobb said, "and then possibly I may receive offers from other clubs which may call me back into the game for another year."

SPEAKING of SPORTS
by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

JOE DUNDEE should retain his welterweight title in his 10-round bout with Ace Hudkins in Los Angeles tonight—if he does not run into one of those Native Son decisions. Hudkins is not exactly a Native Son, being a Nebraskan, but he first came into prominence with his aggressive milling in California and is a prime favorite there. Dundee is getting a guarantee of $65,000 and the bout had to be postponed from last Saturday because the gate wasn't up to expectations. Despite the fact that he is in a tough spot, with sentiment all in favor of the challenger, Dundee should demonstrate his superiority to such an extent that the crown will not change resting places.

TO all intents and purposes, Pitt and Wash-Jeff are going to play for the Eastern championship in their battle in the Stadium Saturday, but everybody isn't of this mind. Some folks don't even believe the paid advertising in the newspapers to this effect. For instance, there comes to hand a letter from E. M. C., a Princeton man, who writes on both sides of the paper, making it necessary for us to hire a typist to copy off his words of applause, which are as follows:

"This is just a note (hope he never writes us a letter!) to let you know how much one reader of your paper enjoyed the sporting pages tonight (Tuesday). 'Pitt and W. & J. to battle for championship of the East.' I think that is the funniest statement I've ever read.

"I believe Pitt and W. & J. have exceptionally good teams, but why become ridiculous in making a statement such as the above one? How about Yale, Penn State and Princeton?

"PITT has won amazing victories over Drake, a mediocre team of the Middle West; Grove City, Thiel, West Virginia and Allegheny, all recognized leading teams of the East, and Carnegie Tech, whose overwhelming defeat of a strong West Virginia eleven gives it recognition, while W. & J. managed to defeat the same strong Tech team and was hailed as a conqueror because of its 12-to-0 defeat of Lafayette.

"Yale, on the other hand, has not yet played any strong teams. Only Army and Dartmouth have been bested by Yale, and who ever heard of them having respectable football teams? Princeton hasn't any power this year, and Penn State has won only three major games, from Penn, Syracuse and Lafayette. W. & J. is a much stronger team than State, according to what one reads, yet they scored only two touchdowns against Lafayette, while Penn State used almost three teams and defeated Lafayette, 40 to 6.

"All sarcasm and joking aside, how can Pitt claim the championship of the East with such a schedule as it has? What good team couldn't be undefeated at this stage of the game if it never played any strong teams? Contrast Pitt's schedule with those of Yale or Penn State. What if they each have lost one game? Does that keep them from having a strong team? Look back on State's schedule, please. Not a word of it has been published along with the so-called tough schedules. Lebanon Valley, Gettysburg, Bucknell, Penn, Syracuse, Lafayette, George Washington, New York University and Pitt. Penn and Syracuse were undefeated until they met State, George Washington will go to State with a clean record and probably New York University and Pitt will meet State with their shields unscathed. What is your opinion of all this? From a Princeton alumnus interested in seeing recognition being justly given."

WELL, now, since our opinion is asked, let's start off by saying that in determining sectional championships the teams that lose or tie games should be the first to be eliminated from consideration. If one doesn't do that, he'll never wind up anywhere. The first three teams in whose behalf E. M. C., writes are Princeton, Penn State and Yale. Princeton has yet to lose, and is in the running for the Eastern title, with five victories and no defeats, while Pitt and Wash-Jeff have won six each. The only tough team encountered to date by Princeton has been Cornell, and the Ithacans were beaten by the narrow margin of 11 to 13. Yale has lost to Georgia, 14-10, but has beaten Bowdoin, Brown, Army and Dartmouth and gives promise of beating Princeton later. Penn State has lost to Bucknell, and, while it has flashed a great "comeback" in beating Penn, Syracuse and Lafayette in a row, all of these teams also have lost to other teams, and the Lafayette team's mental state following its defeat by Wash-Jeff may have had something to do with the big score run up on the Maroons by the Lions the following Saturday.

The Eastern championship will not be really determined until Thanksgiving Day. Pitt, W. & J. and Princeton all have a swell chance of being bumped off before the end of the season. But, as matters stand now, there should be no question that the Pitt-W. & J. game will provide the leader up to Saturday night. We fear our Princeton friend has gone out of his way to make a case against the two. And as for Pitt and Wash-Jeff counting victories against weak teams in their record, there's no telling what scores Pitt could have run up against some of its weak opponents if it had not been held in check. The remaining battles, with W. & J., Nebraska and State should bring out the Panthers' real strength, and we must await the decisions in these bat-

The Coach's Offense

With solemn brow and bearing twenty football coaches sat;
They had met to deal a wallop to a member of their frat;
The culprit was in sorrow as he dwelt upon his fate
For he seemed to have a feeling he was due to get the gate.
What awful act had he performed to make him hang his head?
The charge was there—make no mistake—and this is how it read:

"Coach Riley, in a statement over which he signed his name, Declared his team was perfect and was sure to win the game."

Big Night for Ring Fans

A PROFESSIONAL boxing show at McKeesport, the first of a series of amateur shows at the Y. M. H. A., a mixed amateur-professional show under the auspices of the United Civic Club at 908 Federal street, North Side, and Willie Davies' appearance against Midget Wolgast at the Broadway Club, Philadelphia, are the offerings on the fistic card for this evening.

Harry Dudley, California Negro welterweight, who is now making his home here and has boxed Champion Joe Dundee, Willie Harmon, Sergt. Sammy Baker, Georgie Ward, Paul Doyle, Jack McVey and other good ones, will make his first appearance in this section against Alex Simms of Canton in the 10-round windup at McKeesport. Simms has beaten Jimmy Jones, Mickey Fedor and others. Jackie Murray, Negro, former local amateur, who has been boxing successfully around Philadelphia, will meet Tug Phillips of Fayette City in the six-round semi-final, and Marty McHale of McKeesport and Tiger Joe Randall of Duquesne, Negro boxer, will trade blows in the second bout of six rounds, while two McKeesport heavyweights, Dick Gibbons and Darrell States, will open the show.

Ben Giffen, chairman of the boxing committee, and Arthur W. Scher, athletic director, have arranged the following program for the Y. M. H. A. show: Scott Delo, Verona, vs. Frank Lang, Willow Club, 126-pound class; Lewis Martin, unattached, vs. George Guba, Clairton, 135-pound class; Mickey Werbanick, unattached, vs. George Evans, Swissvale, 112-pound class; Amos Dothard, unattached, vs. S. Cetnarowski, Monessen, 160-pound class John Brown, unattached, vs. George Bencho, McKees Rocks, 135-pound class; D. Billick, Willow Club, vs. A. Angelo, Swissvale A. C., 118-pound class; Harry Vicks, Willow Club, vs. W. DeLach, unattached, 147-pound class; George Hughes, Willow Club, vs. R. Smoller, unattached, 147-pound class, and V. Markowski, Willows Swim Club, vs. L. Schnitzer, Broughton, 147-pound class.

Homer Robertson, former local Negro middleweight, is to box Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, at Boston, November 21. Belated reports of Robertson's defeat by Jimmy King of New Orleans at New Bedford, Mass., are that the decision was an atrocious one and almost caused a riot among the spectators. It must have been all wet or the Boston club would not be keen about showing Homer with Latzo. Homer and King have been rematched for New Bedford Wednesday night of next week.

Phil Goldstein, local junior-lightweight, is helping Jack Zivic train in New York for the latter's bout with Young Saylor, of Charleroi, which will be the 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. Phil himself has a bout in view for Holyoke, Mass., November 14. Saylor is doing his training at Charleroi. The Motor Square Club expects one of its best gates of the season for the Zivic-Saylor battle, which has all the earmarks of a "natural," inasmuch as it has been seriously talked about for many months.

The preliminary card for Monday night's show was completed today. Ray Shafer, Garfield middleweight, will meet Bull Miller, of Monessen, in the eight-round semi-final. Chuck Semak, Clairton heavyweight, and Stanley Simmons, of Lawrenceville, will box the second bout, and Sailor Meredith, of the Hill, and Sammy Schido, of the West End, 142-pounders, will open the show.

Willie Davies has been matched with Corp. Izzy Schwartz for a bout in New York next Wednesday night. Joey Katkish, local bantamweight, meets

PITT CRIPPLES REST; TECH, DUKES READY

By JESS CARVER.

LOUD were the wails arising from the throats of the dozen or so college football coaches yesterday as yesterday's rain and last night's snowfall spoiled practice sessions for the schools in the Tri-State district, all of which have important games carded for the coming week-end. Yesterday's rain certainly came at an inopportune time for local elevens, all three of which are to engage in highly interesting engagements Saturday. Titles and good records and fond hopes are at stake this week.

So impervious, however, is the need for practice, that drills were staged in all instances, and one or two of the teams were driven through scrimmage sessions. The one bright feature of the rain and mud was seen in the fact that the teams will get a chance to handle a slippery ball for the first time in weeks.

Pitt, still without the services of Edwards, Fisher and Booth, and working hard and long for the W. & J. game, went through a peppy signal drill with Dwight Fyock in the quarterback hole. Coach Sutherland devoted no small amount of time to his aerial game, and polished off a few running plays in which Fyock had to be specially drilled. The team was also given a defensive drill, with the scrubs and freshmen using W. & J. plays. The Panther line worked fine and stopped the best efforts of the opposition, often before they were well under way.

Carnegie Tech put in its final hard session before leaving town today for New York, where New York U. is to be met on Saturday. The Tartans will entrain tonight for Gotham and will get in a short workout this afternoon in the Skibo bowl. Another college team will drill there today for a short while, West Virginia's varsity having been granted the use of the gridiron as they stop over here a few hours on their way to Missouri.

N. Y. IS CRIPPLED

Tech has taken a deal of heart over the fact that the team will face a somewhat crippled New York eleven Saturday. New York lost the services of the giant Al Lassman, star tackle, who broke his leg in the Colgate tussle Saturday. It may also develop that Connors, the Violets' halfback star, may be out of the game.

Up on the Bluff, Elmer Layden worked away with his Durable Dukes and gave special attention to his line. The Dukes have a tough one on the books for Saturday in St. Francis, conquerors of both Bethany and Westminster, and rated as a crackerjack eleven. This game is to be played in Johnstown in the Municipal Stadium there.

The team will leave for Johnstown Friday evening. Students and followers are making plans through Graduate Manager Holahan to follow the gridders Saturday morning.

The Tech special train to New York will also leave town Friday night and will return Sunday night.

N. Y. U. Lineup Is Changed for Tech Game

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(UP.)—Ed Hill, fullback, will see action in Saturday's game with Carnegie Tech as a regular. Hill, who played sensationally last year as a freshman, replaces Archie Roberts, who goes to the N. Y. U. back field.

New plays and formations filled the practice time of the Columbia University football squad yesterday. Fred Rieger and Hank Kumpl worked out together in the practice. Coach Crowley seemed to be saving these men for the John Hopkins game Saturday.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS
by HAVEY BOYLE

HAVEY BOYLE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—A Philadelphia boxer named Benny Bass represents the rock upon which the working agreement between the powerful New York Boxing Commission and the Pennsylvania Boxing Commis- will be split. Sometime ago the New York fathers signified their acquiescence to an elimination bout between Red Chapman and Benny Bass to determine which should be acknowledged by New York and Pennsylvania as the featherweight champion of the world. Until a few days ago, the Pennsylvania commission, having duly crowned Bass after he had defeated Chapman, was under the impression that Bass was recognized everywhere as the titleholder. Came word the other day that the New York commission seeing some merit in Tony Canzoneri, a New York boy, decided that no one would be called the champion until Canzoneri was eliminated from consideration.

As a result of this new attitude by the New York fathers the working agreement between the two states which saw a boxer suspended in this state also suspended in New York, and vice versa, is likely to dissolve into thin air to become no more.

It is unfortunate, as these two large states, with a working agreement, proved a great help to each other, but since New York apparently is determined to recognize no champions save those crowned by the New York commission, there is only one thing for Pennsylvania to do and that is to break off with New York.

It is almost certain that unless New York recants from its recent heresy over Bass the Pennsylvania commission will co-operate no longer with the New York body. New York is not likely to recant.

THE ramifications of the break-up of this important boxing pact are many and varied.

Buckeye Alumni Head Raps Wilce's Critics

By HARRY KECK.

Characterizing as a "tempest in a teapot" the recent demand from Toledo alumni and those in other sectors, as well as the townspeople of Columbus, that Head Coach Dr. John W. Wilce be replaced because of the team's sixth straight defeat by the University of Michigan, J. L. Morrill, national alumni secretary of the university, in Pittsburgh today for a big dinner and smoker at the Morrowfield apartments tonight, predicted a speedy return to normalcy on the Columbus campus and elsewhere among followers of the Buckeyes. He declared the criticism of Wilce did not represent the prepondenace of alumni sentiment.

Morrill said he was looking forward to a hard fight by Ohio State against Princeton at Princeton Saturday and was inclined to think the furore against Wilce would inspire the players to great fighting heights, which would bode ill for the Tigers, as it did for the Chicago Maroons last Saturday, when Ohio won 13 to 7.

TOO MUCH EXPECTED

According to Morrill, the center of the Ohio State line is comparatively green this fall, with the loss of Hess, all-American guard, and Klein, center. Raskowski, the big tackle, is a great player, he declared, and probably would win his spurs in the Princeton game. Too much has been expected from the team as a whole, however, Morrill added, because of the known fine quality of its backs.

"Whatever else may be said with regard to Wilce," the alumni secretary continued, "it is a fact that three stupid plays cost us the Michigan game this year, and Wilce is noted for teaching anything but stupid football. Even his worst enemies, if he has any really personal ones, wouldn't accuse him of that."

ATTACK ILL ADVISED

Morrill said the attack on Wilce, who has been turning out winning football teams at Ohio State for 15 years, is both ill-advised and ill-timed, and he probably will elaborate on this phase in his talk before the O. S. U. alumni tonight. He also will discuss the plans of the University and the Alumni association. G. E. Staltz, president of the local alumni, will preside at the affair. Morrill arrived in Pittsburgh this morning.

STAGG SAYS REFEREE ERRED

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Breaking a tradition of his 34 years of football coaching, Alonzo A. Stagg, last night told 500 University of Chicago alumni Referee Fred Gardner made a mistake in the Ohio State-Chicago game last Saturday when he penalized the Maroon eleven after a lateral pass play had been executed successfully for a touchdown.

"The referee made a mistake. It was an honest mistake, and we don't hold it against him," the Old Man said. He emphasized that his statement was not an alibi and deplored the publicity which attended the event.

The play, he explained, had been carefully conceived and thoroughly practiced and was perfectly executed. It was a lateral pass from Mendenhall to Jersid, in which the latter scored a touchdown. Referee Gardner contended a Chicago back had violated the man-in-motion rule, called the play back and the score did not count.

"I saw the play clearly," said Stagg, "and it was executed perfectly. The man in motion stepped back three counts before the ball was snapped and it was the official and not the player who made the mistake."

JAZZ AND MARS TO COMPETE ON YULE TREE

By International News Service.

NUREMBERG, Germany, Nov. 2—Miniature jazz band drums, cardboard "steel" helmets, mechanical "trans-Atlantic airplanes" and toy cannon will fill stockings and decorate Christmas trees this Christmas in Europe and America.

And here is a tip for the jolly old gentleman with the long white whiskers and the reindeer-drawn sleigh, girls no longer care much for dolls. They are going in for boys' toys, such as mechanical 'planes and little motor cars and engines.

That was the information obtained right here in the world's toy factory.

Here in the capital of toyland, where a big army of German toy makers work within the shadow of Santa Claus' great headquarters, preparations are all complete for the Christmas of 1927.

Because of the big export of cheaply made German toys, not only to European countries, but to America, Germany sets the style in world toys.

The old style stock-in-trade toys such as dolls or various sizes for girls and picture books and simple little things like lead soldiers and hand-drawn fire engines for the boys have given way to more elaborate devices such as mechanical airplanes marked "New York to Berlin" and mechanical fire engines which set up a ladder automatically when they bump against a wall.

With the planes go a tiny hangar, there is a spring which is wound up and which carries the machine a few feet into the air before it runs down.

Toy makers attribute the demand for jazz band drums to the radio, which carries jazz music into a majority of houses in both Germany and America.

The "steel helmet" is a strictly German institution. Its popularity arises from the fact that so many German young men belong to organisations which wear steel helmets as part of their equipment.

All in all, so far as toys indicate, there is going to be a mixed showing on the old yule tree this year with jazz competing against Mars.

HUNTERS' AUTO HITS DEER

KANE, Pa., Nov. 2—En route to the vicinity of Marienville, 25 miles south of here, yesterday on a squirrel hunting trip, W. A. Longshore, Dr. H. J. McGhee, Jake Irwin and Floyd Davis, of Kane, escaped injury when their car collided with a large buck deer. Impact broke two of the deer's legs and partially wrecked the car. The men, acting in accordance with the game laws, killed the deer and turned the carcass over to the nearest game warden.

BOY, 14, SHOOTS SISTER, 11

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 2—While playing tag, Isabelle Cross, 11, was shot and killed by her brother, McKesky, 14, who accidentally discharged a shotgun in the kitchen of their home at Kennedy station, near here. Seeing that he had killed his sister, the boy fled into the woods where some time later he was found crying hysterically. The children belong to the family of Thurman Cross, superintendent of the Reserve Gas Company's station.

FOREST HILLS' BONDING INCREASE PLAN OUTLINED

The proposed increase of the bonded indebtedness of Forest Hill borough from $140,000 to $198,000 was set forth in a statement filed yesterday in Quarter Sessions Court by John France, burgess. The issuance of $58,000 of bonds is proposed to retire temporary notes covering public improvements and was approved by the borough council at a meeting August 10. The value of the taxable property of the borough is given as $4,[illegible].

COLLEGES REPRESENTED FOR Y. M. C. A. MEETING

A dozen West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania colleges will be represented at a fall conference of the Y. M. C. A. branches of the colleges, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with the Carnegie Institute of Technology serving as the host. Sessions Friday and Saturday will be held at Shadyside Presbyterian Church and the meetings on Sunday are scheduled for the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of this hamburg tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and relieve grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

FIREMEN START OWN BLAZE

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—The fire department, to test a new high pressure hosecart, set fire to the two top floors of a building in Wacker Drive. The building had been condemned as a part of the new improvements of the avenue.

The floors, oil soaked, burned with a roar, and 5,000 persons, who gathered about were kept warm. In that respect the fire was not a failure.

The fire officials reported that the new high pressure apparatus was very successful in extinguishing the blaze.

ARMISTICE DAY PROCLAIMED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(INS.)—President Coolidge issued a proclamation yesterday calling upon the American people to observe Armistice Day, November 11.

On the anniversary of the ending of the war, the proclamation said the American people should give expression to their "gratitude that peace exists and to our sincere desire that such amicable relations with all other peoples may continue."

BUTLER IS HELD AS ROBBER

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Henry Brothers, known as a dignified butler, was taken for a round of Long Island palaces so he could point out the houses he is believed to have robbed.

Detectives say his loot amounts to more than $75,000. His assistant in the robberies is said to have been a woman cook, who was just as proficient in her vocation as he was in his.

BOULEVARD SHOT CLIPS DRIVER

N. A. Small, of 1403 Monterey street, narrowly escaped injury yesterday afternoon when a bullet passed through the windshield of his automobile while he was driving west on Bigelow boulevard, near the Pennsylvania Station. He reported to detectives that he did not hear the shot.

HOLD PITTSBURGHERS AS AUTO THIEVES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 3.—Four young men, all from Pittsburgh, are being held by police here following their alleged attempt to steal tires from an automobile parked on a Johnstown street. The prisoners said they are Harry Dugan, Karl Kreutzer, James Lunch and Harry Seibert, alias Glenn McCann.

MUNHALL TEACHER HIT BY AUTO; HOLD DRIVER

Anna White, 22, Munhall public school teacher, escaped with bruises when she was struck by an automobile in Munhall yesterday. W. C. Gruber, 23, McKeesport, was arrested as the driver.

JOHNSTOWN ACCIDENTS HEAVIEST IN OCTOBER

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 3.—More traffic accidents occurred in Johnstown in October than in any other month since the local traffic bureau was organized, its report today shows. There were recorded 130 accidents, causing five deaths and 36 injuries.

Generous Tax Cuts Would Aid Business and Workers

By B. C. FORBES

ANDREW W. MELLON, banker, multi-millionaire, and Secretary of the Treasury, is a very conservative man. His conservatism suits banking better than its suits politics.

His proposed income tax cuts, totaling $225,000,000, are likely to be substantially increased by Congress. And they should be increased.

OUR esteemed Secretary of the Treasury has habitually underestimated the nation's annual surplus. Politicians, therefore, naturally conclude that he is again underfiguring when he estimates the 1929 fiscal year surplus at $274,000,000. Consequently, the likelihood is that the politicians will force through tax reductions greatly exceeding those recommended by the cautious Mr. Mellon.

OUR federal debt has been reduced from $26,594,000,000 to $18,424,000,000 within the last eight years, or at the rate of a billion a year.

President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon deserve the main credit for this extraordinary performance.

But is there urgent need for making the present generation pay all the cost of the World War? We are receiving and will continue to receive from our foreign debtors quite a large amount annually, and the law demands that the principal of these payments be applied to debt reduction. Our sinking fund provisions certainly are liberal enough.

Secretary Mellon bases the mildness of his proposed reductions partly on the ground that business may not continue as prosperous as it has been during the last few years.

But surely a threatened slackening in industry and commerce should constitute a sound reason for doing everything feasible to lighten the tax burden imposed upon corporations and upon individuals.

THE Secretary urges a reduction in the corporation tax of only 1½ per cent, from 13½ to 12 per cent, involving a revenue cut of $135,000,000. Representatives of the business world are recommending a reduction to 10 per cent.

Now that millions of families of very modest means own stocks, surely it is unfair that they should be compelled to pay a 12 per cent tax on their income from this source when they have to pay nothing or very little on the balance of their income. The levying of the lowest possible corporation tax is advisable, not merely from the individual stockholder's standpoint, but in the interest of national wellbeing, for it is universally agreed that this country must be prepared to face stiffer competition from foreign countries. The less we burden our business enterprises the better able will they be to hold their own in world markets.

Workers should be as strongly in favor of reduced corporation taxes as any other class, for, after all, workers suffer more than stockholders or anybody else when plants have to be shut down or put on part-time.

FROM the business and labor points of view the corporation tax change is the most vital of all those proposed.

Mr. Mellon's recommendation that corporations with a net income under $25,000, and with not more than 10 stockholders be permitted to pay income tax as partnerships or as corporations at their option is sensible. The estimated cost to the government is $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

This change, however, would not benefit the millions of small investors.

THE Secretary's other proposals are: Repeal of the estate tax, involving $7,000,000, revision of surtax rates on individual incomes between $16,000 and $90,000, involving $50,000,000. The latter class were unfairly overlooked when slashes were made for the benefit of small incomes and enormously large incomes.

THE government has been taking from the pockets of the taxpayers more than necessary. This practice should not be continued especially now that Secretary Mellon talks guardedly about our business prospects. Business being the goose that lays the golden eggs surely it is the duty of statesmanship to do everything practicable to avoid killing or impairing the goose.

So, if Congress goes considerably farther than Secretary Mellon recommends in the direction of tax reduction, there will be no occasion for alarm.

TO REOPEN MILL AT STRUTHERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 3.—Gardner Abbott, of Cleveland, representing the bondholders' committee, has purchased for $300,000 the property of Struthers Furnace Company, which has been in the hands of receivers for the last two years, following default on interest on $1,500,000 first mortgage 6 per cent bonds.

A reorganization plan, already outlined, will be put into effect and operations of the property will be resumed, according to Mr. Abbott. The sale of the property, which changed hands at a sheriff's sale, is subject to an appeal from the federal court decision disallowing the bankruptcy proceedings.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 2 points to a decline of 8 points. Buying was reported on unfavorable weather in the Southwest and relatively steady Liverpool cables, but the volume of demand seemed to disappoint holders of contracts and there was considerable realizing.

Prices eased off, December selling down to [illegible] and March to [illegible] or about 10 to [illegible] points net lower, and the market was rather irregular in early trading.

Private cables said there had been local and continental buying in the Liverpool market, with the advance checked by Manchester selling.

The market became quiet later. The disposition to take profits on recent purchases was probably increased to some extent by unfavorable trade reports from Manchester and the easier ruling of the later Liverpool cables. Offerings were comparatively light, however, and were well enough absorbed, on declines of some 18 to 22 points, to give the market a fairly steady undertone. At midday December was selling around 20.[illegible] and March 21.[illegible], or 7 to 8 points up from the lowest and about 12 to 14 points below yesterday's closing quotations.

Airbrake in Demand In Local Market

An upward movement in Westinghouse Air Brake marked the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with demand for that issue overshadowing the activity in other local stocks, which had held leading positions in the market here for the past two or three weeks.

Buying of Westinghouse was directly attributable to the announcement that the company's French subsidiary had obtained half of a $18,000,000 equipment order for the French railways. The other half of the order went to a German manufacturer. While the French Westinghouse company is not wholly owned by the local company, the latter has the largest individual interest and is said to hold control through stock ownership.

Fuels were slow in getting started here today, but bids were at slightly higher levels as a result of improvement noted in the oil and gas stocks in New York.

Harbison-Walker preferred got into new high ground on small-lot sales at 112½. Pittsburgh Plate Glass jumped five points to 215, while American Window Glass Machine changed hands at 28, off slightly from the last previous price. Union Steel Castings slid off a point, but there was no noticeable pressure on the stock.

Report of Bank of England.

LONDON, Nov. 3—(AP.)—[illegible]

Irregularities Attend Market Advance

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP.)—Resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market was attended with some irregularity as bear traders continued to ferret out weak spots and test the character of the recent buying in some of the pool specialties.

Continuation of easy money rates, the optimistic character of the monthly bank reviews and expectations of another sharp decrease in brokers' loans, all had a favorable effect on speculative sentiment.

Stiffening of export copper prices and a reduction in the stocks of the red metal attracted fresh buying into the copper shares, with Calumet and Arizona the leader in that group. The advance in the oils was checked by reports of a weakening of the fuel oil market at gulf coast points where there has been a heavy accumulation of the west Texas product.

Selling pressure was directed chiefly against such issues as Gimbel Brothers, common, Lambert, Green Cananea, Southern Dairies "A," Foundation Company, and Radio Corporation, although the last named touched a new record top in the early trading. Nearly a dozen other issues reached new high ground, the list including Midland Steel Products preferred, American Linseed, Victor Talking Machine, Adams Express, American Railway Express and Purity Baking "A" and "B." International Harvester and R. H. Macy each sold at least 3 points higher.

Speculative interest in the rails was divided between Norfolk and Southern, which was run up 5 points, and Canadian Pacific, which advanced 4. Southern Railway sold around the year's high on a revival of rumors that the annual dividend would be increased from $7 to $8 next year.

Can Your Family Live On 25%?

IN most cases a man derives from 75 to 80 per cent of his income from what he works at—not from what he owns. That means at least $75 out of every $100 comes from personal effort and not from investments.

When the man is taken away suddenly, can the family get along on the 25 per cent? This is a striking reason for life insurance. Assure your family enough income by having sufficient insurance.

Be sure that what you leave is not lost through unwise investments. A trust fund with Fidelity will carry on your management after you are gone.

Says Hon. Albert C. Ritchie
Governor of Maryland

"In your development of cheap power you have added immeasurably to the wealth of the nation; and it is not old wealth taken from others by the process of trade, but new wealth wrung from the treasure house of nature."*

ELECTRICITY has become the most universally useful force the world has ever known. This result has not been obtained merely by converting coal and water into electrical energy. Farsighted planning, and the success of the principle of individual initiative in the management of power companies are responsible.

The power companies have anticipated the needs for electrical service. They have built power plants and transmission lines in advance of rapidly growing demands. Through interconnected lines an abundance of power has been brought to cities, towns, villages and farms.

Meanwhile the public has accepted electrical service, paving the way for improvements and encouraging the invention and production of a great variety of useful electrical devices. Three million investors own power company securities. Sixteen million homes and one hundred and fifty thousand factories are using electrical service. By continued support of the American principle of individual initiative and through the use of more labor-saving electrical equipment, the whole public has been benefited by improved service and reduced rates.

The electrical business under individual initiative and government regulation, supported by public acceptance, has increased the wealth, comfort and happiness of the whole nation. The full development of an electrical age can be safeguarded in its future growth by continued support of these principles.

BERGDOLL PLEAS FOR RETURN REVEALED

By Universal Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, draft evader, has made several attempts recently to arrange for his return to the United States without punishment, it was learned at the Department of Justice.

Overtures were made to the department in his behalf and referred to the War Department, which refused, it was stated, to grant him immunity from prosecution.

Despite the newly disclosed capture at St. Vincent, Minn., of a messenger seeking $5,000 for Bergdoll, Department of Justice officials expressed belief that the draft evader is still in Germany and does not contemplate an early return. Immigration officials believe Bergdoll had intended to use the money to return to the United States, presumably secretly.

JUDGE WELLS DIES IN SLEEP

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Judge Hosea W. Wells, 71, dean of Chicago jurists, died in his sleep here yesterday. He had been a judge of the municipal and superior courts for 21 years.

Heart disease was reported to have been the cause of his death.

Besides his widow, he leaves a son, George Wells of Bainbridge, Ga.

Judge Wells was born in Delaware, O., and was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University and from the Northwestern University School of Law in 1889. He was active in many law societies as well as Oriental Consistory of the Scottish Rite Masons and Medinah Temple of the Mystic Shrine.

ARREST 3 BOYS AS ROBBERS

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Three boys ranging in age from 12 to 14 were arrested yesterday while robbing two stores. James Gill, 12, was arrested when he was caught rifling the cash register in a grocery store. An accomplice, whom he refused to name, escaped.

Two other youths, each 16, were caught robbing a golf shop.

SHOT ACCIDENTALLY, HUNTER LOSES FOOT

WINDBER, Pa., Nov. 2.—As a result of gunshot wounds received Tuesday when accidentally shot while hunting, Michael Dobosh, 22, of Cairnbrook, had his right foot amputated yesterday at Windber Hospital.

SUN-TELEGRAPH ADS Are Signboards on the Road to Success!

Here is the way to end "YELLOW MASK"

Your teeth will lose that yellowish tinge and gleam like new-found pearls—Make this delightful test.

There is now a safe and sure way to banish that unsightly yellowish tinge from your teeth.

Practically every movie star uses it and commends it to you. Likewise the stage beauties of Broadway—often whole companies.

Dentists use and endorse it. In the last six months more than a million beauty-seeking women and men have accepted it, and testify to teeth whiter and lovelier than ever before.

This new way is ORPHOS TOOTH PASTE. And the secret of its magic whitening powers is its base-"Tri-Calcium Phosphate." This is a substance leading dentists use to clean and polish teeth. "Yellow Mask" cannot cling to white enamel when "Tri-Calcium Phosphate" gets after it. Yet this wonderful polishing substance cannot harm the softest enamel.

Try a tube of this wonderful ORPHOS TOOTH PASTE today. You want pretty, white teeth. You can get them safely in no other way. Buy from your druggist or mail coupon below for FREE 20-Time Tube.

Every radio buyer wants to know...

The Crosley Bandbox is such an amazing set for $55 that its entire story is of interest to every prospective radio buyer and highly imformative to those who still say "it can't be done!"

When anxious ears strain to hear...
"You're there with a Crosley"

SMASHING successes don't just happen. Back of every victory lies long preparation, skillful planning, experience, foresight, training.

In this astonishing new radio you see its beginning back at a time when there were practically no broadcasting programs to listen to.

Crosley experiences since 1920 have taught Crosley ways and means to make the Bandbox receiver possible at $55.

Crosley methods of mass production have long concerned the radio trade. The manufacturing axiom that it's cheaper to make one when you make a thousand at a time than it is to make one at a time has been consistently and concretely proven by Crosley. Geared only to a gigantic production, the Crosley factories know no other way of manufacturing.

This year Crosley engineers found themselves in the enviable position of supplementing their own efforts with the research and development work of such radio leaders as The Radio Corporation of America, The General Electric Co., The Westinghouse Co., The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and the Hazeltine and Latour Corporations.

Estimate for yourself their enthusiasm!

Radio ideas bright from the hard crucible of patent limitations are now possible to Crosley because of important license grants.

No radio receiver at any price offers more complete or better shielding than the Bandbox. Copper covered coils. Cadmium-plated steel houses completely shield condensers. All wiring separately and thoroughly shielded from all other elements.

No radio receiver at any price offers better balanced radio frequency amplification stages. Neutrodyne — the acknowledged superior method of balancing—balances the Crosley R F stages as completely and as perfectly as the most expensive neutrodyne radio on the market.

No radio offers easier or simpler control. One dial! One tuning knob! One station selector!

No radio at any price offers this—The Acuminators. In most localities and in most owners' hands the single station selector will find all the programs anyone could possibly wish. But there are some owners who demand greater ability like the possessors of 90 horsepower motor cars who may never step on it but like to be conscious it's there. For such have the Acuminators been designed. Far-away stations of weak power but perhaps good music are captured by the use of these little auxiliary tuners. Their function is best likened to a pair of field glasses. As the lens brings the distant scene to nearby aspect, so do the acuminators bring the remote station signals up to room-filling volume. Ordinary one-dial radios can never perform like this. Tracking the condensers together prohibits—but the Acuminators, little secondary adjustments exclusive to Crosley give the Bandbox a substantial command of the air and all that is in it.

No radio at any price offers finer fittings or refinements. The illuminated dial is merely a little detail. Added because of the greater convenience and pleasure it will give Bandbox owners. One realizes it does not need be added to justify the price.

The Bandbox has a real appreciated feature in the Volume Control. Ask those who live "under the guns" of a local station. Volume Control is necessary on good radio today. Nearby and high powered stations send terrific impulses into the receiver. Detuning has been a favorite method of softening this loud reception, but with stations closer and closer together on the dial, detuning, particularly in large cities, creates an overlapping of programs. The ear like the eye is only good for one thing at a time. Under the towers of the heaviest stations the volume control of the Bandbox cuts the loudest blast down to a veritable whisper. No distortion whatsoever!

A single cable leads all outside and power connections from the Bandbox. In this brown fabric covered cable lies each lead covered with colored rubber for protection, accuracy and easy assembly. Tidy housewives appreciate it.

The adaptability of the Bandbox to installation in all types of cabinets is a feature. The metal case of the Bandbox lifts off the chassis. This leaves the closely grouped dial, switch and volume control shafts to be stuck through holes in the panel of any sort of cabinet. The escutcheon is quickly screwed over them and the console installation is not only complete but has no earmarks of a makeshift.

6 tube Crosley BANDBOX $55

Ask any radio fan if such specifications ever existed for any radio! Check them over against any set any friend may own or you may be considering.

Then find a Crosley dealer. Pittsburgh is full of them in every neighborhood and in all the important shopping districts.

Hear the set. That's the proof. Then you'll understand the reason for its full measure of success, why the gigantic Crosley factories are working 24 hours a day and why its popularity has swept the country from coast to coast.

An AC model Bandbox takes its power from the electric light.

Former power supply with its constant annoyance and expense is entirely eliminated.

The new R.C.A. AC tubes provide clear, smooth and loud reception comparable in every way to the most efficient wet storage battery power.

Alternating current ripple is smoothed out in the compact little power converter which is sold with the AC Bandbox. This device needs no attention—is half the size of an ordinary storage "A" battery and matches the Bandbox in finish and color.

The AC Bandbox is $65
The Power Converter is $60

This gives you a complete, direct AC radio adaptable to any type of installation you may choose—bookcase, console, desk, cabinet, armchair or tuck it away on the corner of the table—for $125.00.

NO LESS AN AMAZING ACHIEVEMENT IS THE ALREADY FAMOUS CROSLEY MUSICONE

Tilt-Table Musicone, $17.50

So soundly is it established—so sure its results and so widespread its satisfaction that Crosley now offers to let you

TRY IT 5 DAYS

Only a national acceptance can make such an offer possible.

When you consider that radio loudspeakers were devised from a telephone ear piece on the end of a horn you can realize how the Musicone, the first scientifically constructed piece of apparatus to sell at a moderate price, sprang to immense popularity. Today the momentum gained in its inception has not been the least lessened. Constant improvements and refinements make it a reproducer of intensity, clarity and beauty to please the most exacting today.

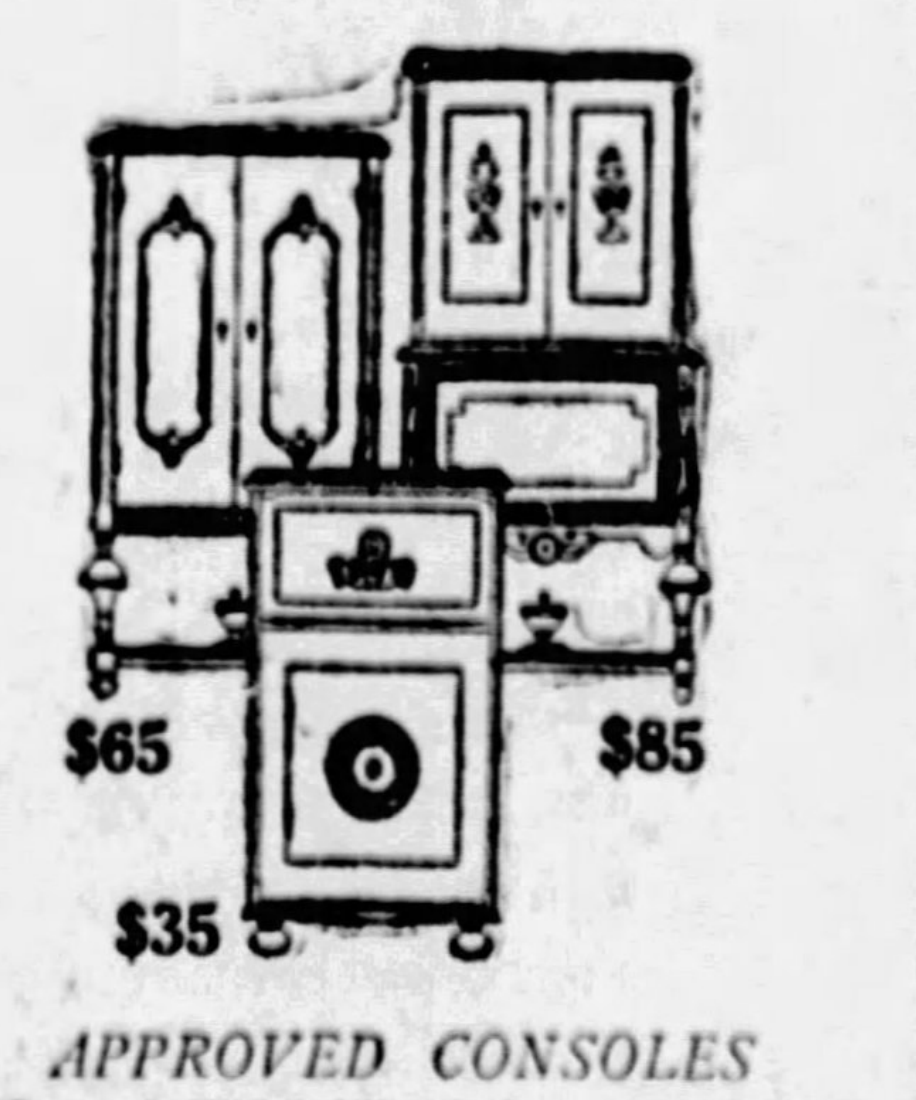
12-Inch Ultra Musicone, $9.75

Recall the thrill you had when you first replaced a yellow carbon lamp with the present day mazda. The old light was good until you tried the new. So it is with many a radio—good with the aged horn of a few short years ago. But note the brilliancy when you add the Musicone.

New radio deserves less than the very best. Insist upon this modern superior method of loud reproduction—the perfect loudspeaker at such incredible prices.

The Musicone is sold in two sizes:

The Ultra Musicone (12-inch).......$ 9.75
The Super Musicone (16-inch)....... 12.75



APPROVED CONSOLES

"I want the public to have as great a value in consoles this year as I have given them in the Bandbox," said Powel Crosley, Jr.

Prominent furniture manufacturers thru their long experience promised beautiful cabinets at moderate prices. Designs submitted were admired, praised, tested, approved! The Musicones were built in. Crosley dealers now sell them. Purchasers may know they are best suited for Crosley radio by looking for the "approved label" in each one. Crosley dealers get these cabinets only from The H. T. Roberts Co., located at 1340 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Sales representative for The Showers Brothers Manufacturing Co., Bloomington, Ind., and The Wolf Manufacturing Industries, Kokomo, Ind.

Specifications, plans and blank proposals can be obtained at the City Architect's office, North Side Municipal Building, corner Ohio and Federal streets. Contractors will be required to leave a deposit of $5 for each set of plans and specifications, and the money will be refunded upon the return of the same to the City Architect's office.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a bond in the sum of 50 per cent of the estimated cost of the work, duly and legally executed by the bidder with a surety company which has complied with the City Ordinance with reference to furnishing bonds for contracts. The successful bidder will be required to furnish a separate bond indemnifying labor and material liability, in addition to the bond covering his contract, when contract is executed.

The Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Safety reserve the right to reject any or all bids and accept any proposal if they deem it to the interest of the City of Pittsburgh so to do.

CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor.
JAMES M. CLARKE, Director.

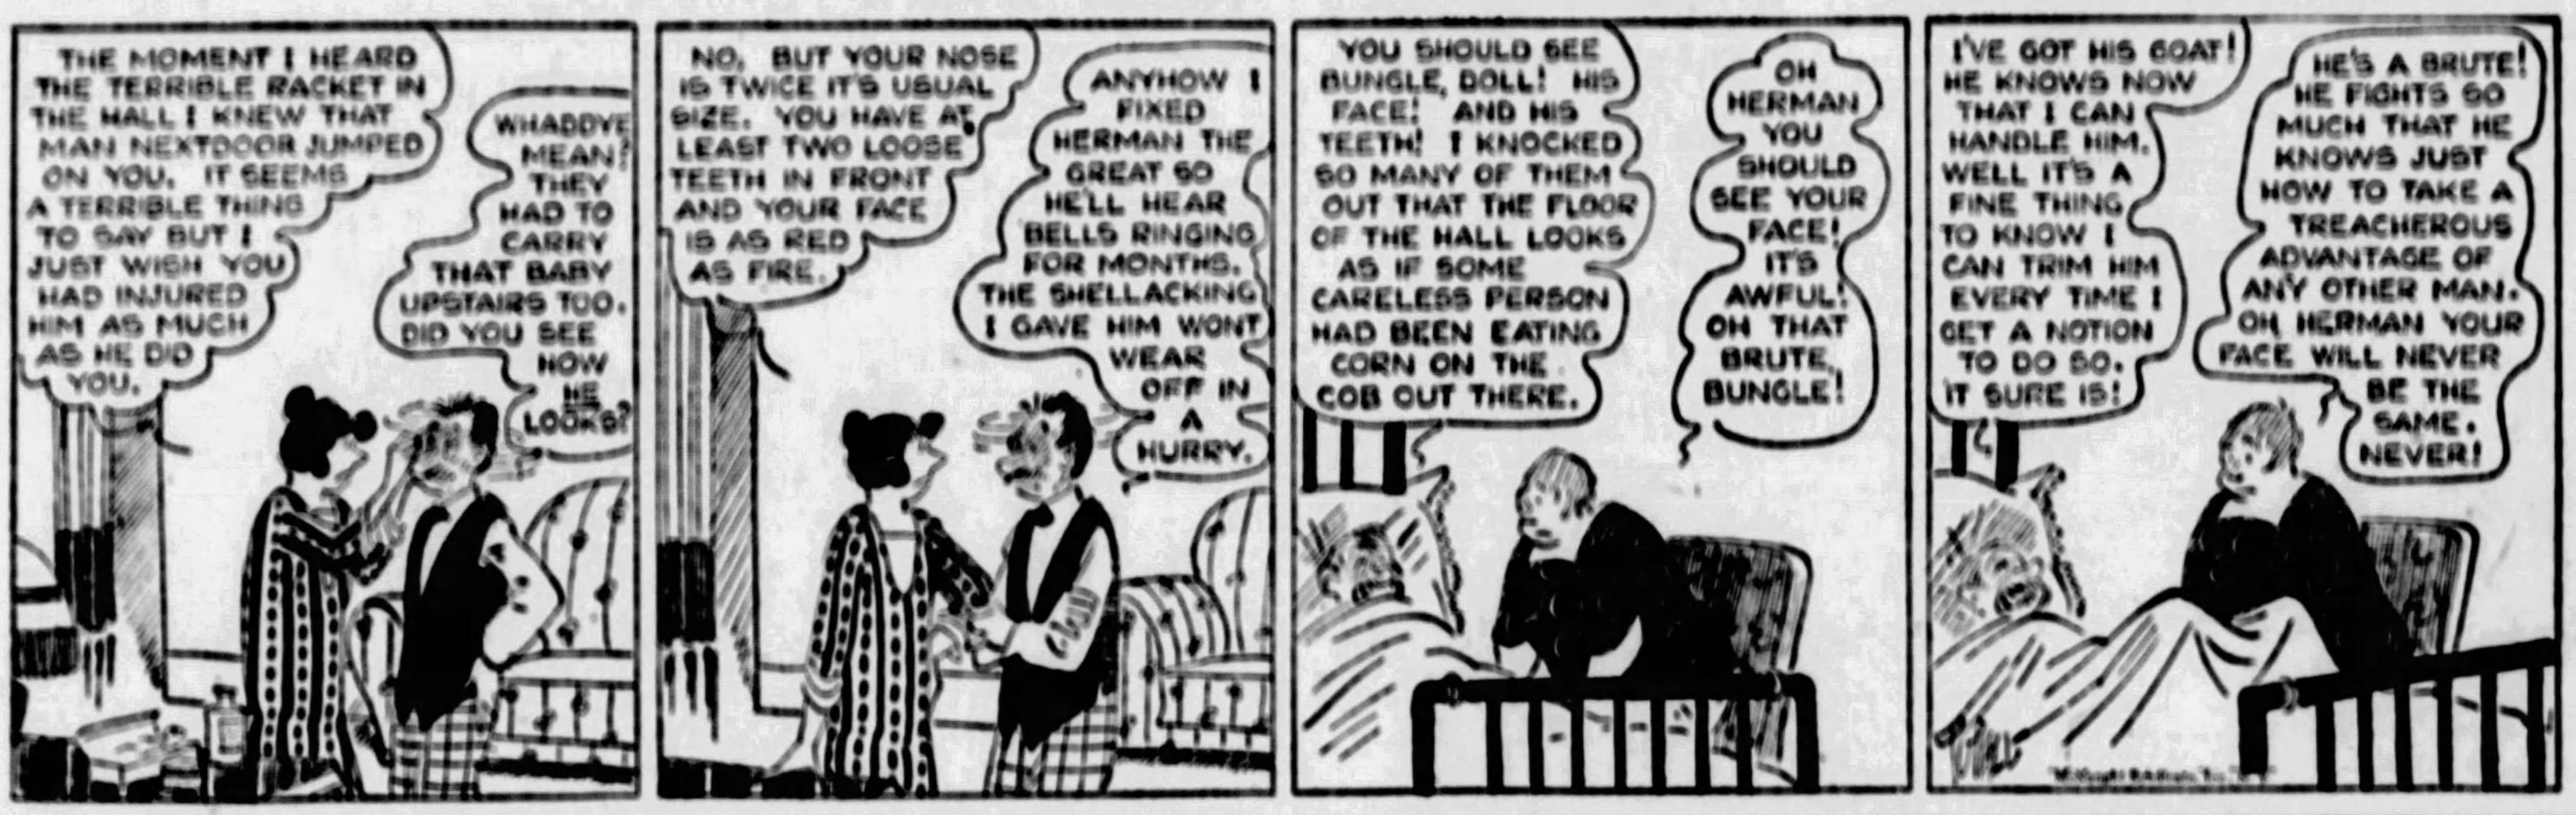
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

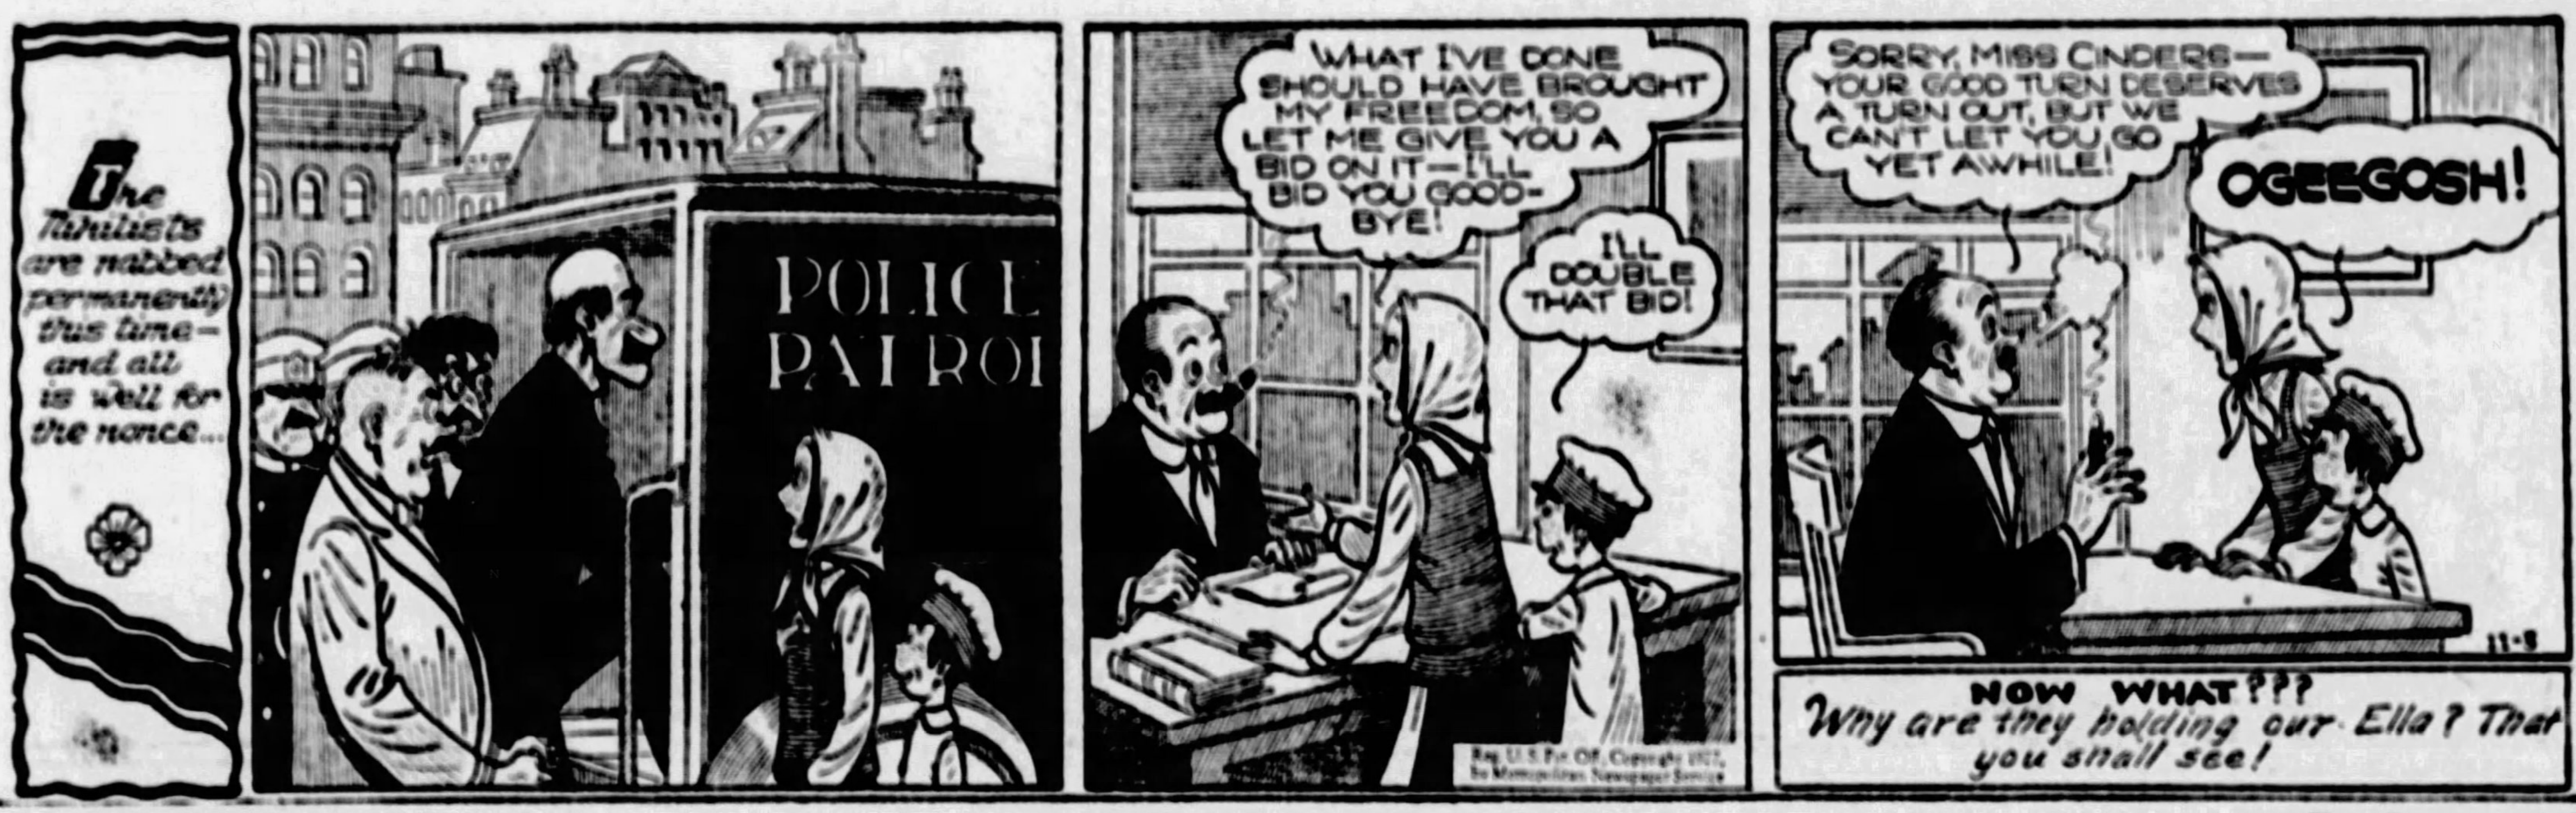
Scars of Valor



THE MOMENT I HEARD THE TERRIBLE RACKET IN THE HALL I KNEW THAT MAN NEXTDOOR JUMPED ON YOU. IT SEEMS A TERRIBLE THING TO SAY BUT I JUST WISH YOU HAD INJURED HIM AS MUCH AS HE DID YOU.
WHADDYE MEAN! THEY HAD TO CARRY THAT BABY UPSTAIRS TOO. DID YOU SEE HOW HE LOOKS?
NO, BUT YOUR NOSE IS TWICE IT'S USUAL SIZE. YOU HAVE AT LEAST TWO LOOSE TEETH IN FRONT AND YOUR FACE IS AS RED AS FIRE.
ANYHOW I FIXED HERMAN THE GREAT SO HE'LL HEAR BELLS RINGING FOR MONTHS. THE SHELLACKING I GAVE HIM WONT WEAR OFF IN A HURRY.
YOU SHOULD SEE BUNGLE, DOLL! HIS FACE! AND HIS TEETH! I KNOCKED SO MANY OF THEM OUT THAT THE FLOOR OF THE HALL LOOKS AS IF SOME CARELESS PERSON HAD BEEN EATING CORN ON THE COB OUT THERE.
OH HERMAN YOU SHOULD SEE YOUR FACE! IT'S AWFUL! OH THAT BRUTE, BUNGLE!
I'VE GOT HIS GOAT! HE KNOWS NOW THAT I CAN HANDLE HIM. WELL IT'S A FINE THING TO KNOW I CAN TRIM HIM EVERY TIME I GET A NOTION TO DO SO. IT SURE IS!
HE'S A BRUTE! HE FIGHTS SO MUCH THAT HE KNOWS JUST HOW TO TAKE A TREACHEROUS ADVANTAGE OF ANY OTHER MAN. OH HERMAN YOUR FACE WILL NEVER BE THE SAME. NEVER!

ELLA CINDERS

Not Free Yet



The Nihilists are nabbed permanently this time—and all is well for the nonce...
POLICE PATROL
WHAT I'VE DONE SHOULD HAVE BROUGHT MY FREEDOM, SO LET ME GIVE YOU A BID ON IT—I'LL BID YOU GOOD-BYE!
I'LL DOUBLE THAT BID!
SORRY, MISS CINDERS—YOUR GOOD TURN DESERVES A TURN OUT, BUT WE CAN'T LET YOU GO YET AWHILE!
OGEEGOSH!

BUGS BAER Says

NEW YORK sets another rubber record with a traffic jam in a traffic court.

This is a challenge to the civic pride of Chicago and Hollywood, even though it was made while the Ford factory was idle.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Exactly 1,700 chauffeurs waved summons in Magistrate McAdoo's Academy of Arts and Sciences on the morning of November 1, 1927.

Magistrate McAdoo was assisted by a battery of six other magistrates in handling the big parade of traffic addicts.

All were charged with the same offense. Parking on the wrong side of the earth.

Parking on New York streets is now a punishable mannerism.

New York is crowded and requires all its available avenues for excavations and other improvements.

The 1,700 stalled citizens established such a jam the magistrate was compelled to write a new library of traffic rules.

In order to carry out the spirit of the affair the head beadle opened the court with a whistle.

The guilty in the north-bound traffic had the right of way over the innocents milling east and west.

There never has been such a jam since the elephant tried to pass the hippo on Noah's gangplank.

Justice went in for mass production on the morning of November 1, 1927. The West doesn't raise enough alfalfa to supply the straw bail necessary for 1,700 dizzy drivers.

In a case like this it becomes essential to try the defendants in clumps of fifty. One lawyer looked like a bell cow when he marched into court followed by 567 clients.

Most of the offenders got off with a reprimand of eleven dollars and costs.

Anybody who proved he had been driving less than five years was discharged as a first offender. It requires five years to find a parking place in New York City.

Up until the morning of November 1, 1927, we always thought Yellowstone was the biggest park in America.

But those 1,700 indicate the Nation's largest reservation is don't park.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON HATS IN THE HALL

SOME women think
That a HAT in the HALL is worth TWO in The HAND,
In OTHER words, that one
HUSBAND would be BETTER
Than a COUPLE of BEAUX.
It is HARD to tell,
For NO woman knows
Just how MUCH
Or how LITTLE a hat could Mean that NIGHTLY came BACK and hung itself
On the SAME peg.
It might represent COMFORT
And COMPANIONSHIP,
It MIGHT grow to mean
BOREDOM PERSONIFIED.
It MIGHT mean
EVERYTHING—
Or NOTHING at all.
It would DEPEND
Probably on WHAT the hat
RESTED on when the MAN went out.
BRAINS count,
CHARACTER counts, so does
SENTIMENT. Without these,
TRANSIENT hats in the Hall are BETTER.

Gold? Silver? Lead?

It All Depends on When You Give.

Eduardo Rodiquez, 17 years old and an orphan, had no money for clothes, shoes and other things, when he picked up a well-filled purse belonging to James A. Wood, a rich real estate man.

Mr. Wood's purse would have bought Eduardo everything he needed, with a considerable sum left for moving pictures, ice cream, etc.

But the pocketbook contained the owner's address, as well as money, and it was immediately returned, money and all, intact, by the honest boy.

Mr. Wood, noticing that the lad's shoes were badly worn, with holes in the soles, gave him a new pair of shoes and said, "I will remember you in my will."

Giving the shoes was a kindly act, and promising to remember the boy in his will was a friendly thought.

But what the lad needs is HELP NOW, and what the prosperous ought to want is the opportunity to do good NOW.

It would be well for the rich to remember an ancient Talmudic saying, often quoted by Nathan Straus, of New York:

> "What you give in health is GOLD.
> "What you give in sickness is SILVER.
> "What you give after you are dead is LEAD."

Mr. Straus lives up to that old saying in addition to quoting it. For more than a quarter of a century he spent large sums every year, when he could ill afford it, in the beginning, supplying poor children with pure milk in New York and many other cities.

And since his retirement from active business he has given away, in proportion to his possessions, very large sums.

If you have anything to give, give it NOW, in your HEALTH, when you can enjoy the happiness of those that receive. Let your gift be gold, rather than silver, when you are ill, or lead, when you are dead.

It is easy to give things away after your death. You cannot take anything with you, "no pockets in shrouds," no safe deposits in the grave.

Giving things away after death simply means that often you give in one direction, advertising your philanthropy, taking it away from relatives in order to do that advertising.

It is better to give when you are dead than never to give at all. But to give, and find happiness in giving, means that you should give NOW.

Who could estimate the satisfaction in the mind of the aged John D. Rockefeller, far past 80, as he plays his little round of golf, lives his quiet life and thinks of the good accomplished by the tens of millions and hundreds of millions that he has given away for education, scientific fight against disease, good works of all kinds, IN THE DAYS OF HIS STRENGTH AND VIGOR?

Teachers of Morals See Need of Real Temperance

A questionnaire submmitted by the Church Temperance Society to Episcopal clergymen in the United States included the following:

"Do you believe a prohibition law offers the best solution for the problem of intemperance?"

This is the question politicians are trying to keep out of politics. It cannot be escaped by those concerned with morals.

The replies of Episcopal clergymen give an informing exhibit of intelligent opinion. One thousand one hundred and thirty-eight said "No"; only 624 said "Yes."

Lawson Purdy, secretary and general director of the Charity Organization Society of New York, addressing at Albany, Wednesday night, a congress of high churchmen, aligned with this majority when he said:

"The evil fruits of prohibition are daily becoming more apparent. Even if the material gains were one hundred times as great as any one has dared to claim, they would be as nothing compared with the damage to the moral character of the nation."

That damage includes the spread of drinking among the young, corruption among officials, discouragement of formerly successful moral controls and widespread contempt for law even among its sworn defenders.

Long before the dawn of the Christian era a man whose wisdom has stood the test of years clothed a profound truth in these words:

"If you judge the people by rules and correct them by penalties they will evade them and lose their sense of shame; but if you guide them by example and correct them by your own loyalty and honor, they will keep their conscience and imitate you."

Were Confucius living today he would be for temperance by precept and example. And for that very reason he would have to be against prohibition, because the two are incompatible.

We Could Use Mussolini

What He Says, He Means.

At one time in Italy a mysterious murderous group called "Mafia" kept whole populations in terror, especially in Sicily.

But Mussolini, who says "I refuse to be assassinated," is one that cannot be frightened or turned from his purpose.

He says the law of Italy must be MUSSOLINI'S law, not that of the Mafia. And Sicily's Mafia is quiet and peaceful under Mussolini's Fascist rule.

Recently Mussolini's agents arrested 30 Mafia leaders at Termini, in Sicily, and the population was actually not afraid to testify against them. A remarkable change.

If Italy could spare Mussolini for a few months he might help us out with our American gangsters, holdup men, hijackers, bootleggers and other assorted criminals.

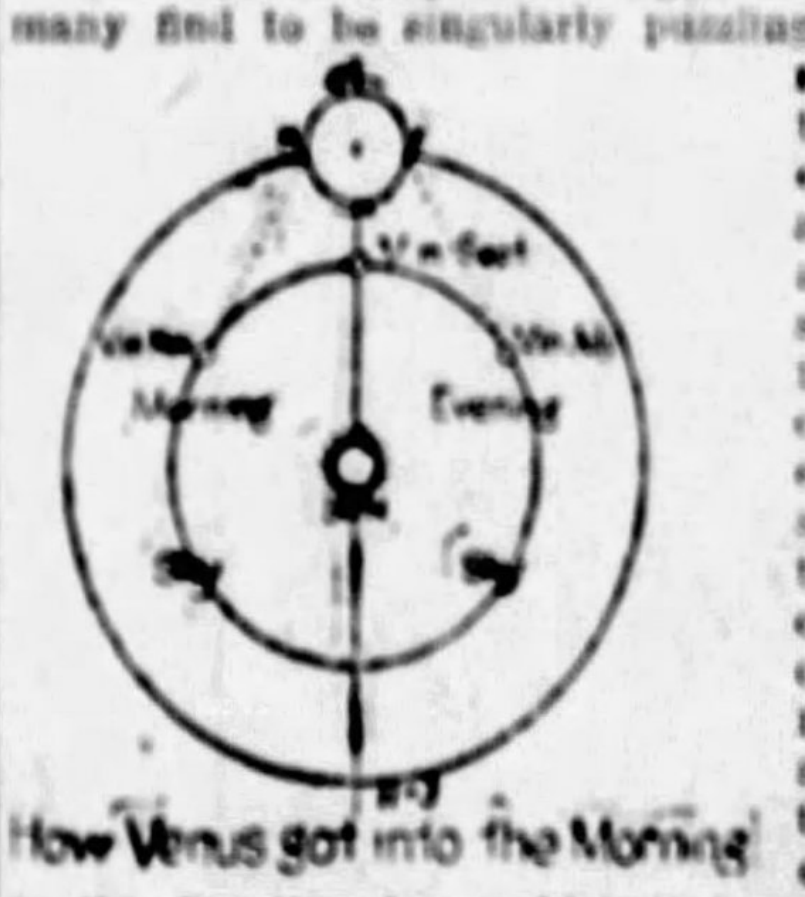
Garrett P Serviss Says:

Following Venus

THE astronomical guides tell you that Venus, so dazzling in the evening sky during July and August, is now exercising her fascinations in the morning sky. How did she get there, and why do the astronomers say that she is now west of the sun, although she plainly appears in the western sky?

The answer may throw light on several things that many find to be singularly puzzling. The most fundamental of these is the true signification of the terms "east" and "west." Few, apparently, understand that these terms have no application outside the earth. They arise solely from the fact that the earth turns on its axis in an unchanging sense. The name east has been applied to the direction toward which the earth turns and west to the direction from which it turns. With reference to outer space east and west shift round with the observer as he is carried round by the earth's rotation.



How Venus got into the Morning

Let us clear this with a diagram, which will show, at the same time, the way in which Venus moved from the evening to the morning sky between Summer and Autumn.

The two circles around the sun represent the orbits of the planets Earth and Venus, that of Venus being the one nearest the sun. The observer is supposed to be looking down from the north pole of the heavens, whence the revolution of the planets in their orbits as well as their rotation on their axis would take place from right to left, as shown by the arrows.

But, as before said, the direction in which this motion takes place is called "east," i. e. the planets both rotate on their axis and revolve around the sun "from west to east." And west and east have no other signification.

Although both the earth and Venus revolve around the sun, yet for convenience the earth (drawn disproportionately large) is represented fixed in position while revolving on its axis. This does not affect the relations to be pointed out. Remark that to an observer at the point "e" on the earth the sun is setting, and Venus, represented in its July position, is visible in the evening half of the sky, and is east of the sun, since it is farther advanced in that part of the sky FROM which the earth is turning and so sets LATER than the sun.

On the other hand, to an observer at the point "m" on the earth the sun is rising, and Venus, represented in its November, or present, position, is visible in the morning half of the sky and is WEST of the sun, since it is less advanced than the sun in that part of the sky TOWARD which the earth is turning, so that it rises BEFORE the sun. The point marked "V in Sept." simply shows where Venus was when she passed from the evening to the morning sky on September 10.

In ancient times it was popularly supposed that the morning Venus and the evening Venus were different planets; the first was called "Phosphorus" and the second "Hesperus," names that poetry still keeps alive.

Inspiration in Hats

MEN are accustomed to drown their sorrows in various ways, never stopping to realize that most sorrows are excellent swimmers.

There is one New York man who has a novel system of pepping himself up when trouble camps on his trail. Instead of drinking bootleg liquor, he goes and buys himself a new hat.

He said the other day he can get more of an inspirational kick out of a new hat than out of a case of champagne. Every time trouble canters into view on his horizon, he hies him to the hat store.

Just to show the general trend and frequency of troublesome events in this man's life he now has two hundred and thirty-six hats.

Sunshine Still

ALL those who seek will surely find the way that's smooth, the smile that's kind, and ever, as through life they go, some faith will feel, some hope will know. For with responsive spirit they will answer every greeting gay and though the day be dark and chill their eyes will glimpse some sunshine still. Where others might in sombre mood find but few vestiges of good, those who have mastered joy's own art will glean fresh gladness for their part. Not only from the light without comes cheer; but from a courage stout and from a boundless faith and trust that men are true and life is just. So those who go, serene, down ways of toil or pleasure all their days, will find a bloom no blight can kill, through all the years, some sunshine still.

Tales That Are Told

Like Clockwork

SMYTHE-SMYTHE was a great trial to his friends. Somehow he always managed to keep up great style and to do a lot of entertaining, in spite of the fact that he was always deeply in debt both to tradesmen and his friends.

Recently he had moved into a new house, and meeting a certain nobleman of his acquaintance from whom he had frequently borrowed, he said:

"You know, you must come and see my new house. I pride myself that it is perfectly run. Everything goes like clockwork."

"Yes," replied his lordship bitterly. "Tick, tick, tick, I suppose!"—London Answers.

Modern Marriage

MRS. GOLDBERG was fabulously rich and had fallen in love with a man very much her junior.

A week or two after their marriage, as she reclined on a settee near her husband, she murmured in a dreamy voice:

"Silver threads among the gold, sweetheart. Sweetheart mine, don't all these silver threads among the gold make you regret our romantic marriage?"

The youth contemplated her smartly shingled head a moment.

"Not a bit," he answered brutally, "I can easily put up with the silver threads for the sake of the gold."—London Answers.

THE lecturer was emphasizing the demoralizing effect of divorce.

"Love," he said, "is a quest; a proposal, a request; the giving of a daughter's hand in marriage, a bequest, and marriage itself the conquest. But what is divorce?"

Dear K. C. B.: I would like to start a new organization to be called: "THE SOCIETY FOR THE ELIMINATION OF USELESS ORGANIZATIONS." There would be, for this organization, no clubhouse, no officers, no by-laws, no dues, no programs, no speeches. But each member would agree to resign from one organization and devote the time and money saved thereby to some useful occupation—such as staying at home and getting acquainted with the family. Would you like to join? MYRON C. BURR.

MY DEAR Myron.

SURE I would.

BECAUSE AFTER a while.

WHAT WITH ALL the clubs.

AND ORGANIZATIONS.

THAT LITTLE by little.

ARE DRAGGING the men.

OUT OF their homes.

IT WOULDN'T be long.

AND THERE'D be somebody.

A HIGH powered salesman.

WITH A four-year term.

AT A luncheon club.

* * *

AND HE'D come around.

"MAY MAINTAIN relations.

"WITH SAID wives and children.

"WITHOUT INTERFERENCE.

"IN THE club activities.

"OF SAID club members."

AND RIGHT away, Myron.

WOULD SAY to himself:

* * *

"DO I want them so close?"

AND SEEKING the answer.

THERE MIGHT come to him.

OF HIS selfishness.

AND HE might even cry.

AND CALL for his car.

AND GO on home.

AND THERE announce.

HE WAS going to move them.

OUT BACK of the club.

WHERE EVERY little while.

HE COULD run in on them.

AND THEY'D be together.

AT CHRISTMAS time.

AND THE Fourth of July.

HE MIGHT do that.

AND THEN again.

HE MIGHT say to himself:

"I'LL START right in.

"GIVING UP my clubs."

AND THEN WE'D get him.

TO JOIN our club.

AND RESIGN from the one.

THAT COST him three hundred.

AND NEVER was opened.

I THANK you.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

If Hero means sincere man, why may not every one of us be a Hero? —Carlyle.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—There are few patrons of vaudeville who did not have a bowing acquaintance with Murray Roe, the head usher at the Palace Theater. He had the unobtrusive and dignified manner altogether out of keeping with the role he played in life.

He was one of those figures a great city shunts to the backwaters of life—and forgets. And when we who write of such things tell of such things without giving names we are often chided as romancers. Roe's life story became public because he was found dead in Central Park.

He was the son of E. P. Roe, famous as a novelist and preacher. In early life he received all the educational advantages and was an accomplished civil engineer and was one of the designers of the Riverside Drive aqueduct. He once moved in the upper circles of high society.

His dinners were talked of events in his day. Broadway and its hangers-on were at his feet. His income was around $75,000 a year. When he married, New York's "400" attended. It was a first page event. The marriage later went on the rocks.

Roe was not a high flyer. Somehow or other he drifted out of the world that knew him well. Fourteen years ago he became an usher at the Palace. His ability was so quickly recognized that in a few weeks he was head usher. He spurned all offers to take higher posts. Nobody knew why.

Night after night at the theater door he scanned the coupons of those who had known him "when." His attitude was obliging and slightly servile. He ignored all efforts to establish intimacy. Few knew where he lived and how he spent his time off duty.

New York has hundreds of Murray Roes who remain to the end human enigmas. Sometimes they are night cashiers in hurry-up restaurants or night watchmen patrolling lonely beats. They seem to ask nothing of life but to be left alone with their frozen dreams.

It is our belief there are many men and women, too, who achieve success and find there is not so much to it. They are those who care nothing for the applause. They are happier to lead their lives in their own way—and so they drift. And a conventional world gives them a pity they do not ask.

* * *

A story is going the rounds of a careless wife—at least careless with her afternoons—who was having tea in a cafe with an admirer. Suddenly her husband loomed in the doorway and started towards her table. She was in a flutter and whispered to her admirer to think of some way to rescue her from her dilemma. A bright idea struck him. "I have it," he whispered. "When he reaches the table we will pretend to be ignoring each other."

The radio keeps so many people home it is now blamed for the poorest season in the history of street carnival shows. The carnival showmen are back in town for the winter thoroughly disheartened. Out of 150 starting out from New York last spring it is reported only 20 made expenses or over.

Carnival people, between seasons, live in a jostling section on Tenth avenue. They are birds of a feather flocking together. Contrary to opinion, the majority are thrifty. Many carnival men sell gim-cracks along New York curbs during the winter months and the same "spiels" that incite crossroads yokels to unsnap their purses work in Manhattan.

Those who know say the most difficult salesmanship of all is to round up the catch-penny trade and make it buy. There is a carnival salesman who used to sell canes from a shoulder pack. He was picked up by the president of a mail order company and now, at a mahogany desk surrounded by secretaries, he is the eminently successful sales manager of the company.

* * *

The annoyance of attending the New York theater is heightened by the gyppers who grab taxis in the hope of tips and make patient patrons pay or wait. And it looks suspiciously like certain policemen aid them in the petty grafting.

The Swallowed Moment

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Every day something new is being invented. You have to keep on the jump to keep up with the new discoveries.

Mr. Milliken invented the cosmic ray and scientists have split up the atoms, and now a man has found out about the etheron which, although the smallest thing in the world, seems capable of doing a lot.

I met a man the other day who had invented what he called the swallowed moment.

It is very simple if you know what I mean. You simply lay down a barrage of atoms before a thing happens and then let the thing happen, and then put down a barrage of atoms after it happens.

By this means the thing is as if it never was. It is plumb gone and appears neither in your memory nor in history. It is as though you had swallowed it.

When you want to do anything criminal all you have to do is to fire off a few atoms beforehand, go ahead and do your dirt and then heave a few atoms after it.

In this way you escape all repentance, and what was a damning fact becomes a non-fact.

Think of how much happiness it would have brought into the world if people had been able to undo the past.

Omar Khayyam wrote something about the moving finger having writ and not all our skill could change a bit of it. But you never can tell.

Mr. J. W. Hoggenheimer has changed all that. All you have to do is to be sure that you have a supply of atoms on hand and know how to fire them off.

This is perfectly simple to those who understand it.

Perhaps you don't understand it.

But what do you expect?

Do you expect me to describe a thing and then furnish the intelligence with which you understand it at the same time?

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Follow the Rules

DON'T feel so sure of your job that you think you can follow your own set of rules while other employes must abide by the will of the firm for which you work.

Age and experience and a long-term job do not entitle the holder to laxity in rules which are laid down for the workers in general.

You may be able to attend to your work in a satisfactory manner, but your failure to meet requirements cannot be overlooked because of its effect upon the other workers.

The fact that you are an old employe makes it more necessary for you to be strict in your attention to regulations.

Your example is likely to be followed by the others.

You cannot be so firmly entrenched with any firm that it can afford to let you be a rule unto yourself.

Business is more and more competitive and morale is necessary to success. Employers cannot afford to be sentimental in this matter.

Morale cannot be sacrificed to one or two who consider themselves favorites with the powers that be.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

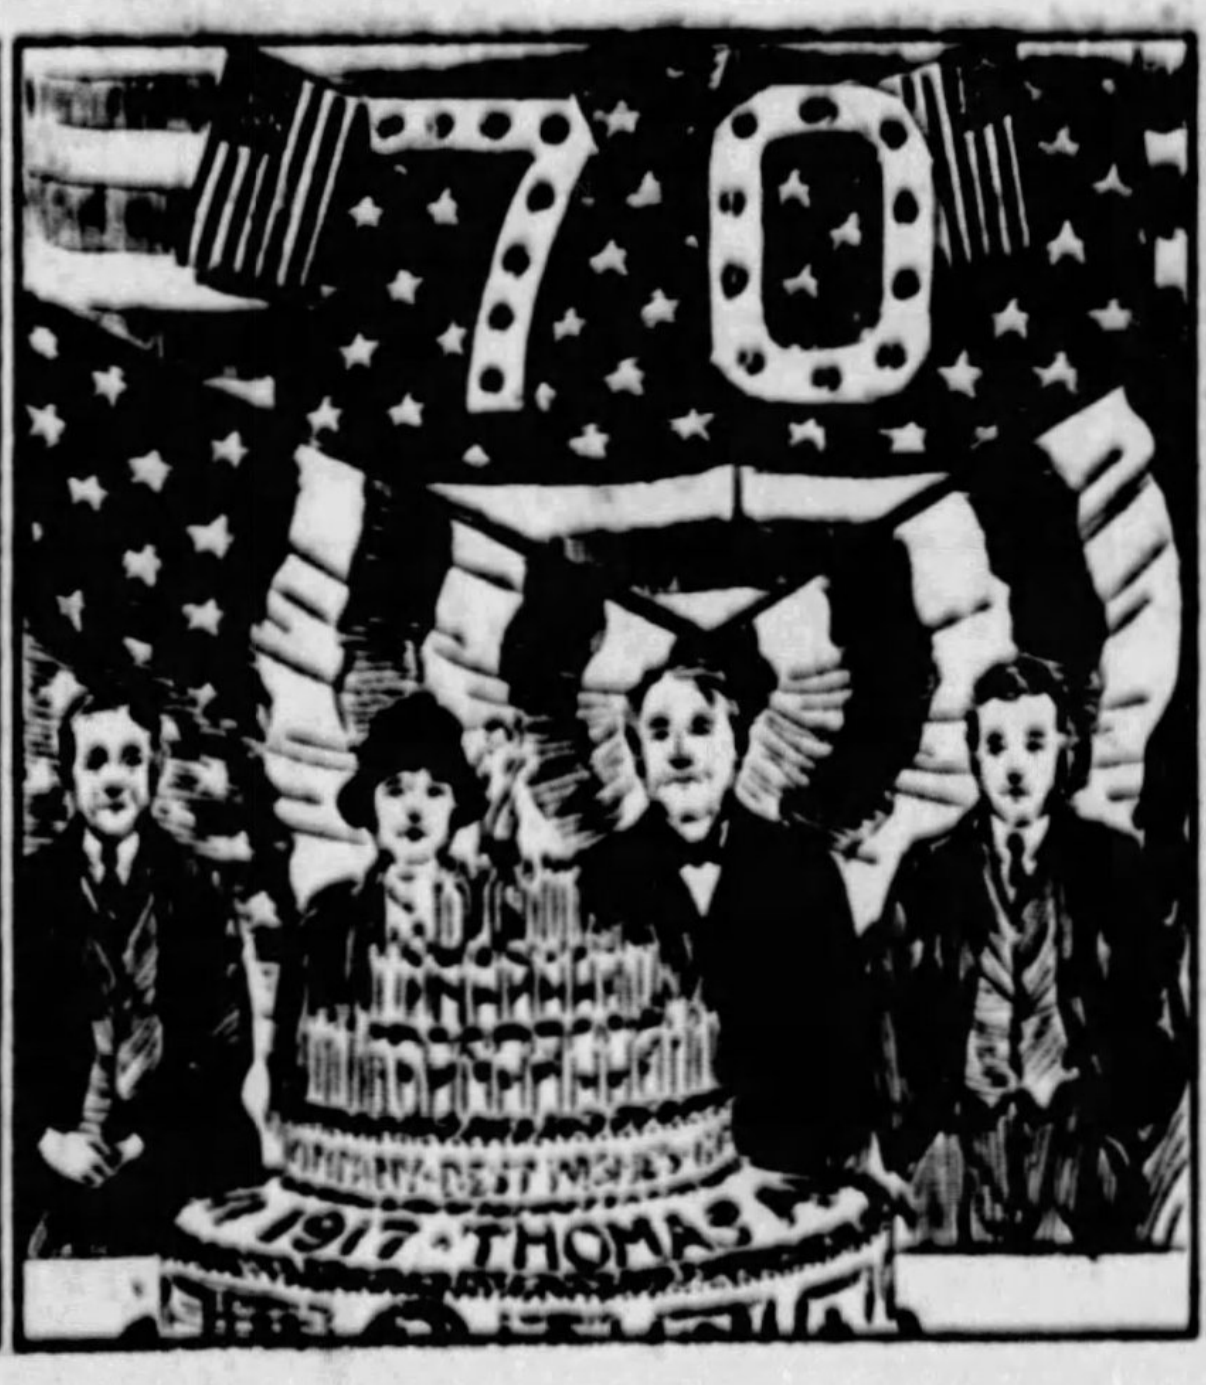
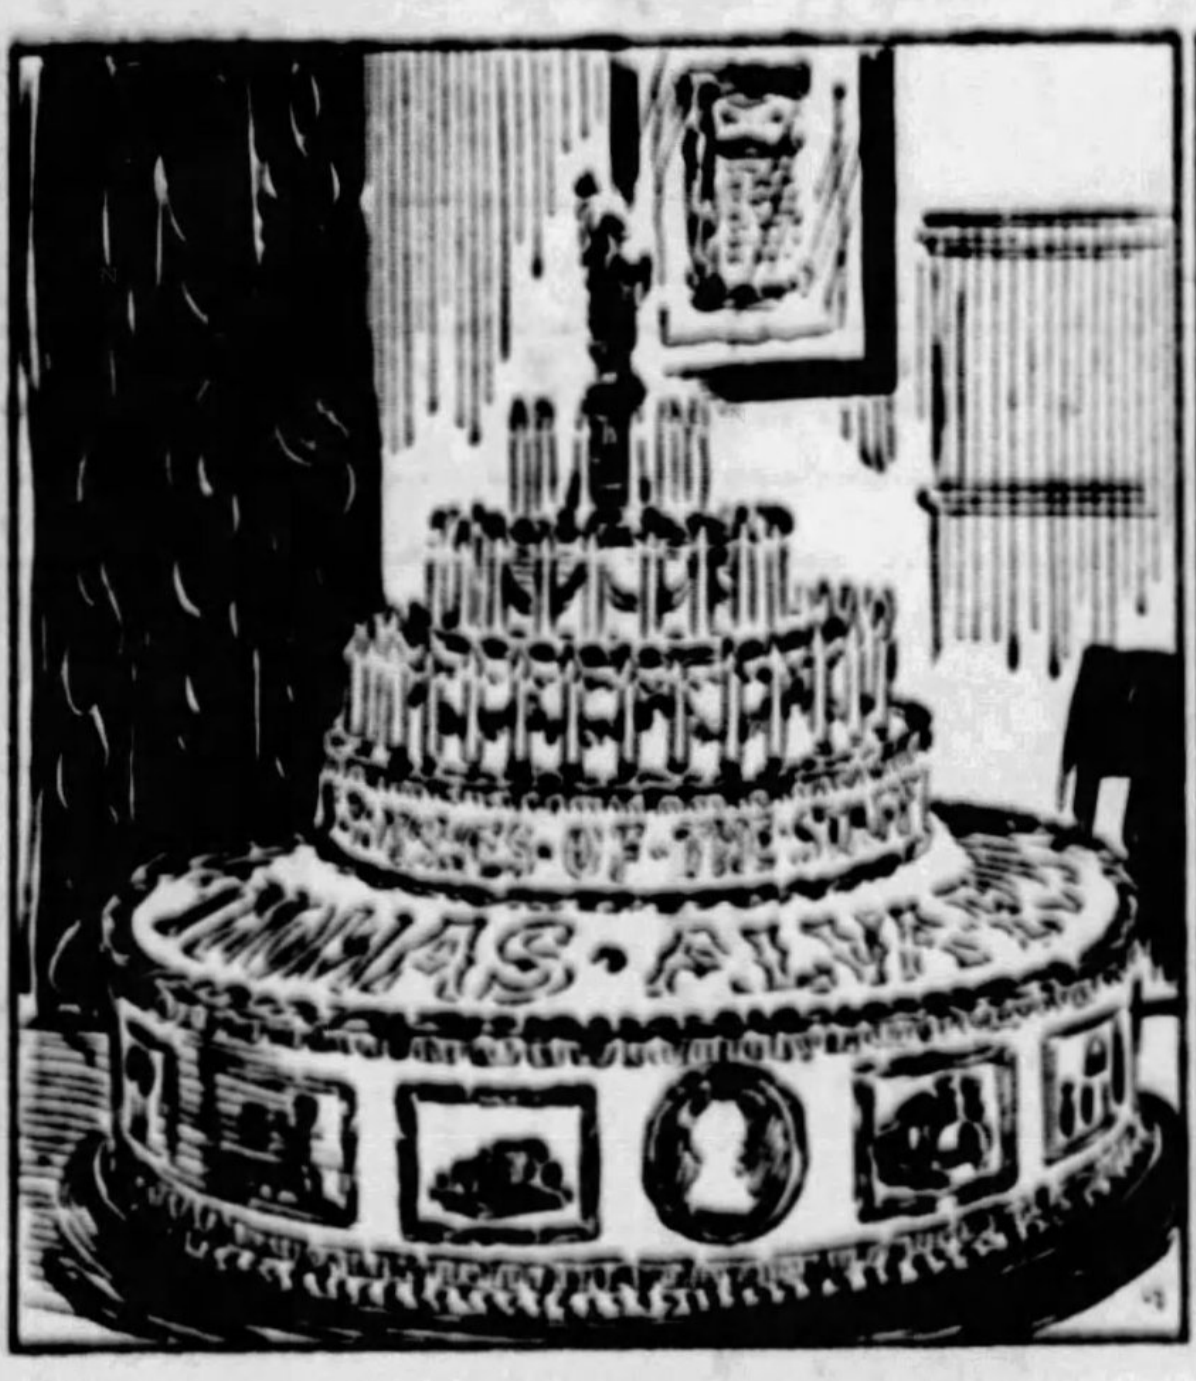
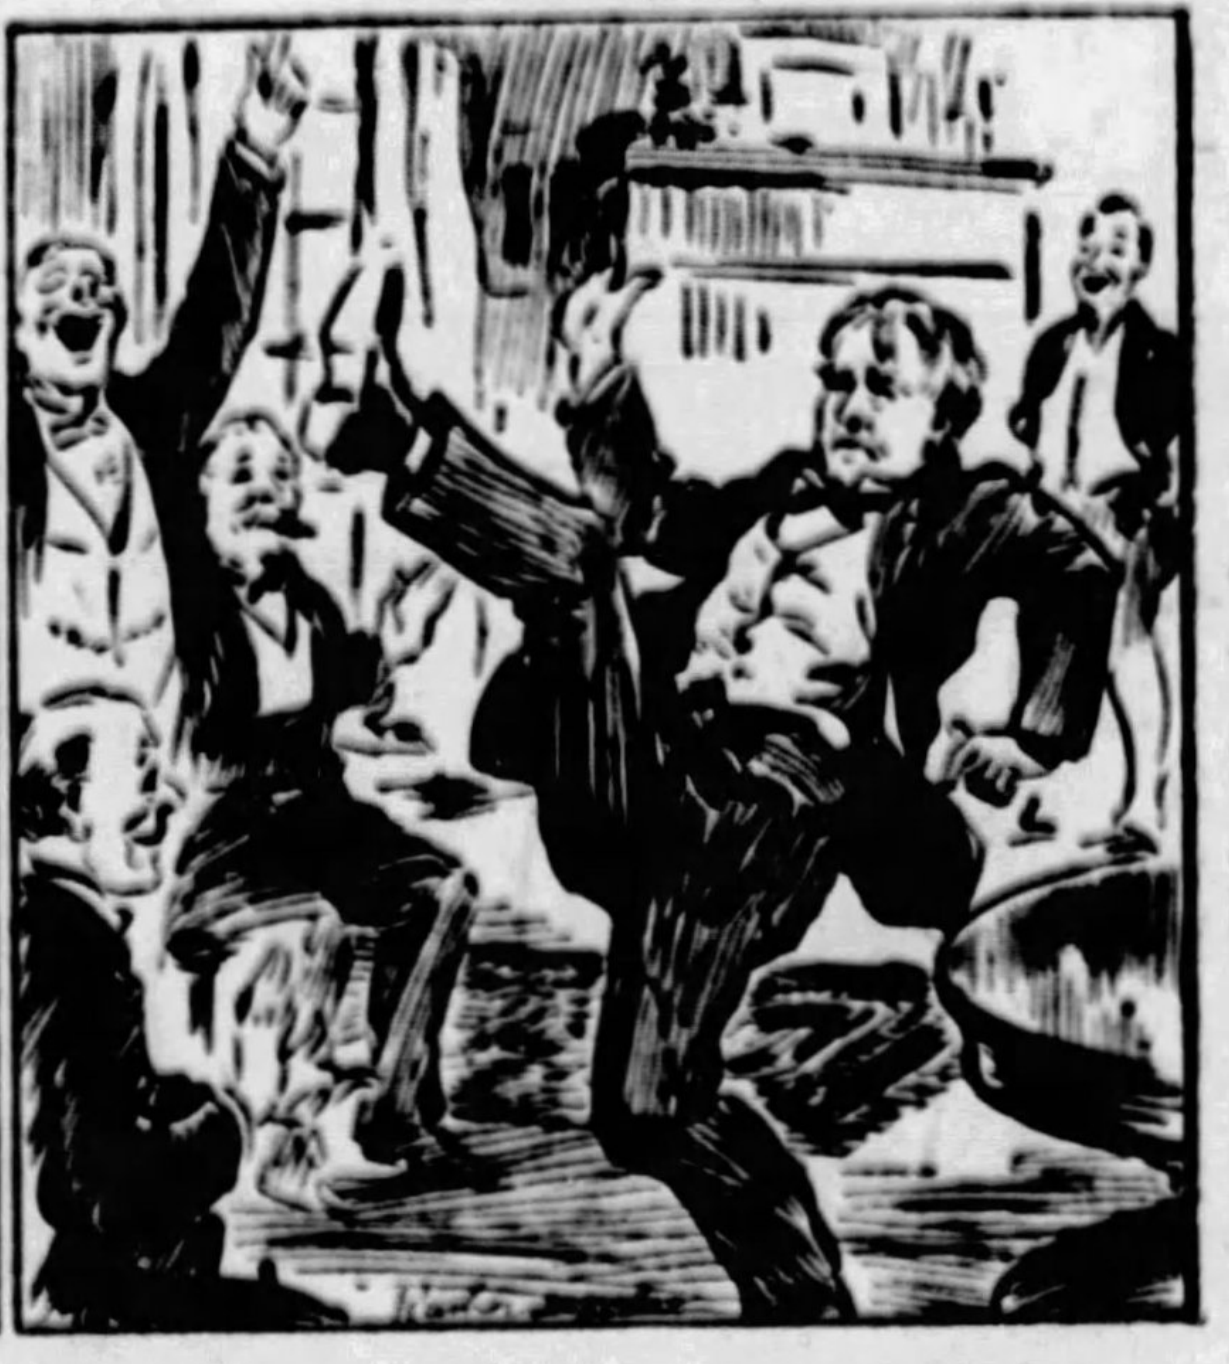
GLENMONT, the Edison family home, is situated in beautiful Llewellyn Park, a private residential park on the slopes of the Orange (N. J.) Mountains. Edison also has a home on the banks of the Calahoutchie River, at Fort Myers, Fla., where he spends the latter part of each Winter. He also has a laboratory there.



EDISON'S birthday is February 11. Each year there is a reception at the laboratories, a birthday party at Glenmont and a luncheon by the Edison Pioneers. On his 70th birthday a monster dinner was given in the storage battery building. In the picture are Henry Ford, Mrs. Edison, Mr. Edison, Charles Edison.



THE 70th birthday cake was about 4 feet high and the same in width. It was adorned with 70 lighted electric candles. Around the base were panels showing Edison's principal inventions. At the top was a miniature Statue of Liberty. The cake was the gift of the New York Edison Company.



IT IS remarkable how Edison keeps his youthful spirit. His "pep" and nimbleness might be associated with a comparatively young man. At his 73rd birthday reception he challenged the old-timers present to a high-kicking contest and he won with ease.
